YOUTH GIVEN $7M IN MISHAP

WASHINGTON (WP) — A U.S. District Court jury Tuesday awarded $7 million in damages to the family of a Illinois youth whose neck was broken when he dived into a hotel swimming pool while here for an Explorer Scout convention four years ago. He is now a quadriplegic.

The award is the largest ever given here in a personal injury negligence case, and may be the largest such award to an individual in the country, according to several lawyers here.

Victim of the accident is Thomas Hooks, who was 18 at the time. The jury's award is subject to review by the judge, who can accept it, modify it or reject it, and can be appealed to higher courts by the defendants.

According to evidence presented at the trial and court records, the youth was injured when he dived off a nine-foot-high diving board into eight feet of water. The jury, after hearing detailed evidence by witnesses, including diving and swimming pool experts, found that the hotel had been negligent in using the type of diving board with the depth of water involved.

RUSSIAN WEAPONS TO LIBYA

Massive Mideast Arms Deal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Russia and Libya have secretly made the biggest weapons deal in the history of the Middle East, with the Soviet Union agreeing to supply $12 billion worth of "the most sophisticated arms one can imagine," according to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

The agreement could give the Russians a military presence on the southern shore of the Mediterranean for 50 years, Sadat told the Los Angeles Times.

In a lengthy interview published in the Times today, Sadat also complained that it is difficult to deal with the United States, because the government does not speak with one voice, with the White House following one foreign policy and Congress another. But he called on the United States not to "go on sticking your head in the sand" in post-Vietnam isolationism, and to take a super power role in bringing peace to the Middle East by pressuring Israel.

The Libyan regime of Col. Moammar Khadafi and Moscow both denied earlier reports in Egyptian newspapers of a secret $4 billion arms deal, calling them exaggerated. Sadat, the Times said, stated that far from being exaggerated, the actual agreement was three times bigger than had been reported.

"The whole deal is for the most sophisticated arms one can imagine," the Times quoted Sadat as saying. It provides Libya with tanks and aircraft of the latest style," he said. "The Russians have never given me or Syria such sophisticated arms."

Russian advisers will have to remain in Libya for 20 to 50 years to show Libyans how to use the weapons, Sadat said. "You can draw your own conclusions as to the dominance of Moscow's military presence in Libya," he said, calling it "something that should upset the United States more than us."

Relations between Egypt and Libya have been deteriorating.

Quang Issue 'Regret' By Andras

Times News Services

TORONTO — Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Tuesday he regretted allowing former South Vietnamese general Dang Van Quang to enter Canada before investigating charges of corruption levelled against him.

In an interview on CBC radio's As It Happens, Andras said:

"In retrospect, I wish there had been a more thorough vetting of who he was and what he was involved in."

Andras said Quang had been accused of "pretty nefarious criminal activities and manipulation of people."

If the allegations were eventually proved, "I would want to get rid of him."

"I doubt if he will be sent back to Saigon. But it is not impossible to remove him from Canada."

Andras said the former general was allowed to enter Canada on a temporary basis so that he could be reunited in Montreal with his wife and children.

Andras has been under political fire since Monday when Derek Blackburn, NDP MP for Brant asked why the former general was allowed to enter Canada on a special ministerial permit.

Blackburn referred to Quang as "the epitome of everything that went wrong in Vietnam."

Meanwhile, a United States Drug Enforcement Agency official said in Montreal the Canadian government has as yet not requested any information on the drug trafficking activities of Quang.

A DEA liaison officer at the Consulate General of the United States said "any request for information from the Canadian government on this man would be referred to us because he is living here in Montreal and we have heard nothing yet from Ottawa."

Allegations about his role in the drug trade are made in The Politics of Heroin in Southeast Asia by Alfred W. McCoy and The Fire in the Lake by Francis Fitzgerald.

Gunman Runs Amok In High School

UIC PAYMENTS JUMP BY 50%

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment insurance payments for the first four months of 1975 totalled $1.233 billion, up nearly 50 per cent over the $830 million total for the first four months of 1974, government officials told the Commons manpower committee Tuesday.

If projected for the rest of the year at present jobless rates, the total benefit cost of the program this year would be about $3.5 billion — far more than the 1974 total of $2.116 billion.

Increased unemployment this year with a resultant larger number of claims for benefits and a higher level of payments due to increased earnings are among that factor that will push the total up.

Munro 'Debunks' High Wage Myth

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro appeared out of step with the government Tuesday, delivering a hard-hitting speech which denied that high wage settlements are the major cause of inflation.

Both Prime Minister Trudeau and Finance Minister John Turner have cited wage settlements as a main inflationary factor.

Munro criticized in the Commons "the prevailing myth that excessive wage settlements are the main cause of inflation, that they are running double the average rise of wages in the United States and that they threaten our competitive advantage over the Americans."

Munro quoted from recent news reports "which go far to debunk this myth about allegedly excessive wage increases."

"Canadian wages have been rising faster than those in the U.S., but so has our productivity."

Munro also criticized suggestions that all pay raises should be held at the same general percentage increase.

"It is all very well for us to sit in the House and express horror at certain percentage increases without examining the base rate," he said. "We might have different ideas of what our percentage increase should be if we were handling bed pans in hospitals or clearing garbage in the streets."

Later, as the body of the gunman still lay inside, Premier Davis, who lives in Brampton, drove to the school to confer with police officers.

Allan Andrichuk, a mathematics teacher, said he was in the men's room of the school when he heard shooting.

"I looked out the door and saw a guy with a rifle at eye level. I ducked back into the washroom and then heard another volley of shots."

Don Carley, assistant administrator of Peel Memorial Hospital, said people in the emergency ward were "running around like mad."

However, Gerard Pelletier, federal communications minister, said in Ottawa that the B.C. minister is "being a bit hasty in saying the thing is settled."

"There are many difficulties that have yet to be discussed. I think he (Strachan) realizes this. He has told me he is ready to wait two years if necessary for it to be done properly."

Strachan said he could give no date for the transfer of authority, but said, "I fully expect it to happen."

Strachan said such regulatory authority would give the B.C. government a say on telephone rate increase applications.

The minister said in an interview that he predicts the B.C. government will be granted such authority as a result of meetings now going on in Ottawa between federal and provincial officials.

Strachan said he could give no date for the transfer of au-

Pot Legal At Home In Alaska

JUNEAU (AP) — The Alaska Supreme Court has legalized possession of marijuana for private use in the home.

In a 5-to-0 ruling handed down Tuesday, the court became the first in the United States to legalize some aspect of marijuana use, saying that "mere scientific doubts" about the medical effects of marijuana do not justify government intrusions into the home.

Left intact by the court are penalties for public possession and use for sales, offences which the justices said relate to a "compelling interest" of the state.

"There's no question about the decision," said R. Collin Middleton, an Anchorage lawyer who helped argue the case. "You can now ring your yard with marijuana plants, if you want to."

(In Canada a Senate Committee Tuesday stopped just short of declaring the use of marijuana a non-criminal act. See story Page 25.)

An independent commission with wide jurisdiction over legal services in B.C. will be set up under legislation introduced in the house Tuesday.

The Legal Services Commission Act sets up a five-member body, appointed by the government and the Law Society of B.C., with power to "plan the development of legal services in the province."

Legal services are described in the bill as "education, advice and information in or about law and any legal service that may be provided by a barrister and solicitor or a notary public."

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald described the bill as an important move "to take legal services out of politics completely."

The commission will work independently to improve the provision of legal services and to try to ensure equal accessibility and equality before the law, he said.

It will hopefully mean the end of "cash register justice" in B.C., said Macdonald.

The legislation describes the object and purpose of the commission as ensuring that:

"... legal services are effectively provided to, and readily obtainable by, the people of B.C., with special emphasis on those people to whom those services are not presently available for financial or other reasons."

The new body will have jurisdiction over all legal aid in the province and will be assigned the $4.2 million budget for legal aid included in the attorney-general's estimates.

Macdonald said the commission will decide how best to spend the money on legal aid and might decide on different rules for granting that aid.

Two members of the commission will be appointed by cabinet; two will be chosen by the benchers of the B.C. Law Society; and one will be appointed by the attorney-general in consultation with the federal minister of justice.

They will be appointed for two-year terms and no person will be able to serve for more than six consecutive years.

Macdonald said he hopes to see the commission operating this summer.

A long list of functions for the commission is included in the legislation and gives the body power to:

—promote, finance, establish and supervise research on legal services and to provide programs for continuing evaluation of legal services.

—develop and co-operate in experimental programs and projects on the provision of services.

—provide information to the public and consult with the public and other interested groups.

An executive director will be hired to run the commission and departmental spokesmen indicated lawyers may be hired by the organization.

One of the problems it may tackle is the lack of lawyers in northern B.C.

Staples New Surgery Tool

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

The stapler has arrived in the operating rooms of Victoria General Hospital.

Not quite the same handy little device found on your office desk, but used for the same purpose — to attach things quickly and firmly together.

Stapling tissue together rather than traditional suturing with gut or thread may cut as much as an hour from a 2½-hour operation, Dr. B. R. Carlow, assistant executive director (medical), said Tuesday.

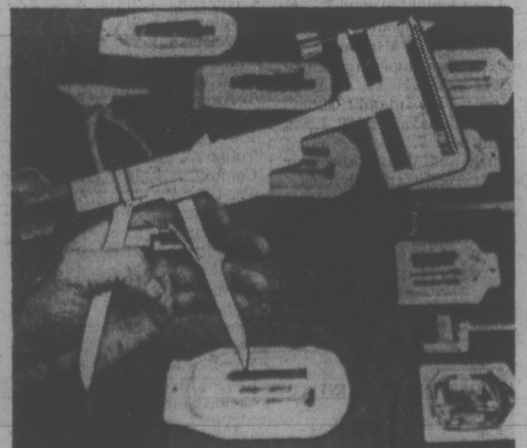

Six or eight surgeons at Victoria General have been assessing the effectiveness of surgical stapling instruments over the past three months. The hospital board has now been asked to purchase the equipment, at a cost of about $3,200 for the half-dozen stapling guns and another $900 for a supply of the tiny stainless steel wire staples.

The staples, which come in sterile cartridges to fit into the guns, are far smaller and finer than those found in an office stapler. They present no problems being left in the body when used internally, Carlow said. When used to close the skin, they are later removed like traditional stitches.

Some of the instruments deliver a double row of staples, to close off each side of a hollow organ like stomach or bowel while a blade in the instrument severs tissue between them. Others are designed to attach sheaths of tissue such as ligaments.

Carlow said the stapling technique, which is new to the local hospital community, offers the advantage of speed, reducing the time a patient is under anesthesia. It produces good closures and is an advantage when a surgeon is working, for example, deep in the pelvis, where it is difficult to do more customary suturing.

Stabbing Caused Death

Stanford Clarence Wray died after being stabbed through the heart, B.C. Supreme Court was told Tuesday.

Dr. Garth Walther, pathologist at Victoria General Hospital, told Mr. Justice Harry McKay and a jury that Wray, 53, of 1296 Palmer Close, had a four-inch deep wound in his chest.

He was testifying at the trial of Curtis William Christie, 19, of 1303 Gladstone, accused of murder punishable by life imprisonment.

Dr. Walther said such a wound would cause death in minutes "four or five, a maximum of 10."

In testimony during first day of the trial Monday, court as told by Victoria police that last October they followed a trial of blood some 300 yards from the semi-nude body of a man lying on the sidewalk, to the door of 1303 Gladstone where Christie then lived.

In the second day of the trial, the crown introduced evidence that Wray had a blood-alcohol level of .2 per cent, twice the level at which a person's driving ability would be impaired.

Several witnesses testified Tuesday that both Wray and Christie had been drinking on Thanksgiving Day last Oct. 14, the evening before Wray's body was found on a sidewalk at Fernwood and Grant in the early hours of the following morning.

Donald Charles McCrae, an admitted heroin addict and trafficker testifying Tuesday under protection of the Canada Evidence Act, said he lent Christie a knife similar to one introduced as evidence at the trial. Both men had been at the Century Inn beer parlor.

He said Christie "wanted to go roll a drunk, a wino, to get some money."

Christie, he said, "nodded" in the direction of an older man in the beer parlor as the target. Later, he said, they left together.

Under cross-examination by Doug Christie, representing the accused, McCrae admitted he was selling and using heroin that night, that "to a certain degree" use of heroin confuses the memory about times and places and agreed that at the preliminary hearing he testified that Christie said he wanted to "collect" some money.

Ernest Ingraham, landlord of the rooming house at where Christie had lived, said he found a "rather unusual" stain on the front door which was a "darkish brown color" about nine inches by six inches when he visited the house Oct. 15.

The crown's case in the trial, which is expected to last all this week, is being presented by Dermot Owen-Flood and Nicholas Lang.

SCHOOL NAME CHANGED

Belmont-Fisher Secondary School will be renamed Belmont Secondary School.

Announcement of the new name of the Jacklin Rd. school was made at a Sooke school board meeting Tuesday.

A new library being built to link the school's two main buildings, and due for completion next month, will be named the Elizabeth Fisher Memorial Library.

Belmont-Fisher was formed in the summer of 1973, when Belmont senior high and Elizabeth Fisher junior high were combined under one principal.

In other business the board: —Approved a Grade 12 physical fitness course for Belmont for the fall, providing school facilities are adequate and enrolment high enough.

—Decided to allow a public question period of up to half an hour at board meetings, starting at 9 p.m.

—Agreed to apply to the education department for permission to start a pre-apprenticeship training program in automotive mechanics at Belmont in September, 1976.

ITU-Paper Negotiations To Continue

Negotiations are continuing under the direction of the B.C. Labor Relations Board in a first contract dispute between the Victorian newspaper and members of the International Typographical Union.

Ed Fairbairn, president of the ITU which is seeking a first contract for production employees at the newspaper, said a negotiation meeting was held Tuesday in Vancouver and further negotiation sessions are scheduled soon.

He said he could not comment on the meeting Tuesday which was held under the direction of Brian Williams, deputy registrar of the LRB.

The meeting was the first in several months. The ITU members walked off the job for three days earlier this month, claiming that the layout of union members constituted a lockout.

Ford Ups Gas Prices

WASHINGTON — President Ford announced Tuesday night that he will add a second $1-a-barrel to the tariff on imported oil, thus increasing its price that much, effective June 1.

As with the first $1, which he tacked on in February, this second one will raise the price of gasoline, home heating oil and other fuels an average of about a cent and a half a gallon — a total of about three cents for the $2 combined.

The president said in a nationally televised address that he was acting in the absence of any meaningful energy action by the Democratic Congress.

"The Congress cannot drift, dawdle and debate forever with America's future," he said. His energy program, the president told the voters, "is still the only total energy program there is, and 'I will not stand here idly while the United States of America runs out of gas.'"

The $2 increase in oil import fees takes the president about a fourth of the way toward the goal he set in January: an increase of about 40 per cent in the price of oil in this country.

The other three-quarters, under the president's plan, would come essentially from taking present price control off domestic oil.

Ford said he will submit a decontrol plan to Congress "shortly after it returns" next week. Either house of Congress could block such a plan by simple resolution and majority vote within five legislative days of its submission, and Democrats in both houses have such resolutions poised.

Meanwhile in Paris, U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger campaigned today for global action to back up the Ford move to cut down U.S. dependence on oil imports.

Kissinger went before the 24-nation Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development with details of his trillion dollar program to free the world's industrialized nations of energy vulnerability.

The secretary unveiled the broad outlines of the plan Tuesday in a speech to the leaders of the 18 industrialized, oil-importing nations in the international energy agency.

In his IEA speech, Kissinger offered a major concession to bring the oil-exporting states back to the international energy talks that collapsed in Paris last March.

The talks broke down when the industrialized nations refused to consider demands for negotiating marketing arrangements for other raw materials in addition to petroleum.

Kissinger said the U.S. is now at least willing to hear arguments in favor of discussing the marketing of other products, such as coffee, sugar and wheat.

Diplomatic observers said the energy talks may be resumed within a month if the developing countries accept Kissinger's offer.

DEATH SENTENCE IMPOSED

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)

A British Columbia Supreme Court jury of 11 men and one woman deliberated a little more than three hours Tuesday before finding Elery Stephen Long, 30, of Delta, guilty of murder punishable by death.

The jury made no recommendation for clemency and Mr. Justice F. Craig Monroe sentenced Long to hang Aug. 12 for the fatal shooting last Nov. 2 of Staff-Sgt. Ronald McKay of the Delta Municipal Police Force.

In his 2½-hour charge to the jury — culminating the five-day trial — Mr. Justice Monroe said Staff-Sgt. McKay was engaged in his lawful police duties when he was killed by a shotgun blast while investigating at Long's home a complaint by a local gas station.

Witnesses said Long, driving a black Lincoln Continental, earlier got into a dispute at the gas station, grabbed a customer by the throat and broke a window in his car.

Indian Occupiers Dwindle

Indians maintained their occupation of department of Indian affairs (DIA) offices in Nanaimo this morning although the occupying group has been reduced to about 15, a DIA spokesman said today.

The occupation began Monday morning when about 50 Indians said they would remain until the office is closed permanently.

Bill Cook, district supervisor of the Nanaimo office, said he is still waiting for word from South Island district Indians on whether they support closure of the office before taking any action.

Many of the Indians occupying the Nanaimo office are from the West Coast District, which is administered by an Indian-run office in Port Alberni.

NEW LEBANESE LEADER NAMED

BEIRUT (UPI) — President Suleiman Franjeh bowed to Moslem demands today and named veteran politician Rashid Karami premier-designate, instructing him to form a new government to quell Lebanon's worst crisis since the 1958 civil war.

The appointment followed an outbreak of clashes between Palestinian guerrillas and rightwing militiamen that shattered their fifth truce in a week of bloody street fighting. Franjeh met his one-time political enemy this morning at the presidential palace and asked him to form Lebanon's second government in five days. Karami headed the government seven times previously.

A presidential spokesman said Karami "will start his consultations as of Thursday morning to form a new cabinet."

The announcement came as Beirut citizens generally ignored appeals to return to work. Most city areas were deserted and only a few shops open.

In his first statement following his appointment as premier-designate, Karami called on all armed gangs to quit the streets and for the removal of all barricades erected during more than a week of fighting that took 85 lives.

"Only with love can we build Lebanon," he said. "We must put an end to anything which causes us to fight amongst ourselves."

Karami said he will work for the intensification of joint Lebanese-Palestinian security patrols, "in agreement with all parties concerned," to restore peace and remove all the causes of tension.

He confirmed he would start consultations on forming a cabinet Thursday.

All-Party Group 'A Sham'—McGeer

Independent M.L.A. Pat McGeer was reprimanded today for showing up late at an all-party public accounts committee meeting called to review B.C. Hydro operations.

And the Vancouver-Point Grey member retaliated by calling the all-party committee "just a sham."

McGeer said Premier Barrett is "damn hypocritical" when he says the opposition is allowed in-depth analysis of Crown corporation activities through the public accounts committee.

He called for an in-depth analysis of the Columbia River treaty an analysis which is impossible if the committee can't grill at least the B.C. Hydro chairman, Dr. David Cass-Beggs, and several of the power authority's board of directors.

The MLA didn't get a chance to ask one question of the Hydro official in attendance, E. L. Beard, manager in charge of Hydro finances. The committee decided to adjourn after an hour despite protest by McGeer, who arrived 40 minutes late. He said he missed a plane reservation.

Committee chairman Alex Fraser (S.C.-Cariboo) voted with the NDP committee members to adjourn the meeting. His benchmark, Newell Morrison (S.C.-Victoria) and McGeer voted against adjournment.

After the meeting Fraser admitted he was not satisfied the committee had covered all aspects of B.C. Hydro. He said he had invited Dr. Cass-Beggs to appear before the committee with several support staff last Friday but the chairman was unable to attend because he is in Europe.

Beard, who answered questions put to him by the committee, dealing mainly with last year's annual report, re-

Audio-Visual Report Rouses Library Board

A staff report on audio-visual services in the Greater Victoria Public Library was termed "angry, frustrated and contemptuous of the board" by a library board member Tuesday.

Edward Ward-Harris said he objected to the first paragraph of the report, which was prepared at the request of the board.

"It's contemptuous and it just isn't true," he said at the board's regular meeting.

"I think the staff has to be disabused of the idea... that you can have any damned toy you want."

The report, which defends the audio-visual services offered by the library, starts off:

"The day has long since passed when the sole function of a public library was the storage and circulation of books."

"Any move which would discontinue records, films, tapes and other modern, valid sources of information as a necessary part of a library's collection, would be a giant stride backwards."

The board in 1974 decided to stop buying prints for the library's art lending collection and last month decided to halt the art lending service altogether.

The board agreed Tuesday that a special meeting should be held in a few weeks to discuss the dropping of the art service and the future of the audio-visual record, film and tape-lending service as well.

Ward-Harris said he thought the board should eliminate all audio-visual services if it cannot afford to give proper service without charging fees for rentals.

"If the board cannot afford to give complete service in all directions, it should come back to giving a very good service in books," he said.

Gov't to Control Brewery Quality

B.C. brewers may have to start measuring up to standards set by the government for provincially-grown ingredients in beer-making.

The legislature's public accounts committee was told Tuesday by Liquor Administration Branch general manager Vic Woodland the LAB is examining the hops situation but had not yet considered grains.

He said the branch keeps close watch on the percentage of B.C. products that go into wines and cider.

This year 80 per cent of products used by B.C. wineries is home-grown, and 100 per cent of apples pressed for cider are from orchards within the province, Woodland said.

The LAB has been steadily increasing the percentage of B.C. products in local wine, he said, but the upper limit is probably between 80 and 90 per cent.

Woodland said the LAB works closely with the agriculture department in determining the amount of B.C.

input and in recent years the wine industry has used a significant quantity of the surpluses in the B.C. fruit industry.

Asked if the same criteria is placed on hops and grains used in beer and hard liquor produced in B.C., Woodland said the LAB is looking into the situation with hops.

Woodland also told the committee:

"Burglaries in liquor stores are on the increase, according to the most recent LAB statistics. The board is insured by Dale and Co. and has been for many years."

"The new listing and delisting policy which will be included in up-coming legislation will open up LAB shelves to a far greater variety of products."

Kiosks in liquor stores, now operated by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, will be taken over by the LAB and the blind people operating these outlets will become employees of the branch.

DANISH LINKS SOUGHT

By DONALD MacDONALD

Special to The Times

COPENHAGEN — Canada's wish for closer ties with the European Economic Community was the central issue in talks today between Danish Prime Minister Anker Jørgensen and Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

Trudeau was seeking support for Canada's general aim of what he calls a "contractual link" with the Common Market. He was also seeking an assurance that Denmark would be on Canada's side in a forthcoming critical meeting of the Common Market's Council of Ministers, political bosses of the Community.

Last week, the commission of the European Economic Community, the executive arm, made a proposal it is going to put before the Council of Ministers that would, in effect, set up a joint Canada-Common Market negotiating committee.

This committee would be charged with suggesting specific areas in which economic and commercial exchanges between Canada and the Market could take place. This could involve investment in Canada by Market countries, exchanges of technology and scientific information, joint business ventures by European and Canadian private companies and a general increase in trade between Canada and Europe.

The prime minister arrived last night in a Canadian Armed Forces jet at the start of a European visit that will include the NATO summit conference in Brussels and a visit to Common Market member country Luxembourg.

In two previous European visits last spring and the preceding fall, Trudeau visited seven of the nine Common Market countries, seeking support for his contractual link from France, Belgium, Holland, West Germany, Italy, Great Britain and Ireland.

The Denmark and Luxembourg visits complete this diplomatic offensive.

A Canadian diplomat here said Denmark has been "not unsympathetic" to Canada's drive for closer relations with the Common Market.

Since 1870, Danes have been emigrating to Canada, with the peaks in emigration coming around the turn of the century, between the world wars and just after the Second World War. About 100,000 first or second-generation Danes now live in Canada, mainly in British Columbia and Alberta, with about 15,000 in Ontario.

As social and economic conditions improved steadily in Denmark, emigration fell off to last year's low of only 573 immigrants. Figures so far this year are running below this rate on an annual basis.

Firemen Sartorially Sombre...

For a while Tuesday, Victoria city council's weekly caucus meeting turned into a fashion show — with a city fireman as the mannequin and aldermen as the plainly unenthusiastic buyers. Object of the exercise was to demonstrate the new-style uniform which Victoria firefighters want to adopt in place of their traditional military-type outfits, but council members tacitly suggested the designers go back to the drawing board.

The proposed new uniform for workday use features charcoal trousers and matching shirt worn open-neck style. Over that goes a show-erproof jacket with crest.

The present peaked cap would be scrapped, because the firefighters claim it just doesn't go with today's longer hairstyles.

Other aldermen seemed to think the design was copied from American TV.

Ald. Sam Bawlf, who seldom wears a tie himself while on city business, suggested the general effect would be smarter with a tie and a lighter-colored shirt.

There were no rumblings of discontent, however, when council was shown the proposed single-breasted blazer which the firefighters envisage as their new dress uniform — as one of them explained, "for funerals, the fireman's ball, etc."

... While Policemen Want to Go Casual

By HOI-YIN DER

Times Staff

Open neck, short-sleeved shirts with matching pants are what the Victoria city police want for their uniform this summer.

The men have unanimously approved the uniform, said Patrick Braiden, president of the Victoria Police Union.

He said the uniform has been modelled for the Victoria chiefs of police and the B.C. Police Commission, and the union soon will make a formal application to the police board.

He said the recommendations are based solely on practicality.

"We are probably the last police force in B.C. wearing the heavy tunic and cross strap... it's simply impractical, especially when we get into a fight and the other guy grabs on to your cross strap."

Braiden said when confined in a long-sleeved shirt, tie and cross strap during the summer, any type of energetic work on the streets easily causes excessive perspiration.

"Under such conditions, it's impossible to give top performance," he said.

Braiden said the final decision lies with the B.C. Police Commission, which is planning to standardize police uniforms throughout B.C. A decision is expected by July or August, he said.

Gonzales Hill Radar Idea Raises Static

Despite plenty of static at a meeting with Victoria city council on Tuesday, federal ministry of transport officials received a crystal-clear signal that the city does not want a 75-foot radar tower erected on Gonzales Hill.

The proposed tower would be part of a navigation system to guide shipping between the southwest coast of Vancouver Island and Vancouver Harbor, planned for completion by the summer of 1977.

Aldermen told the federal officials they sympathize fully with the aim of making hazardous waters safer by electronic surveillance, but they want to see the greatest care taken in selection of a site for the Victoria-area tower.

Gonzales Hill is such an esthetically important landmark on the city's coastline that if at all possible another location should be considered, they stressed.

Capt. David Johns, the ministry's vessel traffic management supervisor, said eight other sites including Triad Island, Discovery Island, Mount Douglas and Mount Tolmie had been studied but found unsuitable for various technical reasons in relation to topography.

But council members suggested two other sites in Victoria — the city-owned water tower and the Camosack Manor highrise, both in the Rockland Area — and Ald. Alf Hood pointed out that Triangle Mountain in Metchoin had been the site of a wartime observation post.

The CTC's Rubber Stamp

Air fare increases by Air Canada, CP Air and Pacific Western Airlines went into effect Tuesday, as the Canadian Transport Commission blithely gave its stamp of approval to the hikes without any real investigation into their merit. Not that the public should be surprised. In the past, the air transport committee of the CTC has always been ready with its rubber stamp as soon as the formalities were dispensed with. Even more galling, this was the first time the CTC allowed public hearings on the proposed increases, yet they appear to have been only exercises in public relations.

Increases averaging between 10 and 14 per cent were to become effective May 19. Because of the subsequent public hearings the hikes were postponed until May 26, at which time they were to take effect at midnight whether the hearings were finished or not. Locally, it now means fares between Victoria and Vancouver rose from $16 to $21 — a 31 per cent increase, as Mayor Peter Pollen noted. In his letter of complaint to the CTC Pollen also pointed out the current fare was increased only last July by 24 per cent so the new proposal represents a 62 per cent increase in less than one year. On a return fare basis, all the recent increases would represent a 110-per cent increase over the 1973 fare. All the mayor's points are well taken. Yet even facts and figures from a well known municipal leader don't appear to sway the CTC. So much for Joe Public.

But evidence is piling up, evidence that can't be ignored. A study commissioned by the Consumers Association of Canada claims Air Canada was encountering excessive costs because it had over-invested in aircraft and hired too many employees. Because of its size the national airline should be enjoying economies of scale.

Costs per passenger mile should be lower.

Instead, they are higher than Canadian Pacific which has only about one fifth of the planes Air Canada possesses. Nor did the study find any evidence that Air Canada was burdened with uneconomic routes or low fares, as claimed by the crown corporation.

Even airline officials admit that economy class passengers are subsidizing first class fares by a large amount. If the airline is to make a profit on the first class lounge it would have to charge 80 per cent more for the premium ticket rather than the current 50 per cent surcharge. This is patently ridiculous. Air Canada has two choices: up the first class fares to the point of profitability or turf out the first class section altogether.

As for Canadian Pacific — a much more efficient operation according to the study — it could get along with an increase of less than half what it received, says management specialist and political economist Myron Gordon who wrote the consumer report. The CTC decisions, of course, have always been as transparent as the air through which the planes fly. As a regulatory agency it is a bust; as a friend to those who it is supposed to control it is an eminent success. It should be disbanded and replaced by an organization with some teeth.

One study neither proves or disproves the validity of the current increases. But isn't it sad that a private agency — the Consumers Association of Canada — has to present the other side rather than a government agency with the public interest in mind?

Clearly Air Canada needs a thorough investigation into its bureaucratic structure and financial operations. The study said the airline could earn a return equal to its costs of capital with lower increases than it was asking. No fare increase would be needed if costs were kept to that reasonably required to meet the demand for service. Such allegations are worth investigating since the public funds the airline through taxes and increased fares.

Once again though, Canadians must shell out because a government agency is not prepared to investigate the consumer's point of view let alone defend it. These air fare increases are inflationary at a time when the government is preaching restraint. But the CTC marches on to its own distant drummer. It is out of step with most Canadians and should be replaced with a regulatory body that reflects the national interest.

An Introduction

Resources Minister Robert Williams says the Nishga Indians' decision to close roads on their lands next week, shutting down 80 per cent of Canadian Cellulose logging operation, is a matter between the company and the Nishgas.

CanCel president Ronald Gross says his company, owned 79 per cent by the B.C. government, is the man in the middle, and that the Indians' real beef is with Victoria. It seems an introduction is in order.

Bob Williams, Ron Gross, meet Frank Calder, New Democratic Party MLA for Atlin and founding president of the Nishga Tribal Council. He has an office in the legislative buildings and lives in Victoria. Give him a call. Maybe he can help you both.

Gov't-Labor Battle in Quebec

QUEBEC — The Bourassa government is moving fast and furiously this spring to splash legislation on a series of smoldering labor problems which have burst into flame.

The government appears to have won its gamble, in a brinkmanship confrontation with construction unions, and is finally moving toward settlement of one of the longest industrial strikes in the province's history and is acting on strike-backed complaints about working conditions in the asbestos industry.

The impetus for the great spring clean-up appears to have come from the hard-hitting report of the Cliche inquiry into construction violence.

The report so far has sparked four pieces of legislation in the Quebec national assembly, two aimed at controlling unions and two designed to affect companies. Besides documenting corruption and violence in the construction industry, however, the Cliche report points out, in a roundabout way, that Premier Robert Bourassa's government has not acted in the past to have the law respected.

Violated the Law

In some cases, in fact, the government, through Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer or top-ranking aides, participated in under-the-table deals which violated the law in the construction field.

Faced with reports of decaying credibility, the Bourassa administration has selected portions of the Cliche report for implementation, emphasizing a law and order image in the process.

As the province's union movement became unsettled by the Cliche criticisms of some unions' methods and by premature news reports fed by leaks of "anti-union" chapters, Bourassa and Justice Minister Jerome Choquette became more and more resolute.

The justice minister announced he would put a policeman on virtually every construction site in the province, with special attention to Montreal where there were reports of union "goons" forcing workers off the job with threats and violence.

Premier Bourassa's first legislative actions in the wake of the Cliche report dealt with putting four construction unions into trusteeship and barring criminals from union posts, as well as requiring workers to prove their innocence when charged with urging, supporting or participating in an illegal strike.

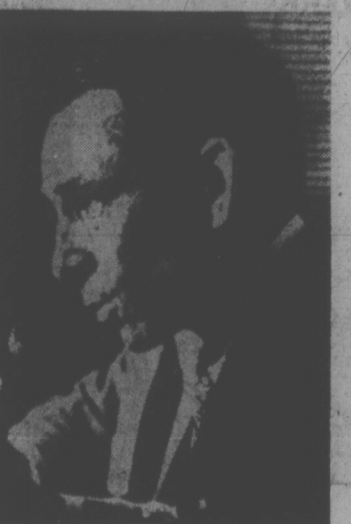

The 275,000-member Quebec Federation of Labor, criticized by the Cliche report as the villain on the union scene, called a one-day "study session" a week ago.

Obviously, it was to protest the lack of a settlement in a strike at United Aircraft (now Pratt and Whitney) just south of Montreal, now in its 17th month.

What virtually everyone assumed, however, was that the study session was in fact a protest against the Bourassa government's handling of the Cliche report.

But the QFL, its leadership weakened by the Cliche revelations, managed to rout only about 55,000 workers from their jobs. None walked out at construction sites.

Inside postal workers, some Hydro-

JEAN COURNOYER
Quebec labor minister

Quebec employees and City of Montreal blue-collar workers walked out in what amounted to a flop by comparison to the QFL's prediction that 100,000 persons would participate.

The government won a round, thanks partly to a strategically-timed announcement of a conciliation report aimed at settling the United Aircraft strike. Labor Minister Cournoyer said the report, prepared by one of his personal troubleshooters, recommended a formula for indexing wages and a protocol for 976 of the 1,009 strikers to return to their jobs.

The conciliator's report was not, of course, a final settlement but represented the firmest government action since a national assembly committee heard both sides in the strike during public hearings last October.

It helped to knock out whatever wind was left in the sails of the QFL and its study session plans.

In the process of scraping away at the long-encrusted problems in the construction industry, the government also is moving in the province's asbestos mining business.

With 3,500 asbestos workers in mines and processing plants on strike since March in a protest over working conditions, the government has announced it will rewrite the laws and regulations concerning permitted pollution levels.

And, as Cournoyer announced recently, asbestos workers who contract asbestosis or other lung diseases will be compensated.

Since 1951, a government regulation has required miners' annual health checkups simply to show no evidence of tuberculosis, allowing thousands of men with other lung diseases to continue working in the mines. The reason the government has chosen to act in the spring of 1975 after years of inaction appears to stem from a combination of factors.

Constructive Cleanup

The construction cleanup comes after the year-long Cliche inquiry, including widely-publicized hearings, and as deadlines begin to tighten the construction schedule for the 1976 Olympic Games.

The medical profession has added its voice to those of striking asbestos miners in a call for action in that field.

And about 60 workers stormed the United Aircraft plant where they held 10 hostages until riot police clubbed their way in after a three-hour siege.

The combined chorus of complaints, coupled with a public opinion survey last year which disturbed Liberals by showing a plummeting popularity, has spurred the government to act. Although no election is expected before 1976 or 1977, the newly-elected chief of the Ralliement Creditiste, Camil Samson, has been putting two and two together in his own social credit style. He concludes the flurry of activity from the Bourassa government indicates an election this fall.

It seems unlikely, however, that the repercussions from legislation resulting from the Cliche report will be sufficient to under control that soon.

"... Schlessinger is gonna sharpen it and I want you to shake it at the Warsaw Pact countries ..."

Beef Quality

While visiting in Victoria, I read the article by George Oake, on page four of your issue of April 26, a report on the president of the National Farmers' Union, regarding the quality of beef being sold in the supermarkets in Victoria.

I also made a tour of supermarkets in Victoria and have to report that my opinions are entirely opposite to those of Roy Atkinson of the NFU.

I found the quality of the beef product very good and certainly none of the product I saw was from cow animals, as you stated in your article.

Not only was the quality good, but the general cutting and trimming procedures were good and the consumer was not paying for any waste.

I cannot make any comment on prices, although they seemed to be in relation to other areas in Canada, all things being considered.

I purchased beef for my own use and its eating quality was of the best.

It is very disturbing that you would print an article without further checking the facts — especially at a time in Canada, when we are at all levels, attempting to correct the income of the primary producer — in this case the farmer and to worsen or distort the facts you throw a ringier like this.

An inaccurate report like this does nothing for the farm producer, the processor, or the consumer. — H. M. Fox, Calgary, Alberta.

Wonderful Tea

Hats off to the women's committee of the Victoria Symphony who held such a wonderful tea at Royal Roads on Saturday, May 12. The hospitality to all was a real highlight. The refreshments were delicious and plentiful. The ladies in their old-time costumes were a sight to behold as they helped to pass the refreshments and pour tea and will be long remembered for their efforts to assist the symphony. — Mrs. William Little, 1450 Beach Drive.

Inflated Currency

Upon reading your editorial The Uncertain Dollar of May 20, I thought that it might be of some interest to your readers to say that about 1930 or thereabouts, a technocrat looked into a Canada Year Book and found that Canada had inflated its paper currency by what was then a good amount.

He wrote a letter to a Vancouver paper and in two or three days after his letter appeared, the exchange rate of 10 per cent in favor of Canadian money over American money was reversed and it became 10 per cent in favor of American money. — D.A.D., Victoria.

Bus Blues

Do you live north of the Town and Country shopping centre, on Douglas Street? If you do, you would realize the terrible bus system there is, once you are north of this point.

There are six bus runs that leave town (Victoria), Monday through Friday, four that run on Saturdays. The first bus leaving Victoria on a weekday is at 8:20 a.m., and the last bus leaving Victoria at night is at 5:30 p.m. Are the drivers scared of the dark?

BUSES
... when will Saanich get more?

These bus runs are not part of the B.C. Hydro bus line either. These are run by Pacific Commuter.

Recently on East Saanich Road, near Mount Newton X Road, a series of houses for the elderly were built. Some of the houses haven't been purchased yet. This could be because of the poor transportation system. Not many of these people have cars. They rely on buses and taxis. (To go from there to Victoria by taxi, would probably cost $5.) How are they to get around if there isn't a reliable bus system?

There are no signs up, anywhere, that are visible, that say "bus stop," so I suppose when you see the bus coming, you stand in the middle of the road and flag it down. Then when you miss that bus, depending on the time, you have at least 1½ hours to wait until the next bus comes.

And what happened to Sunday? It's been many years since things were all closed on Sundays. Even grocery stores are starting to open up on Sunday.

Isn't the world supposed to be economizing? Taking the bus? How is someone who works at 8 a.m. downtown, supposed to get to work on time if the bus leaving Sidney at 7:05 doesn't get to town until 8 a.m.? Not very reliable? Right on! Think about it! — Karen Speed, Student of Mount Newton Junior Secondary.

Talking Turkey

B.C. turkey growers have really got it made. They are as close to utopia as they can reasonably expect to get.

The reason for all this good fortune stems from an announcement made by the B.C. Turkey Marketing Board a few days ago. The conventional method of grading and paying for turkeys has for all practical purposes disappeared. The marketing board is prepared to pay the grade A price for all birds, provided that no more than 35 per cent of the total marketed at any one time fail to meet the grade A standard. This is almost an absolute guarantee that the grower will get the grade A price for his entire flock. He will get a lower price if and only if more than 35 per cent fail to meet the grade A standard. This shouldn't happen to a man who knows his business. The new scheme is also an absolute guarantee that turkey prices will go higher — probably much higher.

Buying turkeys, or anything else for that matter, with little or no regard for quality is one thing. Selling those same birds is a horse with a different milk wagon. The board can control the buying but not the selling. No buyer large or small in his right mind will buy the off-grade turkeys unless they are offered at the proper grades and price. The spread between the grade A bird and grade C can be considerable. The price for old hens, old toms, culls, etc., will also be substantially below the grade A price at which most, if not all of the birds were brought. The board can recover its cost only by upping the price of the A's. It seems totally unfair that such a neat scheme should be confined to a relatively small group of people. Perhaps some of the other B.C. marketing boards should give the plan some study. As a start the egg board might consider paying the grade A large price so long as no more than four eggs in each dozen were below the grade A large standard. Perhaps it would be necessary to include a safeguard — i.e. all four of the off-grade eggs must at least be edible. — C. McCreath, Cobble Hill.

Public Executions

Your columnist Russell Baker's suggestion that federal executions should take place in public is an excellent one. If Canada had to execute me, I would much prefer it to be in the open air, where I could get a last look at the blue sky and green grass, and hear the birds in the trees and feel the wind in my face. It is a gruesome task to die in the dim recesses of a prison surrounded by the hypocritical faces of officialdom.

Crowds would have to be limited because the execution of any "famous name" criminal would draw such numbers from all over the country that monumental traffic jams would result. Fees from viewers and television could be used to set up a fund to recompense in part those the criminal has hurt.

There is good reasoning too, in the eye for an eye argument, making the punishment fit the crime. Except that a person who has knocked down and broken the arm and hip of an old lady in snatching her bag, would not have similar treatment, but would receive an equal amount of pain in another quarter, besides working until he had made a full monetary compensation.

Incidentally, the old fashioned method of hanging which was really death by strangulation rather than breaking the neck as at present, is really as merciful a way of killing a person as any. Unconsciousness is instantaneous as soon as the supply of oxygen is cut off from the lungs, though death does not occur until quite a time later. — J.P. Thornton, 943 Wilmer Street.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of May 28, 1915

NANAIMO — The lives of 22 miners employed at the Reserve mine of the Western Fuel Company were snuffed out yesterday by an explosion which occurred late in the afternoon. So far eight of the bodies have been recovered. Thirteen men were rescued uninjured, but one of the survivors is injured so seriously he is not expected to live. From the statements of survivors as to the force of the devastating blast which swept through the tunnels of the recently-opened mine, it seems wonderful that any of the men should have escaped.

Britain Struggles To Stay Afloat ...

By BERNARD D. NOSSITER

LONDON — Britons are still paying their taxes, driving on the left, queuing up at the bookmakers, buying pints in the pub and admiring tulips in the parks.

There are no barricades in the streets, the guard still changes daily at Buckingham Palace without incident and Harold Wilson is very much the prime minister.

It has become necessary to report these things because some of the media, on both sides of the Atlantic, have begun to picture the place in the grip of anarchy, bankruptcy or Red-led trade unions. Eric Sevareid's CBS warning of a Britain "drifting slowly toward ... ungovernability" was splashed over the front page of the Times of London and gave the paper's editor a peg to promote his favorite hobby horse, a coalition government.

The sound and fury got so bad that Wilson went on television and radio to assure the nation not much has happened since he went off to Jamaica two weeks ago. If anyone doubted it, he made clear he likes his job, will stay in it regardless of how the country votes on the Common Market next month and wouldn't dream of sharing power with other parties.

Like any office-holding politician, he was much too bland to satisfy the gnawing unease here and far too ready to blame the press — "rushing around like wet hens as though some devastating crisis has hit the country" — for the steady lack of confidence that has sapped this country for the last dozen years.

He hinted that he is ready to make one sacrifice to his business critics, the head of Tony Benn, the industry minister. The national press here has painted Benn as a Socialist villain because he thinks (like many others) that Britain's long term problems flow from a lack of investment in new plant and machinery. Benn has infuriated Conservatives by insisting that the government will now demand a share whenever it puts money into a bankrupt or backward concern.

Wilson will keep the policy but probably scrap Benn. The premier spoke of Benn with thinly veiled contempt as having "many of the qualities of a great old testament prophet without a beard who talks about the New Jerusalem."

For all his soothing blandness, Wilson was justified in arguing for some perspective on Britain's crisis. This is not to say that there is no deep and genuine problem here. Inflation is impoverishing the middle class and is now the worst in the industrialized world. Retail prices are 21.2 per cent above a year ago and climbing.

The rising prices of manufactured goods make them harder to sell abroad and the country's balance of payments deficit is running at more than five per cent of its income. The government has tried to close some of this gap by letting the floating pound sink downward. It now buys 7.6 per cent less in foreign currencies than it did a year ago and most of this drop has taken place in just two weeks.

But there is a limit to this approach. Britain must import most of its raw materials and half its food. As the pound sinks, the cost of these imports goes up and inflation worsens.

What is interesting and important is that Wilson publicly agrees with most Conservative critics that galloping wages are the chief source of inflation. Settlements are now running over 30 per cent and the seamen have just asked for nearly 30 per cent.

What is of comfort, however cold, is that there is nothing mysterious about Britain's inflation and it is caused by a force that is within the government's control. The boom in oil and other raw materials prices was generated abroad. But wages are set in Coventry, Sheffield, Birmingham and London.

There are three possible policy approaches to this, and Wilson's cabinet has advocates of each. Benn and the other leftists want to run a "siege economy," throwing up ramparts against imported goods. This wouldn't do much about wages but is supposed to solve the payments deficit.

The trouble is that other countries might retaliate with barriers against British goods. Anyway, the protection would spare British industry from competition and further reduce the incentive to resist outsized wage demands. But Wilson has flatly said that import controls were no answer, leaving the door open only for curbs on textiles and a few other foreign products that he claimed were subsidized.

The most direct way of curbing wage increases is with direct controls and some of Wilson's right-wingers believe they are inevitable. The trouble is that Wilson won two elections last year promising that he would not reintroduce controls. Prime Minister Edward Heath tried them and he is now a Conservative back bench.

It is at just this point that the "ungovernable" thesis takes on some reality. Controls won't work if unions flout them and Britain's unions, whether led by Communists or Social Democrats, have insisted they will not give up their reason for being by accepting curbs. But if the price of wage "freedom" is several million unemployed, both the unions and Wilson may yet sing another tune.

For now, Wilson has opted for the third policy choice, deflating demand and creating unemployment by a mix of tax increases, spending cuts and limits on the growth in the supply of money. In many ways, this is a remarkable decision for a Labor government. Full employment has been a commitment here since William Beveridge drew up the blueprint for the welfare state more than 30 years ago. It is a genuine revolution for any government here to say that it is deliberately creating unemployment. For Labor, it amounts to heresy.

To be sure, the April budget that marked Wilson's turn is less Spartan than some of its publicists first claimed. It provided, after all, for £20 billion in deficit spending. But unemployment, now 930,000, is rising and the government is preparing another budget that will push it up even faster.

In his interview, Wilson repeatedly warned that big wage demands would force another increase in taxes and compel cuts in what the prime minister likes to call "the social wage," government spending. The left and the unions protest against this, but there is no doubt that Wilson can impose this policy if he will.

There is little reason to think he won't. His chief economic adviser is Harold Lever, a millionaire Socialist, who understands the growing anger and frustration of professionals, government officials and other middle class people whose spending power has been dramatically reduced by inflation. Up to now, Lever has been saying that mass unemployment is a far more serious threat to democracy than galloping inflation. But the balance is shifting, and Wilson appears ready to respond.

The serious question is whether he will do too little. It is certainly not yet too late.

... And Who Says It Can't Be Done?

By BERNARD KAPLAN

MILAN — Italy, like the drunk on the high wire, invariably manages to stay perilously, but on its feet. It is currently performing this feat again.

Six months ago, the Italians were headed for foreign bankruptcy. Foreign experts saw virtually no hope of a reprieve. As usually happens with this country, the outsiders turned out to be wrong.

Since the beginning of the year, the Italian rate of inflation has been cut by 40 per cent, the balance of payments has moved from heavy deficit into surplus and the government has repaid more than a billion dollars in foreign loans, belying earlier expectations by practically everyone that Italy was sure to default. The lira is again a respectable currency. Industrialists, labor leaders and even politicians have displayed a sense of discipline and an ability to deal with hard realities that supposedly were alien to the Italian temperament.

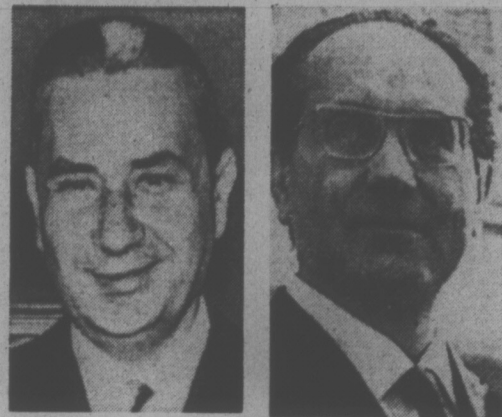

According to observers here, a key to the economic turnaround was a trailblazing agreement reached between Fiat, the giant auto manufacturer, and the metal workers' union last November. The accord enlisted the union's cooperation in planning short-time work to meet the worldwide recession in the car market. In exchange, the union — a unified body containing the main Communist, Socialist and Catholic currents in the Italian trade union movement — got a role in determining the company's marketing policy.

Considering Fiat's traditional position as the bellwether of Italian industry, the accord had a beneficial effect on the whole industrial relations scene here. It put a brake on what had been a prospect of a series of disastrous strikes. For Premier

Also Moro's coalition government, it provided a big psychological uplift at just the right time, helping along the efforts of Moro and his chief economics minister, Emilio Colombo, to reduce inflation — then running at 25 per cent a year — and to create a more stable economic atmosphere.

"The unions and management have acquired a certain amount of trust in one another; there is a mutual credibility that didn't exist before," Fiat's chairman, Giovanni Agnelli, said in an interview. "This was the fruit of the economic crisis. If it proves long-lasting — and I sincerely believe it will — the crisis may even have been worthwhile. Certainly we regard the unions as much more reasonable now. Doubtless, they would say the same about us."

Agnelli, who is also president of the Italian Confederation of Industry and probably the most influential figure on the economic scene here, described the present Italian outlook as incomparably more encouraging than a year ago. "In 1974, the country was ing a billion lira a month, we were hemorrhaging to death," he said. "A year ago, the Communists had what amounted to a lien on the government. That is gone now. There is enormous economic elasticity in Italy, as we are now in the process of proving."

None of this may sound like the same nation where more than a score of kidnappings for ransom have occurred this year, where urban crime is mounting disquietingly and where political unrest has been marked by bouts of terrorism and frequent street clashes between the far Left and neofascist Right. But Italians insist there is a vast difference between the surface chaos and inner reality of their society.

"If understatement is an English characteristic, ours is overstatement," an executive of the big Montedison Chemical Co. said. "Things in Italy never are as bad as they may seem."

In some respects, things are still bad enough. In spite of some bright spots, industrial expansion here is at a standstill and the gross national product is even expected to fall by 1 or 2 per cent in 1975. The figure for totally or partially unemployed remains at more than 1.2 million, higher than at any time since the Italian miracle erupted in the mid-1950s.

To some extent, of course, the turnaround in the country's financial posture is a result of the industrial slump. Recession has made it easier for Moro to trim imports and so improve the balance of payments. It also has helped to moderate wage demands.

But the government's own tight credit policies — despite a billion lira pumped directly into the economy in February and March — are blamed by the Left and also some businessmen for prolonging the recession, especially for discouraging capital investment, which Italy clearly will need to restore prosperity.

An Abundance of Seals

The fluffiest, most photogenic, memorable and hauntingly helpless little darling of our time is the baby harp seal. Seal pups — with their wet, black saucer-eyes and their furry, white chubby-bellies — are blobs of such concentrated cuteness they've become a symbol of wildlife's heartbreaking struggle to survive the greed and depravity of human-kind.

The international lobby of animal lovers helped too, of course. By the early '70s there were busy enemies of the Atlantic seal hunt in the U.S., U.K., Holland, Germany, France, Switzerland, Italy and South Africa — and they bombarded the Canadian government with hundreds of thousands of letters, postcards and petitions.

Defenders of the seal marched on Canadian consulates, threatened boycotts of Canadian goods. They exploited film, TV, radio, newspapers and magazines to nauseate and outrage millions with the story of the annual carnage of more than a quarter-million seals in the Gulf of St. Lawrence off the coast of Labrador.

Judging by the heat of the campaign you'd have thought the seal hunt ranked just above California grapes as a moral issue of our time, and just below Vietnam or Hiroshima.

Then, early in 1972, a government-sponsored committee of scientists and full-time animal-lovers reported that, at contemporary rates of slaughter, there would be no more one-year-old seals at all in the 2014. As the older animals died off, the harp seal would disappear forever.

Environment Minister Jack Davis promptly announced quotas — 60,000 pelts for the Norwegian vessels, 60,000 for the Canadians — for sealing along the Labrador coast, and a ban against sealing by aircraft and larger vessels throughout the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Men who walked from the shore out over the ice to club the pups could still take a total of 30,000 pelts.

Those failed to satisfy everyone. Friends of the hunters, of whom there actually were a few, felt Davis had succumbed to a lobby of schoolchildren, misinformed foreigners, rich old ladies, and slick manipulators of public opinion. And the more rabid friends of the seals saw the restrictions as a sleazy and cynical ploy to camouflage the continuing horror of the slaughter.

The controls, however, were real. They meant a reduction of at least 100,000 in the number of seal pups dying by the club each winter. It is reasonable to suppose there are now hundreds of thousands more harp seals in the Gulf and off Labrador than there would have been if the restrictions had not been in force during the past four winters.

Moreover, harp seals whelp in their fifth year. The pups who survived the winters of 1972, '73, '74 and '75 will produce their own pups in '77, '78, '79 and '80. We may not see an immediate population explosion among harp seals but we are already seeing their sudden proliferation.

The trouble is that those adorable babes turn into big, sleek, mottled, yellowish-gray adults. Sometimes, they're six feet long and weigh 400 pounds — and like a lot of people, they love seafood. They're especially fond of salmon but they also gulp up herring, mackerel, capelin, small cod, shellfish.

On Nova Scotia's eastern shore, fishermen swear that huge gray seals open the doors of their lobster traps and steal the bait. The men regard the gray seal as a bigger threat to the lobster fishery than Gulf ice. At least the ice melts or moves out to sea.

Gray seals often get to be nine feet long and weight up to 900 lbs. A fisheries officer in Halifax says they tear through fishermen's nets "like a freight train through paper."

The least known irony of the great harp seal furore is that, all the time it was clattering around the world, Canadian fisheries officers were quietly putting to sea to bushwack gray seals with high-powered rifles. And now, the federal government has one set of rules to protect harp seals and another set to kill gray seals.

The situation, of course, is not as absurd as it may sound. Gray seals are more than a nuisance, and the government believes the "culling program" is essential to the health of the fishing industry. In any event, the seals are winning the war. Their population, despite steady culling for ten years, has doubled to 20,000.

A full-grown gray seal may eat two tons of fish a year. A mere harp seal probably packs in one ton, but there may now be close to 1.5 million of them off eastern Canada.

"Seals are at the end of the food line like human beings," says a fisheries officer in Prince Edward Island, "and the amount of fish consumed by seals probably at least equals the amount caught by fishermen."

The Fisheries Council of Canada makes the same point: Off the East Coast, the seals now catch as much fish as the entire Canadian and offshore fleets. And meanwhile, as everyone is nervously aware, fish stocks get smaller by the year.

How big a seal herd do we want? Should we try to control its size? How? Can the Gulf support a commercial fishery plus two million seals? Three million seals? And, finally, who's to get the fish: seals or people?

The Fisheries Council, a lot of fishermen and government officers want the federal government to abandon the restrictions of '72 and re-open the seal hunt in the Gulf. The whole steamy, old controversy may soon spread round the world again, and, once more, that fluffy, beseeching ball of white fur and black eyes will shine as the animal world's ubiquitous cover girl.

Food Aid for Haiti Subsidiary Closure Claimed Tax Dodge

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — The United States has promised to feed 150,000 of Haiti's famine-stricken peasants, so desperate they have eaten the seeds intended for this year's crops, a U.S. AID official said.

He said the AID food would be supplied to families living in the worst famine region, the northwest, for the next five months. Haiti had requested, through U.S. Ambassador Heyward Isham, enough food to sustain 350,000 persons for five months, the official said.

Haiti is suffering from famine this year because of a long drought. The government declared a food emergency May 20.

A relief team consisting of AID, CARE, Catholic Relief Services, Church World Services and the Haitian-American Community Help Organization is co-ordinated by Dr. Victor LaRoche of the Haitian Red Cross.

OTTAWA (CP) — Northern Electric Co. Ltd. has screamed foul over suggestions that it closed its Ottawa subsidiary, Microsystems, International Ltd., to get a tax break.

The Citizen in an article on the closing of the producer of integrated circuits, quoted Electronics Communicator magazine: "The end came when the temptation to set off Microsystems's tax losses against the soaring profits of Northern Electric became too great to resist."

The decision to close the six-year-old company was announced in March. Sales had grown from $5.9 million in 1969 to $29.3 million last year, and two-thirds of last year's sales were exports.

Roy Cottier, vice-president of Montreal-based Northern Electric, a Bell Canada subsidiary, responded to the Citizen articles with a letter saying they were "largely based upon rumor, gossip, half truth and some totally unsupported statements."

The reasons for closing the company have been questioned in Parliament because the government had invested $36.7 million in the operation.

Cottier said Northern Electric cannot subtract the loss of a subsidiary from its own profits.

He also said Northern Electric has guaranteed bank loans of Microsystems and has invested $28.4 million of its own money in the subsidiary.

Northern Electric is negotiating with the government on repayment of a $6.7-million loan.

A rough calculation suggests that Northern Electric will have put something close to $50 million into Microsystems if, or when, it repays the government loan, Cottier said.

He did not elaborate on the tax status of Northern's investment in Microsystems.

Cottier said there were two reasons for closing the company. "The company was technically insolvent; it could not pay its debts and had not source of further funding."

"It was one of the smaller companies in a highly competitive industry which had a declining market, with all the attendant pressures of price erosion and squeezed margins. This meant one thing — further losses for Microsystems."

The 1973 annual report for Microsystems said the government had agreed to provide a total of $47.55 million in grants and loans to Microsystems for spending before April 1, 1976.

The Citizen quotes an internal memorandum as saying February marketing results — the month before the announcement to close — showed gross billings were 24 per cent over budget. The newspaper says there was a backlog of $8.5 million in orders and a new product, which had been sampled and proven, was to cost between $20 and $30 to produce and sell for about $250.

WHITE-COLLAR CRIME HIT

WINNIPEG (CP) — RCMP Insp. Donald Docker says the job of uncovering white-collar crime is fascinating, but not so to the people on the other side of the law.

"They are actually rather pathetic, figures, inadequate, quirky... something is usually wrong with them," said the inspector, who is head of a 22-man RCMP commercial crime section.

The section, established here six years ago to tackle white-collar crime in Manitoba and northwestern Ontario, has expanded rapidly. Last year the squad laid 300 fraud charges and recovered nearly $1.8 million, either from insolvent estates or recovery of assets.

The inspector, born 40 years ago in Toronto, joined the RCMP at 19 and, while serving on the force, obtained a degree at York University, where he majored in economics.

Asked what motivates the white-collar criminal, Insp. Docker gave a simple answer: "Greed."

"It is what fills the gap between what a person thinks he has coming to him and his real capacities. A person who expects a lot but has little to offer tries to compensate for his inadequacy with greed."

"But a criminal act is a copout. A person who is lazy and lacks ability cannot achieve success and wealth through legitimate ways. And it's because he lacks capacity and ability that he's much easier to catch."

Insp. Docker said he does not make moral judgments about white-collar criminals, and nobody in the Winnipeg-based fraud squad has a strong bias against the fraud artist.

"We might admire the scheme — although none of them is really original, they are only variations — but we don't admire the man. Generally, the schemes are pretty amateurish. When you unravel it, it reflects a pretty inferior mind."

"There's no such thing as a super-star in crime," said Insp. Docker, who criticized the news media for reports portraying fraud artists as financial geniuses and glamorizing audacious crimes such as Britain's Great Train Robbery.

Insp. Docker said fraudulent bankruptcies are a continuing problem, but only between five and eight per cent of bankruptcies are of a criminal nature. Most of the others are due to mismanagement or a variety of other factors.

The squad is kept busy dealing with public investment frauds, such as those involving insider trading or false prospectuses, although many of these older-type schemes have started to fade out.

"The one to watch is warehousing of stock. That involves an individual or a group accumulating a large block of shares in a company. They arrange for the shares to drop in value and they buy more at an under-valued price. Then they benefit from restoration of the market—or they get a privileged position through the issue of new shares."

Insp. Docker said the Mafia and other organized mobs generally are not behind commercial crime.

"The mob figures lack the sophistication... It takes an experienced businessman to pull one off. The mob people only know how to coerce or pressure people. They don't know how to do it themselves."

The squad does not initiate its own investigation, nor does it act on citizens' complaints, which should be directed to the attorney-general, the solicitor-general or the superintendent of bankruptcies, who weed out the trivial matters.

2,800 Rows, 4 Prosecutions On Rentalsman's Books

Only four prosecutions resulted from the more than 2,800 disputes submitted to the rentalsman in the first four months of this year, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Tuesday.

He told the legislature in the same period 2,709 disputes were settled by negotiation between landlords and tenants and 138 resulted in an order by the rentalsman.

During debate of the $1.28 million budget for the rentalsman office, Macdonald agreed with opposition spokesmen that any rentalsman officers who show a bias in work should be fired.

More specifically, he said if Conservative leader Scott Wallace's report on a dispute involving deputy rentalsman P. B. Smith is correct, the officer should not be working with the Rentalsman.

The case, which Wallace has mentioned before in the legislature, involves a couple who were asked to vacate a mobile home site and appealed to the rentalsman to force the park landlord to pay them $300 in moving costs according to a section of the Landlord and Tenant Act.

Wallace said there is a legitimate dispute over whether the landlord owes the couple the money and, in the first correspondence on the dispute, the deputy rentalsman said the case should go to court.

In later correspondence, said Wallace, Smith told the landlord that the couple could probably not afford court costs and he threatened to take court action against the landlord for violation of the Landlord and Tenant Act.

The letter reveals a clear bias in favor of tenants on the part of the deputy rentalsman, said Wallace.

Soured MLA Bob McClelland land (Langley) called on Macdonald to abolish rent controls in the province.

The government should eliminate the 10.5 per cent freeze on rent increases, he said, before landlords start abandoning buildings.

Construction of new rental accommodation has suffered, he said, maintenance of existing buildings is falling off and people are starting to pay "key money" to get apartments.

The budget for the rentalsman's office later was approved after long debate in the evening sitting, as were the remaining portions of his department's $115 million spending estimates.

House Dim Toward TV

A request by B.C. Television to televise today's question period in the legislature was rejected by the house Tuesday.

Speaker Gordon Dowding told the legislature unanimous approval would be needed, and suggested the decision was an important one "because every member has to be concerned about what he says legally."

Although the majority of house members voiced no objection, there was a handful of dissenting votes.

The matter of regular televising of house debates is under study by the legislature, although cameras are allowed in the press gallery for brief periods, and for the budget address.

HOUSE BRIEFS

Anderson Urges Nuclear Watch

Liberal leader David Anderson called on the government Tuesday to keep a close watch on all developments in nuclear power.

A public seminar on nuclear power, conducted by the NDP government last year, has sparked public debate of the issue, he said, but B.C. still lacks technical expertise.

The government has rejected the idea of nuclear power because of Premier Barrett's personal objections and because the premier believes B.C. has enough energy potential on its already-dammed rivers, said Anderson.

While he accepts Barrett's personal fears, said Anderson, he questions the validity of that opinion and he disputes his contention that enough power potential necessarily exists on the rivers.

Medical Board Strengthened

The provincial Medical Appeal Board will have greater powers in dealing with cases of doctors denied hospital privileges under legislation introduced in the house Tuesday.

Amendments to the Hospital Act will give the board authority to insist privileges are granted doctors in cases where it feels denial has been unfair.

The board, set up in 1971, now only has power to announce its decision on an appeal by a doctor, not to enforce its decision.

Health Minister Dennis Cocke said doctors are denied privileges by a hospital's credential committee for a variety of reasons including problems of over-staffing.

The bill also includes a number of other housekeeping changes to the Hospital Act.

Credit Union Scrutiny Set

The provincial government will launch a study into current duplication of services in two credit union regulatory bodies, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Tuesday.

The Credit Unions Reserve Board and the Inspector of Credit Unions are both involved in inspections, auditing and where necessary safeguarding assets of credit unions, Macdonald told the legislature.

He made the comments during debate of the government's Credit Union Act, later approved in principle.

The bill sets out a new charter for the 179 credit unions in B.C. with 600,000 members and is the culmination of 1½ years work.

Unions Outweigh Government

The B.C. government does not have the power to hire local people to work on B.C. Hydro projects, Premier Dave Barrett told the legislature Tuesday.

During debate on an amendment to the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority Act, Barrett said if the prime contractor has an agreement with unions to allow the unions to do the hiring, "there is nothing we can do."

The premier was responding to Don Phillips (S.C.—South Peace River) who said he received complaints that local people can't get jobs on the new Site One hydro project on the Peace River.

He said the agreement between B.C. Hydro and the contractor stipulates that local workers be hired "where feasible and possible" but the agreement between the contractor and the unions states that union members be employed.

Phillips asked which contract takes precedence.

The premier said the government cannot interfere with the relationship between the contractor and the unions.

He asked Phillips to supply more details and said the labor department would study them.

Martini Was Too Chilled

Doug Kelly (NDP-Omineca) was told Tuesday that he'd better switch to rum from gin if he likes to get his drinks nicely chilled by leaving the bottle in a car on cold nights.

"You know when you leave a bottle in the car it gets nicely chilled," he told the legislature's public accounts committee. "Well this particular bottle wouldn't even pour—it was frozen solid."

Kelly, who questioned the quality of the government's liquor, said he had left his bottle of Glibbey's gin in weather that was "a bit snappy out, about 40 below."

Vic Woodland, liquor administration board general manager, said the MLA should drink either the LAB 30 over-proof rum or LAB proof rum in that kind of weather.

Censor Urged to Clip Violence

The $79,632 bill for the B.C. film classification officer was attacked in the legislature Tuesday by opposition and government party spokesmen perturbed about the amount of violence and brutality in films.

NDP backbencher Don Lewis of Shuswap said during debate of the officers budget he was "not so concerned about sex in movies as I am about violence."

"And I don't see why it's necessary to attract movie audiences by having every second word being a swear word," said Lewis.

"I'm mature, but some of the violent shows classified as mature shake me. When I go home I have restless nights," he said, advocating some form of movie censorship that stops the flow of violent films. "I don't think classification is enough."

Tory leader Scott Wallace agreed more violence should be edited out of films and Liberal leader David Anderson felt the classification office should be discontinued.

"I'm sure Mr. (Ray) Macdonald (the film classification officer) is doing a yeoman's job... checking on cleavages, but why should B.C. establish its own office. There's no reason B.C. has an individual viewpoint that requires a separate office."

The film classifier screens all movies before they are shown in B.C., is also responsible for inserting cautionary remarks about content of films before movie advertising is published.

Anderson suggested that a few of the provinces should get together and fund a coordinated film classification office to cut out the duplicated expense. He won some agreement from Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, the minister responsible for classification. Macdonald said Anderson's suggestion merits consideration and added he hopes that kind of inter-provincial co-operation could be discussed at a film classification convention here in September.

Violence in movies is a concern, he said. "When that sort of thing is seen on TV people become habituated to violence and the well-springs of human sympathy dry up."

"The callous attitude of the Godfather syndrome becomes just as natural as taking a glass of water. And the fellow with the fists become a hero."

He promised to relay discussions to Macdonald.

But his comments didn't satisfy Wallace, who said ground rules should be spelled out definitely.

"I don't think brutality and violence can be measured in degrees," he said, calling for a full-fledged review to allow public input.

"It's time to take a position, either movies are censored more thoroughly or they are not."

Two-Tier System of Judges Soon in Provincial Courts

Legislation creating a two-tier system of court judges in provincial courts will be introduced within the next few days, Attorney General Alex Macdonald said Tuesday.

The amendments to the Provincial Court Act, he said, will give part-time lay judges and magistrates the opportunity to become justices of the peace with widened powers to deal with summary court cases under the Motor Vehicle Act.

"JPs will be allowed to schedule cases, and adjournments," said Macdonald, freeing over-burdened legally trained provincial court judges to concentrate on more complicated court proceedings.

Amendments will also include option for provincial court judges to choose whether they want to continue service past mandatory retirement of 65 years, Macdonald said.

Only the attorney-general now has the power to reappoint judges to a longer term of service past the retirement age. The provision has drawn much criticism from the profession, said Macdonald.

"So they will be given the free choice of whether to take a pension or continue on in temporary service."

Macdonald made brief reference to amendments during debate of his department estimates in response to charges by Social MLA Alex Fraser (Cariboo).

The MLA claimed in some sections of B.C. there are part-time judges on call seven days a week and making only $50 a month.

Fraser asked if some of the $13.1 million spending estimate for salary contingencies in the department could be channelled to those judges. But Macdonald said there is

CREDIT-CARDED TO DEATH?

Consumers and retailers alike are getting "nicked" by the heavy and widespread use of credit cards, Consumer Services Minister Phyllis Young said Tuesday.

"I have a definite feeling we're being credit-carded to death," she told the legislature during debate of the Personal Information Reporting Amendment Act.

She said she is concerned about elaborate plans of financial institutions for what is becoming a cashless society, and agreed with Liberal leader David Anderson who said retailers should be allowed to give discounts for customers who pay cash.

Anderson had suggested the consumer services department issue Cashex cards which would allow a 5 per cent discount for cash customers.

These people are discriminated against because of "wretched credit cards" and between 4 and 7 per cent of an item's list price goes to cover credit card arrangements he said.

Young has said earlier that credit card agreements with retailers in Canada prohibit offering a discount for cash customers, and she anticipates the federal government will take action in that area.

"Unfortunately this legislation is not the vehicle," she said.

The amendments, approved in principle, allow consumers the right to information on why they were denied credit from credit granting agencies including department stores.

B.C. will try to tap British expertise on oil refineries when Premier Barrett visits England in mid-June, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Tuesday.

"British technicians top the world in the refinery field and some projects engineered in Cyprus are the most modern, efficient and pollution-free," Macdonald told the legislature.

He was commenting on the reasons for Barrett's visit in response to questions from Social MLA Ed Smith (North Peace).

Barrett announced Saturday he will discuss a proposed provincial oil refinery with Prime Minister Harold Wilson, and a decision may be made soon on the refinery if the meeting goes well.

But Smith maintained that

B.C.'s supply of crude oil is dwindling and the government's refinery venture is foolhardy.

Macdonald, speaking during debate of his department's estimates, said the province has to stop being so timid and must get a handle on the profits being siphoned off by large multinational oil companies.

"Let's not commit ourselves

Superstar Banned

BLOEMFONTEIN (AP) — South Africa's censors have won a long battle to ban the record of Jesus Christ Superstar on the grounds that it is blasphemous and offensive.

An appeal court decision here overturned a ruling last year by a Durban court that the record could be sold in South Africa.

In terms of a refinery but let's not be so timid not to take advantage of the market being milked by multinational oil refineries," said Macdonald.

Later in the debate, the attorney-general hinted the future of a government refinery may depend on the availability of crude oil in B.C.

"And we must contemplate government exploration. We won't divert supplies from existing refineries," he said.

B.C.'s record of successful wells has increased to 32 this year from 24 last year. Ratio of success is increasing, he said.

"I don't think all the related jobs should be in Alberta and I don't see why we shouldn't refine mainly B.C. crude," Macdonald said.

He was responding to Tory leader Scott Wallace who asked for clarification of the government's intentions.

The Oak Bay MLA said Barrett stated firmly in Ottawa that the government would build a $350 million oil refinery, "but since then there have been all kinds of perambulations about whether the government will proceed."

Macdonald, however, said the government's position always has been that the refinery development will depend on the availability of crude oil.

"His (Barrett's) style (of speech) is so ebullient, you assumed he was making a commitment," said Macdonald.

There have been discussions with Alberta on supply of crude but no commitment, he said, and transport of the crude, if settled, would not affect tanker traffic in the straits.

"The amount of Alberta oil above that from B.C. would not be that much to affect tanker traffic in the straits."

It might draw on the Trans-Mountain pipeline to some extent," Macdonald said in answer to questions from Liberal MLA Gordon Gibson (North Vancouver-Capilano).

Police Protect Meat Man

MONTREAL (CP) — The manager of a Montreal meat packing firm was accorded police protection Tuesday after testifying before an inquiry into organized crime that he sold thousands of pounds of tainted meat to a distributor in Magog, Que.

Andre Smith, manager of R. Drolet Ltd. of Montreal, admitted before the Quebec Police Commission inquiry that he had sold an estimated $5,000 pounds of meat from dead, diseased or crippled animals to Federal Packing of Magog since the beginning of this year.

Smith said the meat was bought from dealers who specialized in gathering carcasses of dead cows and live diseased animals. The animals were slaughtered by the dealers and brought to Smith's Montreal firm where they were packed in containers marked "Quebec approved."

The meat was then taken covertly to the Federal Packing plant in Magog where it was re-distributed for sale, he testified. Asked why he did it, Smith explained that it was for economic reasons alone.

He said he paid 40 cents a pound for tainted meat and re-sold it to Federal Packing for up to 50 cents a pound, but added, "I still didn't like it."

"Why didn't you like it?" asked inquiry chairman Judge Jean Dutil.

"It wasn't inspected," Smith replied.

13 Years' Struggle for This

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Mrs. Mary Larre worked the graveyard shift at B.C. Forest Products for 13 years to buy her home at 833 Darwin.

Today it's menaced by a towering pile of dirt, dumped by Saanich in what was once her backyard.

The house is tilting. The oil distributor refuses to deliver oil because he's afraid the tank will collapse because of the weight of the rocks and fill dumped close by.

The land that surrounds her was given by Saanich to the Greater Victoria Centre for the Handicapped. It is unfenced, children have hauled rocks through her windows, using the handy rock pile for ammunition, and written foul words on the garden shed.

She and her husband had rented the house for 3½ years, intending to return from Saskatchewan this year to retire there.

When Mrs. Larre moved in April 29 (her husband is still in Saskatchewan waiting for their daughter to finish her school year) brambles 20 feet high towered as high as the fruit trees on the side of her lot adjacent to the centre site.

Since then those brambles have been cleared by Farmer Construction Ltd. employed through a $50,000 grant given the centre. But rocks still roll down on her lawn from that side.

Mrs. Larre is seeking action by Saanich to help repair the damage done to her property.

"I don't want to be helped by charity (the clearing done on the centre site)," she said today. "They (Saanich) promised me when I sold my back lot to them that the lay of the land wouldn't be changed. There's not even a fence around this mess."

When it rains her basement fills and the backyard that's left becomes a lake, water running down from the 20-foot mound. She's been told by the engineering department the necessary drainage can't be installed until the mound is removed.

In early February she wrote, asking to be able to attend the Feb. 24 council meeting to plead for "justice."

She had to wait until Tuesday's meeting of the lands, planning and housing committee to get a hearing.

"They're treating me like a member of CUPE," she said today. "They just put me off. They could have seen me in February. Last night they didn't even send me a letter. Some girl just phoned me to let me know there was a meeting."

Campbell appeared unimpressed with her accusations, telling Mrs. Larre her home "was a very old house". It was built in 1927 and, in 1974, Saanich offered to buy it for $27,500, later settling for the backyard lot, which had been Mrs. Larre's flower and vegetable garden.

Committee members said they wanted to see the property before making a decision.

UVic Signs Agreement With CUPE

The University of Victoria has signed two-year contracts with its 480 Canadian Union of Public Employees members, union business agent Alex Markides said today.

CUPE has two separate contracts at the university — one covering about 130 outside workers and another covering 350 inside clerical staff.

Neither the university nor the union would release wage gains provided in the new contracts, but Markides said the contracts control a feature which leaves wage increases during the second year of the contracts, open to negotiation.

The previous two-year contract at the university expired March 31.

Meanwhile, CUPE is continuing negotiations for 40 employees of the Greater Victoria Water Board, which is owned by Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich municipalities, and for inside and outside staff of the Saanich school district.

No Intent to Curb Newsmen At Police Station—Gregory

Victoria Police Chief Jack Gregory sharply denied a report which appeared in today's Victorian that he wants to ban newsmen from the ground floor of the Fisgard street police station.

In an interview this morning, Gregory said the report was "twisted... a misstatement of facts that has been blown out of all proportion."

He said he had merely pro-

Hydro Vote Next Week

B.C. Hydro's 2,800 electrical workers, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, vote next week on a tentative contract proposal.

The results of the province-wide vote are expected about June 15.

Union business agent Doug Cronk said the negotiating committee has recommended acceptance of the proposal.

men "cruising through the police building trying to dig up information from officers who are otherwise busy."

The suggestion, he said, was made "in the spirit of complete co-operation and regard for the media."

"I thought it might aid and assist newsmen in gathering the news."

He said he and his staff have not discussed the proposal on a formal basis and he could not see any imminent change in the current policy of newsmen approaching the inspectors in charge of each division.

At a meeting of the Victoria Police Board this morning Gregory reiterated his denial.

"There was no word or intent to ban newsmen... rather to provide news on an equitable basis for all newsmen," he told board members.

Acting Mayor Ald. Alf Hood, deputizing for the vacationing board chairman Mayor Peter Pollen, said in certain circumstances information must be considered confidential, whether or not it relates to investigations.

"There is no intention to hold normal things in secrecy," he said.

Commissioner Jack Cowan said Gregory's proposal sounded a good one.

"It is worth a try," he said.

'Undisciplined, Irresponsible'

Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen has renewed his attack on "this astronomical, undisciplined, uncoordinated and irresponsible growth of demands being placed upon the taxpayer."

The attack comes in a letter Pollen has written to Camosun College chairman Dr. Hal Knight, copies of which were sent to newspapers, municipal mayors, local school board chairmen, college councillors, and Education Minister Eileen Daily.

The mayor said he is concerned about the uncoordinated and even competitive growth of costs of educational and cultural services in the community.

"There is indeed a limited capability of the two million

Ratepayers Appointed

The new executive of the recently-revived Central Saanich Ratepayers' Association plans a door-to-door membership drive and an early public meeting.

Appointed to the executive at a meeting Tuesday at the municipal hall were Fred Clarke, president; Claudette de la Chevrotiere, vice-president; Dick Sharpe, secretary; and Campbell Thomson, treasurer.

Clarke said today he hopes to sign up 1,000 members.

citizens of this province to generate funds to fulfill the rising and largely unattainable expectations of many in the community for more and more public services," he said.

"This naivety, if not eliminated in the near future, will surely bankrupt the province..."

Pollen pointed to the Greater Victoria Public Library board, which wants to provide not only "library services, picture gallery services, music and record services, but most aggressively and vigorously 'educational and recreational services'."

This library effort has never been co-ordinated with aspirations of community resource boards, Camosun College, the University of Victoria, community recreation centres, public schools, and various societies in the Victoria area, he said.

The Michaux Melody Will Linger a While Yet

Most dads would be quite happy if at least one son followed in their footsteps.

But Emile Michaux is doubly proud, with a boy stepping in the prints of both feet.

Emile leaves the band instruction business at the end of this school term. But right behind him, striding in his shadow, is his 28-year-old son Leonard.

He has worked all this year with his father and will take over from him instruction of 136 Grade 8, 9 and 10 students who make up two bands at Arbutus Junior High School and the 75-member band at Mt. Douglas High School.

And Emile's other son, 33-year-old Robert, is a member of the Canadian Forces Band at Naden, following the other foot of his musical father.

Emile Michaux is a man who is retiring for the second time. In 1959, he ended his military career when as Chief Petty Officer Michaux he retired after serving 10 years as bandmaster of the Naden Band. Then in 1960, he began a new 15-year career as a band instructor in the Victoria school system.

When I popped in for a chat about a life of music, I found Emile at home recuperating after a double hernia operation and "still shaking all over."

Emile Michaux

But he wasn't feeling too bad to reminisce and he told of how it all began in Belgium.

That's where grandfather Michaux (Emile's grandfather, that is) came from. And he was a clarinet player and a professor of music in Brussels.

He never met granddad, but Emile always had a love of music and started playing the cornet when he was nine with the Naval Brigade Band in Victoria.

"I went through all the band instruments, though," says Emile "trombone, euphonium and tuba."

Naturally, his wife Mary is keen on music. She plays the piano and has done a lot of accompanying of students during the Victoria Festival of Music.

"We started our boys playing when they were nine," Emile says and now both can play several instruments like the trombone, bass guitar and piano.

Emile was born in Dawson City after his father came to North America at the age of 14. The family moved to Victoria when he was two and he has been here ever since. He attended the former St. Louis College, which once stood on the corner of Pandora and Vancouver.

"I heard on a recent CBC television special on cycling that the inventor of the bicycle was a man named Michaux from Belgium," he says.

And the funny thing is that Emile's first job was as an apprentice bicycle mechanic for the late Jackie Aaronson in Victoria.

Next came jobs doing roofing work with several different city companies.

"I did all types of roofing and they were hard times," says Emile distantly. "we got 40 cents an hour — up seven stories for 40 cents an hour."

After that, he worked as a window dresser for David Spencer and Co. (now Eaton's) and all this time music, says Emile, was just a hobby.

From 1927 to 1940, he was a member of the First Battalion, Canadian Scottish Band.

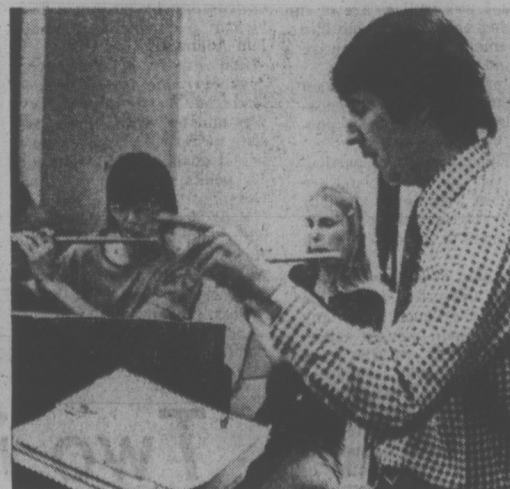

"The bandmaster then was James Miller," says Emile, "he still lives here today, must be close to 90 now."

And in 1937, he started playing in a group with Billy Tickle and Len Acres (both of whom died recently) at dinner dances in the Empress.

Then came the war. Emile entered the Navy as a bandsman and played euphonium and string bass in the Naden Band. After the war, he was bandmaster aboard HMCS Discovery for some time.

Then, in 1946, it was decided that bands should become a permanent part of the Royal Canadian Navy and Michaux was instrumental in the formation of the navy bands in existence today.

When enough men were recruited he became bandmaster of the Naden Band, a position he was to hold for 10 years. Highlights for the navy band during those years were taking part in a spectacular display of bands in the 1955 British Empire Games in Vancouver and in a half-time show during the first Grey Cup game played in the west.

When it comes to Navy bands, Emile Michaux wrote the handbook — literally. He compiled the Band Manual, giving the drift for service bands in the Navy.

Emile loves "every kind of music," played bass viol for several years with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra and believes parents should encourage any child who wants to learn music.

"I don't know what I would have done if I hadn't had music," says Emile. "I guess

I would have just hung around the street corners."

"It's never been better than it is now for a child to learn music in the school system," he adds. "And the talent is fantastic — you wouldn't believe what these kids can produce."

Thousands of children have learned music with Emile Michaux.

"I couldn't count them — one year alone I had 450 students," he says.

Big moments? Sure, there have been plenty of them.

Like the time in 1967 when his Colquitz Junior High Band won a national title. And in 1971 when Arbutus took the B.C. band championship in Vancouver and the Queen presented the trophy to the school. And the 10 times he took bands from either Colquitz, Arbutus, Gordon Head or Mt. Doug to compete with slick American bands at the annual Abbotsford International Band Festival, and came back with first prizes on all 10 occasions.

And it could be another big moment this Friday night at 8 when a special reception honoring Emile is held in the Mt. Doug gym.

It should be, too, if he can just stop "shaking all over" in time.

Let's hope he feels up to it.

Little Sooke-Area Lake Yields a New Experience

An early-morning jaunt to a small and little-known lake nestled in the Sooke hills produced a new and memorable experience last Sunday.

Dawn was breaking as Larry Citra and I headed down Humpback Road toward Sooke, each in our own four-by-four. It was necessary to take both vehicles because I planned to reach home in Cobble Hill via the Port Renfrew-Shawnigan Lake Road while Larry lives near Goldstream.

Besides, there has always been a great deal of good-natured bantering between us on the relative merits of our different trucks and it seemed like a good opportunity to find out exactly how my new four-by-four stacked up.

Unfortunately, because of a simple boneheaded oversight on my part, it seemed to suffer in comparison.

There is very rough section of washed-out road connecting the main logging road with the lake and I ran into trouble while leading the way up a particularly bad section on a boulder-strewn hill.

One of my front tires nudged the vertical face of a boulder and the vehicle stopped immediately. Applying more gas didn't make the tire climb the rock as it should have done with an automatic transmission. Instead, a couple of tires started to burn rock and the other two began to dig into some looser gravel.

Backing down the twisting route through the rocks was out of the question so I had to trot out the winch cable and haul the vehicle up to a place where the traction was better.

Larry, who had been relatively quiet while this operation was in progress, began to grow loudly after he crawled up the same spot with only a minor amount of trouble (if you can call bouncing both front tires about a foot into the air minor).

It'll probably be years before I live down that episode.

About 10 minutes later, we pulled up beside the lake and silence reigned once the engines were shut off. Like most other lakes in the Sooke hills, this one had been in the midst of logging and only about a quarter of the shoreline was still treed. Despite this, the water is crystal-clear and appears to have suffered little from the garbage-strewing type of recreationists.

The few people who know the lake's location manage to keep it clean without the collection services necessary elsewhere.

Having a little time to spare, we skirted the lake and found an ideal camping spot on the edge of a ledge overlooking the water. Yes, folks, contrary to popular opinion, owners of four-wheel-drive vehicles do walk occasionally.

Further along, we climbed out on a rocky point and sat down to enjoy both the view and the hot sun beating down on our backs. A flicker of movement in the water in front of us drew our attention to a spectacle neither of us had seen before in spite of years of fishing experience.

From the rock we were sitting on, a gravel-covered underwater ledge gently sloped out to a dropoff about 10 feet away.

The motion which caught our eyes occurred while the surface of the water was ruffled by a breeze. As the wavelets died down and the bottom became clearer, an ever-increasing number of trout could be seen swimming about over the gravel.

Their dark color and swimming patterns led us to conclude they were probably spawning in this particular spot. This theory was proven out minutes later when one of the smaller fish (a female) turned over on her side and began to excavate a spawning site with the rapid flipping motions of the tail we'd seen salmon make (but never trout).

Meanwhile, the males were busy jockeying around for the privilege of attending the lady. One, which must have been at least 14 inches long, seemed exceptionally aggressive. Unfortunately, while he was busy chasing one male away others would slip in and take up a position beside the female until they, in turn, were scared off.

One interesting thing we noticed about this dominant male was the habit of opening his mouth extremely wide at intervals. We wonder whether this flash of vivid white against the dark spawning colors might serve as some type of warning ritual.

This fascinating spectacle occupied our attention for the better part of an hour before the breeze sprang up again and we hiked back to the trucks and headed homeward.

Ah, yes! About that boneheaded oversight.

I'd forgotten to shift into low range before tackling the rough stuff. This simple action of selecting a lower set of gears would have enabled my vehicle to crawl over the boulder with no problems at all.

Besides, I was never really stuck — just temporarily immobilized.

FORMER CHAMP DIES IN SLEEP

CHICAGO (AP) — Ezzard Charles, the world's heavyweight boxing champion for two years starting in June 1949, died early today in hospital. He was 54 years old.

Charles was admitted to the hospital early in March for treatment of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, a disease that causes deterioration of the muscles. His condition began to worsen this week. Death came in his sleep, a hospital spokesman said.

Charles became champion by a 15-round decision over Jersey Joe Walcott on June 22, 1949.

He defended his title eight times then gave up the boxing crown to Walcott July 19, 1951 on a seventh-round knockout in Philadelphia.

Charles made two bids for comebacks against the then heavyweight champion, Rocky Marciano. He lost the first bout on a decision and the second by a knockout.

Charles fought intermittently until late in 1959 then retired.

Esquimalt Eyes Playoff Berth

Gay Evensten scored two goals to set the pace as Esquimalt blanked visiting Belmont 4-0 Tuesday to keep playoff hopes alive in the Greater Victoria High School Girls' Soccer League.

Esquimalt needs a win or a tie to clinch third place and a spot in the playoffs, which begin June 3 when Spectrum meets the third-place finisher in a sudden-death semi-final. The winner of that match advances to face league champion Edward Milne in the final on June 5.

The Old Scholarship Ball Is in for Another Kicking

SCHOOL SPORTS

eral of them in response to comments made here last fall.

"The prohibiting of athletic scholarships or financial aid from the university to the athlete, we feel, has gone a long way towards eliminating inequality of competition," McConachie wrote. "Conversely, the introduction of a program of financial aid to student athletes could create a situation where the well-established universities would have a distinct advantage over the relatively new universities."

No question there. You can readily imagine where schools like UVic, Lethbridge, Brandon, Trent in Peterborough or Brock in St. Catharines would finish if UBC, Alberta, McGill or Toronto could tap their numerous and wealthy alumni to buy athletes.

"The CIAU does accept third-party scholarships, specifically the federal government grant-in-aid program as well as the Hockey Canada scholarship program," McConachie continued. "However, these are awarded on the basis that the recipient may attend the institution of his choice."

McConachie listed three danger areas concerning athletic scholarships:

"They could (a) place a greater degree of emphasis on winning and, consequently, subvert the main aim of teaching and coaching to the need to win; (b) place the athlete in a situation where he loses some of his autonomy and becomes more dependent upon the will of the coach for direction; (c) create a situation where the use of scholarships as inducements could result in the abuse of recruiting practices, causing a serious rift between universities and high schools."

But, McConachie admits, "many people feel, and rightly so, that it is not the program but, rather, the administration of the program which creates the problems. However, it is impossible to legislate a person's morals and therein lies the problem."

The CIAU has been wres-ting with the scholarship problem for years and, as McConachie points out, it has not yet been resolved. "However, we have struck a committee to study the matter and bring forth recommendations at the annual meeting in Victoria."

Should be fun!

CHALK DUST — Reynolds coach Henry Kuyvenhoven, incoming chairman of the Greater Victoria High School Soccer League, reports the league will be divided into two sections next year with the addition of Dunsinuir to the senior level of competition.

According to Kuyvenhoven, groupings will be based on last year's finish with the first, third, fifth, seventh and ninth teams in one division and the second, fourth, sixth and eighth joining Dunsinuir in the other. That would put Reynolds, Spectrum, Mount Doug, Parkland and Belmont together while Vic High, Oak Bay, Claremont, Esquimalt and Dunsinuir compete in the other section. Each team will play a 13-game schedule, home-and-home in its own group and once against each team in the opposite group. Semi-finals will pit the first-place finisher in each group against the second-place team in the opposite division. In addition to playing for the championship, the two finalists will qualify for the provincial tournament.

TOURNEY OF CHAMPS BACK ON LIST

ATLANTA (CP) — The cancellation of professional golf's Tournament of Champions was rescinded Tuesday and the event re-scheduled for 1976.

The action was announced by pro golf commissioner Deane Beman at a meeting of the touring players at the Atlanta Country Club on Tuesday night following a daytime meeting of the Tournament Players Division Policy Board.

Beman said at the time the tournament was cancelled the action was taken because of a conflict in the Tournament of Champions' winners-only format with a new and expanded World Series of Golf which will go into effect in 1976.

Mt. Doug Deep in Qualifiers For Shot at Third B.C. Title

Stan Gill hopes this will be the year his Mt. Douglas track and field team will quit being bridesmaid and again take over the main role at the provincial high school championships.

His team has been runner-up for the B.C. title the past four years, and now the veteran coach has plenty of reason for hope in this year's meet, which takes place Friday and Saturday at Burnaby's Swangard Stadium.

First, there is the school's Greater Victoria title two weeks ago. Then the Island crown last weekend.

And there is the tradition of success with his Mt. Doug team.

... chance for double

years ago, Gill has guided the school to two B.C. titles, five runner-up finishes, eight city and seven Island crowns.

This year he also has athletes qualified in 25 events for the provincials, the most ever for Mt. Doug.

That number should put Mt. Doug among the top contenders for the B.C. title along with Vancouver and District champion Hillside, Fraser Valley winner Chilliwack, Centennial, Point Grey, McPherson Park and Kilsno.

Three Mt. Doug athletes, Tom Griffin, Mark Nyhof and Derry Donaldson, must also rank as heavy threats to capture their individual events.

Selected outstanding athlete at the Island meet, Griffin should battle with Burnaby South's John Martens for the 1,500-metre crown. Griffin covered the distance at the Island meet in 3:58.7, while Martens ran 3:55.7 in the V-and-D meet last week.

Griffin should also be a strong favorite in the 800 metres.

Nymof, with a best of six feet, six inches, should be top rated in the boys' high jump, while Donaldson should duel with John Oliver's John Pankratz in the 100 metres. Donaldson took the Island race in 11.1. Pankratz won V-and-D honors in 11.0.

Debbie Scott of Claremont, outstanding female performer at the Island meet, should be a strong candidate for top honors in the girls' 800 and 1,500 metres. Her main rival in the 1,500 metres will likely be West Vancouver's Brit Lind-Peterson, who had a 4:33.9 time at the V-and-D while Scott ran 4:37.5 at the Island.

Esquimalt has qualifiers for 11 events at the provincial meet, second behind Mt. Douglas among Island schools. Claremont has representatives in nine and Oak Bay in six.

Refused $20,000, Ticat Tries Hockey

HAMILTON (CP) — Defensive-back Lou Clare says he has retired from the Canadian Football League Hamilton Tiger-Cats and plans to pursue a career with the World Hockey Association's Cincinnati Stingers.

Clare, 25, said Monday the reason for his move was the Ticats' refusal of his bid for a $20,000-a-year contract.

Tennis Clinics Scheduled

Do you want to upgrade your tennis skills? Well, this weekend is the time.

Special clinics will be held in the city, starting Thursday and running through Saturday, under the co-sponsorship of the Vancouver Island Lawn Tennis Association and the B.C. Lawn Tennis Association.

Coaches will be Kerry Bourden of Campbell River and Mark Sopher of Vancouver, both registered professionals.

On Thursday, selected

Geneva (AP) — Officials of the European Broadcasting Union (EBU) are awaiting word from Canada whether organizers of the 1976 Olympic Games are ready to lower their price for the rights to screen the games in Europe.

They warn that time is running short.

The latest Montreal offer of $14.5 million had been rejected immediately by the EBU whose $5.2-million bid had been in turn declined by the Games' organizers in March.

JULY 1 DATE FOR ALI, BUGNER

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali said Tuesday he will beat Joe Bugner in his next title defence because "if a white man whipped me, I couldn't walk the streets of America."

"I couldn't go to Harlem or to Watts," said the heavy-weight champion at a news conference to formally announce a closed-circuit championship tripleheader, topped by his fight against European champion Bugner of Britain in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, July 1.

The fight will probably start about 10 a.m. Malaysian time and be seen on television in the United States at 7 p.m. P.D.T. The other two fights, which will take place June 30 in Madison Square Garden, will be a middleweight title fight between champion Carlos Monzon of Argentina and Tony Lloeta of New Orleans, and a light heavy-weight title bout between champion Victor Galinder and Jorge Ahumada, both of Argentina.

WHA Drops Chicago

LOS ANGELES (CP) — The franchise of Chicago Cougars has been suspended, the two top officials of the World Hockey Association announced Tuesday.

WHA president Dennis Murphy and chief executive officer Ben Haskin of Winnipeg said players on the Chicago roster have been absorbed by the league "for future disposition."

Murphy and Haskin added that the Chicago franchise was suspended because of the lack of an adequate arena for the club and that the league will consider granting the area a new franchise if that situation is corrected.

When Ivan Mullenix announced recently that a group he heads had been granted a WHA franchise for Denver, there were reports that his group would get the Chicago franchise.

There has been no subsequent indication how players will be provided for the Denver team.

The demise of the Chicago franchise leaves the WHA with teams in Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Toronto, Quebec, Hartford, Conn., Cleveland, Baltimore, Indianapolis, St. Paul, Minn., Houston, San Diego, Phoenix and Denver.

Still in doubt is the future of the Baltimore franchise, which was operated by the league after being moved from Detroit in mid-season.

Chicago had one of the original WHA franchises in 1972-73. Only teams surviving in the same location from that first season are Edmonton, Winnipeg, Quebec, Cleveland, Houston and Minnesota Fighting Saints, who play out of St. Paul.

Cattle Prod, Whip Bring Suspension

BOWIE, Md. (AP) — Trainer Franklin Hendricks and groom Morris Gardner were suspended Tuesday from the state's horse tracks by Maryland racing stewards.

The action followed the discovery Monday of an electrical cattle prod and stock whip in the Pinelock racetrack stall of Young Sentry.

The three-year-old gelding, owned by the Moseh-Asher Stables, had been entered in the first race by Hendricks, but the horse was ordered scratched when the prod was discovered 30 minutes before post time.

The stewards said Hendricks testified Tuesday that the whip was used at his direction to stimulate Young Sentry. Gardner admitted using the whip on the horse and, said the stewards, he intended to use the cattle prod as well.

New Contracts for Espo, O'Reilly

(Times News Services)

Phil Esposito, the National Hockey League's leading goal scorer last season, signed a new multi-year contract with Boston Bruins Tuesday.

At a new conference in Cambridge, Mass., Harry Sinden, managing director of the National Hockey League team, said right winger Terry O'Reilly also had signed a multi-year agreement.

Sinden did not disclose details of the two contracts, but both were reported to be for three years.

Esposito, 33, is fifth in the all-time NHL goal scoring list with 527 goals in 12 seasons. He led the league in total points in five of the last seven seasons.

He had 61 goals and 66 assists for a total of 127 points last season, second only to team-mate Bobby Orr.

O'Reilly had 15 goals and 20 assists last season, his third with the Bruins.

Both Esposito and O'Reilly would have become free agents June 1, the expiry date of their old contracts. Both players said they also had received offers from the rival World Hockey Association.

Esposito said that he had been offered 2½ times as much money as he received from the Bruins to sign with the WHA's Calgary Blazers. However, the high-scoring centre said he never seriously considered the offer.

O'Reilly said he turned aside an offer from the WHA's Cleveland Crusaders.

Edmonton Oilers of the WHA, meanwhile, have made a substantial offer to Marcel Dionne and the star centre said today he is seriously considering the offer because it appears he will not be able to achieve his desire to remain in the NHL.

Alan Eagleson, Dionne's legal adviser, told a news conference in Edmonton that the high-scoring centre has had problems dealing with other NHL teams after deciding it was "time to say goodbye" to Detroit Red Wings, the team he has played for during the last four seasons.

Dionne becomes a free agent June 1 but if he signs with another NHL team that team must give Detroit compensation either in players or cash. Eagleson said Detroit is making it almost impossible for other NHL clubs to deal with Dionne because the Red Wings are seeking "an arm and a leg" as compensation.

For instance, Eagleson said, Detroit has mentioned the names of Guy Lafleur and Larry Robinson of Montreal Canadiens and Darryl Sittler, Brian Glennie and Ian Turnbull of Toronto Maple Leafs as potential compensation.

HOW TO SPEND A COOL SUMMER BY SPENDING LESS

We introduce the Tip Top summer blazers.

A terrific line of jackets, handsomely tailored in a traditional blazer linen-weave. Our tailors have skillfully used details like double-stitched edges and patch-pockets. In a weight that makes light of the hottest August days.

Part of feeling cool is looking cool. And you will, because the 'summery' colours our blazers come in are all pale.

The number of different looks you can achieve with one blazer, is only limited by the colours and the patterns of the slacks that you choose to wear with it.

(Speaking of which, for the next 10 days, our tremendous selection of summer slacks is reduced to $18.99 and up.)

Our blazers come from our own factory. Which explains their attractive regular price of $85.00.

Don't look at it as just a summer blazer. Look at it as a summer wardrobe.

Quick Return by Sneva?

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Driver Tom Sneva, of Spokane, who walked away from a harrowing crash in Sunday's Indianapolis 500-mile auto race with mostly minor injuries, was moved Tuesday to a private room at Methodist Hospital.

Although he suffered first-, second and third-degree burns over 15 per cent of his body, doctors said Sneva might be well enough to go home in seven to 10 days.

Sneva, well-known in Victoria as a competitor at Western Speedway, had been listed in serious condition as a precaution only for two days while he was in intensive care. After moving to his private room, his condition was changed to good.

"I could be racing again by the Milwaukee 150 on June 8," Sneva said from his hospital bed Tuesday. "But I'll definitely be back by the time practice starts June 18 for the Pocono 500."

Car owner Roger Penske said he will have a new race car ready when Sneva thinks he is ready to drive again. Sneva's Penske McLaren that was wrecked Sunday was carted off in two dump trucks.

Sneva's most serious injury occurred after the wreck was over. Trying to lift himself out of the car's twisted cockpit, he put the finger tips on his right hand into a puddle of burning fuel.

"That's the only part that is really third-degree burns," Sneva said. "The rest hurts some, but it will probably peel off in a few days."

Frank Del Roy, technical supervisor for the United States Auto Club, said the fuel which ignited and burned Sneva, came from a five-gallon tank mounted behind the driver's head.

"The tank didn't have a quick close valve on it, and when the base from it pulled off, the fuel just sprayed."

Del Roy said he would recommend this summer that the five-gallon tank be outlawed. In its place, he will recommend enlarging the main gas tank in the racers, providing proper energy-absorbing material is installed around the tank.

"It shouldn't be any problem. You can put 25 gallons on the left side and 15 on the right and still have enough room to put in the proper amount of cushioning protection." The cars which run the Indianapolis circuit carry 40 gallons of gas.

As a stop-gap measure, Del Roy said he would recommend that ears running USAC races in the near future have breakaway, self-sealing valves installed in the small tank near the driver. Such a device might have prevented Sneva from being burned.

Immigrant Cut Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Art Phillips of Vancouver said Tuesday that immigration should be cut by more than 50 per cent to a maximum inflow of 100,000 people per year.

In a brief to the joint Senate-Commons Committee on Immigration, Phillips said the only effective way to cope with immigration is to control the over-all influx of persons into Canada.

He said priority could be given to immigrants who agree to locate in under-populated areas, but he added that this would be only a temporary solution at best.

"What would we do if they (the immigrants) moved in a few years. Put them in jail?" he asked.

Art Lee (L-Vancouver East) asked the mayor if he had considered the possibility of provincial visas to restrict interprovincial migration.

Phillips said he thought it was a "bad idea," that people should not be restricted from moving freely within Canada.

He said the main problem that immigration poses for the Vancouver area is overcrowding, rather than racial tension.

"About one-half of the population increase in the Greater Vancouver region is direct immigration from outside Canada... (the subsequent) increase in land and housing costs has resulted in a demand from the people of this region that population growth be brought under control," he said.

Phillips said about 96 per cent of the hundreds of phone calls and letters he has received has been favorable to his previously-proposed curbs on immigration.

Among the other proposals to limit immigration was one from Pam Medland, a West Vancouver high school student who called for an end to sponsored and nominated immigration because Canadians "should have some right to control the type of person coming to Canada."

She also said the door should be shut on admission of "refugee" immigrants and called for awarding of points in favor of would-be immigrants to agree to stay out of the three main population centres of Canada.

Home Wrecker Charged

KELOWNA (CP) — A 41-year-old man charged with demolishing two newly-constructed houses was remanded in provincial court Tuesday to June 26 to undergo psychiatric examination at Riverview Hospital in Coquitlam.

Frank Meses of Kelowna was arrested Sunday and charged with two counts of mischief after a man repeatedly rammed the houses with the blade of a backhoe tractor, causing an estimated $40,000 damage.

The houses, owned by Abbey Estates Ltd., will have to be completely rebuilt, according to RCMP.

CanCel Plans Cuts, Closures

CASTLEGAR (CP) — The provincial government-controlled Canadian Cellulose Co. Ltd. announced Tuesday it will shut down operations at its Castlegar kraft pulp mill from Aug. 10 to Sept. 2.

Orjan Burchardt, vice-president of the company's interior pulp operations, said the shutdown was due to worsening world pulp-marketing conditions and the resulting need to reduce excessive inventories.

He said approximately 300 employees at the pulp mill are expected to take vacations during the three-week closure, except for those involved in a limited amount of necessary maintenance work.

"Timing of the closure to take place during prime vacation period should eliminate or minimize the need for any layoffs to occur," Burchardt said.

"The Castlegar mill traditionally supplies pulp largely to customers in the United States," he explained. "The U.S. printing and writing-paper industry, which accounts for more than 70 per cent of all market pulp sales, is in a very depressed state."

Blacks Get Grant

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall announced Monday the government has provided a $2,000 grant to the National Black Coalition of Canada to help send two British Columbians of black origin to the African Festival of Art and Culture in Nigeria this fall.

"During the first quarter of this year industry shipments from that sector were down more than 25 per cent from the same quarter in 1974. The downturn is the worst in the U.S. paper industry since the 1930s," he added.

The company also reported plans for additional curtailments in its sulphite dissolving pulp mill at Prince Rupert for two weeks in September, and said it also is reviewing possible kraft pulp cutbacks at Prince Rupert.

b.c. briefs

Flops in 'Tourist' Class

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rentalsman Barrie Clarke said Tuesday skid road hotels are outside his jurisdiction and tenants face the same rent increase and eviction rules as those at tourist hotels.

Clarke had said skid road tenants were protected by most provisions of the Landlord and Tenant Act.

He said his lawyers now have informed him that hotels, by common law definition, license space to their occupants and are thus exempt from the act.

He said he has asked Attorney-General Alex Macdonald to introduce legislation which would give skid road residents protection.

COQUITLAM (CP) — Chris Woodward, associate deputy minister of municipal affairs, said Monday a six-week investigation into allegations of misuse of public funds by two Coquitlam aldermen has not found sufficient reason to call a public inquiry. In early April, 203 residents petitioned for an inquiry after Ald. Charles Fillard and Ald. Len Bewley and Ald. Jack Gilmore made false claims for out-of-town expense and per-diem allowances while on municipal business. Woodward said council had been "lackadaisical" about expense claims but had acted within the Municipal Act.

SURREY (CP) — Municipal council has asked the provincial government to take over the King George Private Hospital. The hospital owners previously approached Victoria to buy the hospital but Health Minister Dennis Cocke said the undisclosed asking price was too high. Earlier this year, the hospital was told by the government to rectify nine major deficiencies in care or lose its licence and a government inspection in April showed conditions improved.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. College of Dental Surgeons recommended Monday that B.C. Dentists refrain from using the Nuva-Lite device, used to seal plastic dental fillings with the aid of ultraviolet light, because it has been linked to 31 cases of radiation burns in the U.S. A modification kit making the device safe is being prepared by the manufacturer, a college statement said.

HARRISON (CP) — Michael Whenderson, 30, of Cultus Lake was killed Monday after he was pinned by a log which he attempted to jump over in a steep area.

The accident occurred at the Silver River Logging Division of B.C. Forest Products, north of Harrison Lake.

KELOWNA (CP) — The Attorney-General's office is investigating labor problems at local provincial and family courts after administrative personnel booked off sick Friday to protest understaffing.

Normally five employees handle administration of both courts, but two vacancies created by resignations in April have not been filled, a spokesman said.

"They are under a lot of pressure because of staff vacancies," said Peter Clark, director of personnel services for the attorney-general's department. "They need bodies here."

He said the employees who booked off sick will have to substantiate their claims.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Machinists employed across Canada by CP Air have voted 65 per cent in favor of accepting a two-year contract with the airline, a union spokesman said Tuesday.

Business agent Tony Steele said the 1,800 employees, members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, will receive a wage increase of 29 per cent plus fringe benefits. A journeyman machinist made $1,075 a month under the old contract.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich said Tuesday he and members of his staff will meet today with management of British Columbia Ice and Cold Storage which was struck 12 weeks ago, holding up distribution of millions of pounds of food.

The strike at three company warehouses is by 28 members of the Canadian Food and Allied Workers. In cold storage is 11 million pounds of produce and large amounts of beef and poultry.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Housing Minister Lorne Nicholson said Tuesday housing for 8,000 people will be constructed on a 280.9-acre site in nearby Surrey. He said his department has agreed to advance $380,000 to install water mains northeast of Newton, and a mixture of at least 2,250 single-family, townhouse and apartment units will be built.

NELSON (CP) — The Folkfest Committee announced Tuesday the annual Folkfest has been cancelled because of a lack of co-operation from city council. Council said poor parking and security problems, with instances of drinking and nudity, were the reasons the committee was denied use of city facilities.

QUEEN OF SURREY GETS HER BUBBLY

SURREY (CP) — A bottle of champagne Tuesday commissioned the Queen of Surrey, the largest and newest member of the British Columbia ferries fleet.

Jean Hall, wife of Ernie Hall, provincial secretary and travel industry minister, commissioned the five-deck, 410-foot vessel.

The ferry, formerly the Ms. Stena Danica of Gothenburg, Sweden, has been twice prepared for commissioning since beginning operations last August. Lack of dock facilities and service commitments delayed commissioning.

Transport Minister Bob Strachan said the ship, now on the Horseshoe Bay-Nanaimo run, will eventually become part of the planned extended coastal route which will service B.C. between its extreme northern and southern points.

$3 Minimum Wage Urged for Province

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — An immediate increase in the provincial minimum wage to three dollars an hour, with further increases to four dollars an hour by January, 1976, has been recommended by the Prince George and District Labor Council.

In a brief Tuesday to the Board of Industrial Relations hearing on revisions to the Minimum Wage Act, the council said the average annual wage increase in negotiated contracts it examined was between 20 and 25 per cent.

Howard Webb, secretary of the Council, told the board the average base rate in the contracts examined was $5.21, compared to the existing minimum wage of $2.50 an hour.

"The higher escalation of food prices, compared to other commodities, affect the minimum wage earner to a greater degree that it does his unionized counterpart," said Webb.

He said a greater proportion of the minimum wage earner's pay cheque goes toward "the bare necessities of life."

Northern Vandals Rouse City's Ire

THOMPSON, Man. (CP) — Mayor Tom Farrell says the city is "at wit's end" to know what to do with the kind of vandalism it experienced last weekend when many shops in a large shopping mall were looted and wrecked.

"It cannot go on," he said. "I am applying to all social agencies including our own city officials to come up with some solution.

"My greatest concern is that if we do not resolve the situation there is evidence that some people will want to take the situation into their own hands. It is a very serious situation."

The City Centre Mall Merchant's Association met Monday to assess the extent of the vandalism that hit 15 of 25 commercial shops in the complex Sunday morning.

Kep Biebert, association president, said after viewing the damage:

"The place certainly looked like a disaster area when the vandals did their work Sunday morning. This thing is happening too often."

"The first time was on Good Friday morning. We did some review of our security at that time but now we've got to do a lot more."

The vandals kicked in windows and generally messed up the shops, stealing some items.

"The strange thing was that they had no sense of actual value," said George Buchholz, owner of a camera shop.

"In my shop there were so many valuable items which could have been destroyed and were not touched. Their only motive seems to have been to make a mess."

The mayor said instances of vandalism by juveniles have been prevalent in the northern mining community over the last six months. He said he has raised the matter with Attorney-General Howard Pawley and requested stronger law enforcement and heavier sentences be used in dealing with the lawbreakers.

Police have questioned several juvenile suspects in connection with the spree but no charges have yet been laid.

GUNMAN CALMED

CALGARY (CP) — A 35-year-old truck driver, armed with a rifle and a shotgun, held a woman in her home for seven hours Tuesday before being persuaded by a psychiatrist to go to a hospital.

Police said the man broke into the woman's house in northwest Calgary at about 7 a.m. and held the woman and her six-year-old daughter. The girl was allowed to leave the house shortly after 9 a.m.

Police surrounded the house but the man warned them not to come near. It was not known what he wanted.

Police made several telephone calls trying to persuade the man to surrender. The man later agreed to let Dr. Keith Pearce, director of the psychiatric department at Foothills Hospital, to enter the suite.

the prairies

EDMONTON (CP) — Easo service station operators have asked the four western premiers to intervene in their current dispute with Imperial Oil Ltd.

Following a meeting of 75 dealers representing western Canada at Red Deer Monday, the premiers and Prime Minister Trudeau have been asked to step in because the dealers say Imperial Oil "is refusing to negotiate further."

The company and its dealers have been disputing a new rental policy, introduced by the company early this year, which the dealers say in some instances would double current rates.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Members of the Manitoba legislature gave second reading approval in principle Tuesday to a new royalty system for mining companies by a vote of 32 to 15.

The proposed metallic minerals royalty act would establish a two-tiered system of royalties based on profits, investment in the province, depreciation and the rate of inflation.

A basic 12.5-per-cent royalty would be charged on normal profits, and a 35-per-cent rate would be applied to so-called super-profits.

NORTH BATTLEFORD Sask. (CP) — The Canadian Union of Public Employees served strike notice on the city of North Battleford effective at midnight Tuesday.

EDMONTON (CP) — An agreement has been reached between the 600-bed Misericordia Hospital and 375 non-medical employees who went on strike April 22, forcing the hospital to close early this month. R. B. D'Este, assistant deputy minister of labor, announced Tuesday.

SASKATOON (CP) — Employees who walked off their jobs last Thursday at Midwestern News Agency in support of contract demands have rejected the latest company offer, it was announced Tuesday.

The company offered a 50-per-cent increase over 10 months but the workers, members of the Retail Clerks' International Association, want a 70-per-cent increase.

Living Costs Higher Inside Jail

EDMONTON (CP) — It took more money than many Albertans earn in a year to keep one prisoner for a year in one of Alberta's jails, the annual report of the solicitor-general's department says.

It costs $12,826.10 to keep a prisoner for one year in the Peace River jail, the report said.

The report was tabled by Solicitor-General Roy Farran in the legislature Tuesday.

The annual costs of keeping one inmate in the other provincial jails were as follows: Lethbridge $10,108.42; Fort Saskatchewan $7,099.25; Calgary $6,084.55; and Belmont $8,344.49.

It cost the province a total of $8,742,377.67 to run the province's five correctional institutions.

The report also stated that total admissions of male and female offenders increased by 1.1 per cent and 41.7 per cent respectively to 12,282 and 960.

The number of native offenders is steadily declining the study showed. There were 6,134 in 1966 and 2,888 in 1973-74.

Also during the year 2,351 temporary absence passes were issued. There were 473 day passives. Of these there were 29 failures to return on time.

Topless Rub Shop Owner Out to Strip Restrictions

WINNIPEG (CP) — The owner of two topless massage parlors plans to take the city to court over a cover-up.

Under terms of a recent bylaw amendments to take effect June 1, the owners of rub clubs will be required to clothe masseuses in non-transparent garments from the knee to the neck with sleeves no lower than the elbow.

The bylaw also requires owners to register the names and addresses of patrons and make them available to city officials; restricts operating hours to between 8 a.m. and 11 p.m.; prohibits anyone under the age of 18 to enter parlors; and bans the use of doors with locks.

Understandably, the new regulations have produced a howl of protest from owners of the 10 or so body shops in Winnipeg.

Ken Dusang, the owner of Key Girl and Tokyo Oriental massage studios, plans to file an injunction to delay the pending regulations and challenge the legality of the bylaw through the courts.

As president of the newly-formed Manitoba Massage Parlor Association, Dusang has emerged as the most vehement defender of nude and topless massage parlors. He has already won two legal battles with the city after it refused to grant licences for both his studios.

The city's main concern appears to be the belief that the parlors are merely fronts for prostitution — a charge Dusang staunchly challenged in the council meeting that adopted the new regulations by a 43 to 4 margin.

"The girls in my parlor clear between $250 and $500 a week — with that kind of salary, you don't have to work as a prostitute," he said.

"Massage parlors have been in this city for 1½ years and there hasn't been one conviction for prostitution. There is just no evidence."

'Rumors' First On Meat

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal inspector suspected that tainted meat was being sold in Quebec four months before going to the RCMP, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Tuesday.

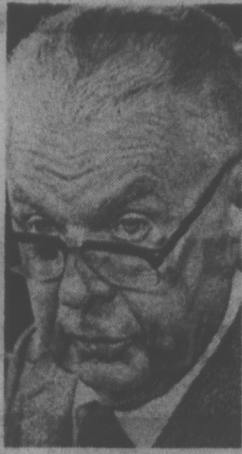

When the Montreal inspector first stumbled across the tainted meat scandal in October, 1973, "he was dealing in rumors," the minister told the Commons.

"His investigation took time and it was very complicated." RCMP and Quebec Provincial Police started investigating in February, 1974, but there still has been "no written or oral correspondence between myself and the Quebec government."

Opposition critics told Lalonde Tuesday he should have warned consumers as soon as the health department suspected tainted meat was being sold in Quebec.

Lalonde said he is awaiting the completion of a Quebec Police Commission inquiry before laying charges under the Food and Drug Act.

The commission has been told that thousands of pounds of meat from dead and diseased animals has been sold in Quebec. It also has been suggested that some tainted meat reached Ontario.

Vintage Diefenbaker Vinegar Poured on PM

By PETER THOMSON
(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — The performance, and it was a remarkable performance, was vintage Diefenbaker.

The 80-year-old former prime minister started by accusing Prime Minister Trudeau of trying to destroy his reputation with statements that were "undiluted by an atom of truth."

But it was the incomparable technique with which Diefenbaker scored his points that drew admiration from members of all parties, and anger from a few Liberals who tried to shout him down.

With deliberate care Diefenbaker attacked and shredded a speech made last week by Trudeau in defence of Prime Ministerial spending.

As Diefenbaker noted, Trudeau had chosen to attack rather than defend.

"There are fish in Elji that when in difficulty exude a black fluid to conceal themselves and their position," the former prime minister commented.

But, he explained, he was raising the issue "to be protected against distortions and statements that bear no relationship to the facts."

The prime minister, explained Diefenbaker, was in the position of trying to explain how it was that his staff has increased five-fold since he took office in 1968 and the budget of the prime minister's office and Privy Council office had increased 39 times to almost $20 million.

As Liberals howled in protest Diefenbaker quipped: "I have touched a nerve over there."

And as the protests encouraged by Supply and Services Minister J. P. Goyer, increased, Diefenbaker quipped: "I have never had such audience participation."

The prime minister, said Diefenbaker, had always regarded Machiavelli as his political godfather — and Machiavelli had said that "lies have their position — lies when used are bound to be useful."

Speaker James Jerome urged the former prime minister to get to his question of privilege. But the veteran of the Commons was in no hurry. He was enjoying his show.

Then, turning periodically to encourage the support of Conservative backbenchers, Diefenbaker started tearing the Trudeau speech apart.

The Prime Minister had said that possession of his $80,000 cars had shown "paranoia on my part."

"I never said that, Mr. Speaker," chortled Diefenbaker, "but I am surprised that he came to that conclusion."

The prime minister had said that during his term Diefenbaker had had a bomb shelter "built at substantial public expense."

The bomb shelter, he explained, had been installed because all Western leaders were having such provisions made at the fearful time of the cold war. And the bomb shelter had cost $400.

That was some comparison a $400 bomb shelter to two $80,000 dreadnaughts the armor plated Cadillacs obtained for Trudeau.

The prime minister had referred to acquisition of 1,400 acres at Harrington Lake while Diefenbaker was prime minister.

"I had nothing to do with the purchase of that land," he declared with righteous indignation. "It was purchased in 1951 by the Capital Commission when Louis St Laurent was prime minister."

Then, referring to Justin Trudeau calling his father "a wicked man," Diefenbaker said "Justin was right."

"I am amazed that the prime minister should have done that," said Mr. Diefenbaker.

The prime minister had also referred to Mr. Diefenbaker having Harrington Lake the summer home of Prime Ministers stocked with fish.

"Less than $2,000 was spent on Harrington Lake during my term," challenged Diefenbaker.

He noted that Trudeau had said he didn't intend to stock his swimming pool, except perhaps with a couple of sharks.

A prime minister's statements, he added, should carry the same authority as though they were made under oath. These statements by Prime Minister Trudeau, however, had been made to "destroy my reputation."

Would he accept an apology from Trudeau?

"I would throw myself on the mercy of the House... he could say, 'I fell into a pit,'" said Diefenbaker, trying to hide his inner laughter.

Again he noted that Justin had been quoted as referring to his father as "a wicked old fellow."

"That boy has perspicacity, wisdom and political knowledge far beyond his years," said the former prime minister.

And as he turned away from the cameras he added a parting shot: "Oh, Justin is clever as hell."

Pardons for Pot Users?

OTTAWA (CP) — A Senate committee stopped just short Tuesday of proposing that simple possession of marijuana no longer be a crime.

The committee amended the cannabis bill it was studying to extend an automatic pardon to first offenders who are given an absolute or conditional discharge for possession. Toughest penalty for possession would be a maximum $500 fine. The present maximum is a $1,000 fine, six months in jail or both.

In the case of absolute discharges — in which the court convicts but releases the offender without further penalty — the pardon would be deemed to take effect immediately.

In conditional discharges, it would take effect at the end of whatever probationary period the court imposed.

The committee, whose report was tabled Tuesday night in the Senate, nudged judges toward greater use of absolute or conditional discharges of first offenders, followed by an automatic pardon to erase an criminal record. It would go no further.

"From a practical point of view there is no way we could get that law removing simple possession as an offence through in Canada today," Senator Joan Neuman (L.-Ontario), who is piloting the Senate bill, said in an interview later. "There is no way the public would accept it."

A federal commission on non-medical use of drugs recommended in 1972 that possession of marijuana no longer be a crime. The Law Reform Commission of Canada indicated before the committee that it felt the same way.

Arthur Maloney, Ontario's new ombudsman, reflected these views in recent comments.

Senator Carl Goldenberg (L.-Quebec), the committee chairman, said he feels a forward step will be taken if automatic pardons are granted first offenders, now saddled with criminal records that can be a handicap in getting jobs or travelling abroad.

Last year, 27,202 persons were sentenced for cannabis offences — 18,648 being fined, 2,284 getting absolute discharges, 3,186 conditional discharges, and 999 jail sentences, 905 of them under six months and four of them two to three years.

Only two of the tens of thousands of sentences since 1949 for cannabis possession have been longer than four years.

EXECUTIVES REVIVE PAY

DETROIT (AP) — The top officers of Chrysler Corp., who took 50 per cent pay cuts last December, have restored their full salary because the company's financial fortunes have improved, a spokesman said Tuesday.

Mired in a deep sales slump, Chrysler lost a record $52 million in 1974 and reported a $94.1 million loss for the first three months of 1975, the largest quarterly loss in the firm's 50-year history.

Financial analysts expect Chrysler to lose money again in the current quarter, but they say the losses will be well below the red ink for the January-March period.

A spokesman said the board of directors restored executive salaries because Chrysler had "gotten over the main hurdle" of its financial difficulties and expects improved results this quarter.

Full pay for 35 executives was reinstituted beginning April 1. More than 1,000 middle-level officials, who took 15 per cent pay cuts on Dec. 1, also had their salaries restored at the start of last month, the spokesman said.

The top executives, who earned a total of $3.6 million in 1974, took pay cuts estimated at $600,000 during the four months, an average $10,900 a person.

Quebec Film Winner

PARIS (CP) — A Quebec film Les Ordres, directed by Michel Brault, has been declared co-winner of the prize for best direction at the Cannes International Film Festival.

This was the first prize ever given to a Canadian full-length film at the festival, said a spokesman for Cinema-Canada, which organized Canadian participation.

Michel Brault's film was co-winner with Special Section, a film by Costa-Gavras.

The festival organization chose Les Ordres, a film which examines the October crisis of 1970 in Quebec, from several full-length films offered by Cinema-Canada.

Most French critics at the festival acclaimed both the film and its producer.

The newspaper France-Soir wrote that the Brault film was not only a great film, but also a courageous work of protest against a government's abuse of power.

Les Ordres has been presented in several Parisian cinemas recently.

Kitchen No Place for Coffee Creamers

By DR. JEAN MAYER
Professor of Nutrition,
Harvard University

The typical North American diet is too high in calories and fat (especially saturated fat) and too low in some vitamins and minerals, as a number of surveys have shown. Current food prices certainly don't help. But by far the biggest culprit against healthy eating is our own free choice in the supermarket.

I can't think of a more typical example than the so-called "coffee creamers" that compete with milk in lightening North America's favorite beverage (and, I am told, of whetting down some people's breakfast cereal.)

What exactly is in those "creamers"? Admittedly, they are less trouble to keep and store than fresh milk is. Some cost no more than milk and are labeled "nondairy," which, to many people, means low-calorie, low-saturated fat or both.

Recently, Consumer Reports magazine evaluated a number of these coffee whiteners, analyzing their "nutritional properties," and their sodium and saturated-fat content. The results were enlightening.

An average serving was considered to be one teaspoon of the powdered "creamer," and one tablespoon of the liquid or of whole milk.

The powders averaged 16 calories per serving, the liquid, 23 and milk, 17.

Milk is fairly high in sodium — about 8 milligrams per tablespoon — a problem for people on low-sodium diets.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Equivalent servings of the coffee whiteners, however, ranged from 5.2 to 8.7 milligrams. And one rated "very good" on taste had a whopping 16.7 milligrams of sodium.

Although the creamers contained vegetable fat, which makes them "nondairy," only three were actually low in saturated fat. (The butter fat of milk is contraindicated for persons with high blood cholesterol primarily because it is high in saturated fats, and not simply because it contains cholesterol.)

All other creamers, that probably contain coconut oil, a highly saturated vegetable fat, were between 98 and 100 per cent saturated. Even whole milk (let alone skim) is clearly lower in fat content with 37 per cent saturated fat and 33 per cent monounsaturates.

The coffee whiteners also contain sodium caseinate, a derivative of casein, a milk protein, corn syrup solids (which are empty calories) and small amounts of additives such as mono and diglycerides, dipotassium phosphate, calcium gluconate, sodium silico-aluminate, tricalcium phosphate, artificial flavor and color — which is a formula for coloring coffee white, and nothing more.

Now take a look at the contents of whole milk. For no more calories and less saturated fat, you also get sizeable amounts of calcium, complete milk protein, vitamins A and D (if the milk is fortified, as it should be), riboflavin, thiamine, niacin, pantothenic acid, vitamins B-6 and B-12, C and E, phosphorus, magnesium and a number of trace minerals. That is an impressive list.

Still, you may argue, one tablespoon makes little difference, one way or the other. But in a country where overweight is common and is a risk factor in some of our most prevalent causes of death and disability, such as atherosclerotic diseases and diabetes, we should make every calorie count in terms of nutrients. And few of us stop at one cup of coffee. The calories mount up with each tablespoon; if it's milk that's being added, you also get nutrients.

There may be a place for "coffee creamers" aboard an airliner 30,000 feet over the Rockies, where milk is difficult to store and to serve. But there should be no place for it in your family kitchen.

Better Labels Seen as Aid To Consumers

TORONTO (CP)—Canadian consumers are more educated and questioning than ever before, but have less first-hand knowledge about food, says Prof. Marion Vaisey of the University of Manitoba.

She told delegates at the Food Story '75 seminar, sponsored by Grocery Products Manufacturers of Canada, that consumers want to be informed as well as protected.

"Consumers have been criticized for not reading labels," said Vaisey, a member of the university's home economics faculty.

"Perhaps they might if there were more there that they wanted to know."

Recent studies showed the price of meat acted as a quality guide for consumers, although the cost "does not predict how much protein you actually might get to eat when the meat is cooked."

And recent studies indicated consumers were victims of the "great fat controversy" in which they associate leanmeats with tenderness.

Another problem is how meat is cooked. Studies showed "many people do not use the most appropriate method for cooking the kind of steak they buy."

She cited instances of broiling chuck and round steak, when braising is the best method.

The professor said the food industry has not responded to permissive nutrient enrichment legislation because some additives such as vitamin A and iron may add unpleasant flavors to food.

A recent survey of Winnipeg homemakers indicated 69 per cent considered processed foods lower in nutrients than fresh foods.

But consumers, and even food processors, are often poorly informed about what nutrients are important in each food and what difference a small loss can make.

Best Beans Bubble Slowly in Salt Pork, Molasses

Robert Service once remarked that the true call of the wild was not the lonesome howl of the wolf, but the dyspeptic burping of bearded miners.

Nonetheless, dried beans sold for as much as $1.75 a pound in Klondike days, not just because they were easy to carry and to keep in good shape for months on end, but because they contain high mineral content and much protein.

I love beans. I have eaten them cold from a can hacked open with a jack knife in the heat of an African desert and the sight of a pot bubbling beside a wilderness fire on which I'm cooking fresh fish filets, never fails to make my mouth water. And I've even eaten with relish that truly standard item of the English trucking "caf", beans on toast. But the best of all is home-baked lovingly in a slow oven in a sealed bean pot, with molasses, maple syrup and salt pork.

In these days of spiralling food costs, the common dried beans are almost up to the price the miners paid and few of us have bags filled with gold dust. However they are still a remarkably nutritious and economical food and can form the base of superlative dishes.

There are a score of types, but all contain protein, a good level of thiamine and a high content of iron. And apart from dried Lima beans, they are not as fattening as one might believe — for example a cup and a bit of cooked pea beans contains around 110 calories, as well as almost half the iron required in a daily diet.

My regular use of dried beans includes casseroles, bean soup and a home-made chili con carne produced from leftovers of the greatest bean dish on earth, home-baked beans simmered hour after hour in a glazed earthenware bean pot and served with the appropriate fixings.

Since beans are generally held to be a lowly dish by those who have only known the canned variety, it might appear foolish on my part to suggest the cooking of a home-baked batch as the central portion of a meal to serve to dinner guests; do it once and discover the truth I write.

One of my favorite forms of parties is where one turns up carrying a share of the liquid and solid refreshments required. It is the old way but I am enchanted to discover that the younger folks these days do the same as a matter of course.

My usual offering in the food line is a big pot of beans and one of my home-made Melton Mowbray pies. It's always fun to hear a guest remark with surprise, "have you tasted those beans? ... they are great."

So here's my recipe for home-baked beans. Please notice that I don't use tomato in the recipe. To me that's akin with mixing an aged cognac with lemonade.

OVEN-BAKED BEANS
An oven pot with a tight-fitting lid is essential. You can use any pot you own but for discovering the true flavor, you really need a true bean pot of glazed earthenware with twin handles and a lid.

Mine cost me under $3 a number of years back, but I priced them in my village store today and they had a $6 price tag. They are well worth it because they double for great casserole dishes that need long, slow cooking.

TINY BENNETT

Check the well-equipped fruit markets along the rural highways or the village stores, avoid the fancy, and ensure the pot is not lead-glazed but is built for cooking.

The night before, put two cups of pea beans into a bowl, rinse well, drain and pop into a big bowl with 12 cups of water and leave to soak overnight. First thing, even before breakfast, drain and save the water; put the beans in a saucepan; just cover with fresh water; bring to the boil; lower the heat and simmer for about half an hour. Drain off a spoonful, blow on the beans and when the skins of the beans wrinkle, take them off the heat and cover.

Drop a small, peeled onion into your pot, strain off the beans and spoon into the pot, pushing the onion down to keep it at the bottom.

In a basin, prepare this mix:

To 1-3 cup of brown sugar, add 1 tablespoon salt; 1½ teaspoon dry mustard; ½ teaspoon ground black pepper; ¼ cup raw black molasses (imported from the West Indies, none of that refined junk) and ¼ cup of good maple syrup — pancake syrup will do. Now boil up the bean's steeping water for mixing up this seasoning, adding just enough to make it flow nicely.

Push thick slices of salt pork or green bacon with the skin still on down into the beans and when you can't get any more in, pour in the mix, adding boiling steeping water to the mixing bowl, whisking to get all the seasoning, and keep pouring into the pot until the liquid level is just above the beans.

Tightly seal the pot with foil, allowing slack in the mouth so the lid can be pressed down tight as an extra seal, crimp the foil carefully around the neck; put the pot in the oven, set at 250 and leave for eight hours. Save the bean's steeping water and, if necessary, add a little. But take the lid and foil off for the final 30 minutes of baking to brown the beans.

You can cook them overnight, take them out in the morning — leaving them sealed—and use the oven for roasting. About an hour before serving, reheat the bean pot.

Beans go great with roast pork, baked ham or anything.

And reheated, beans are better than the originals. I love them for breakfast with grilled bacon or sausages. But the leftover should be saved for chili con carne for dinner the next day.

To make chili con carne, saute ground beef and sliced onion until browned, add the beans, dashes of powdered chili and serve with buttered toast.

A fine old-fashioned meal of roast pork shoulder, boned and stuffed is complimented by a pot of oven baked beans.

Some Tips for Singles With Cook Problems

"One of the problems of being single is what to eat."

"My problem is the monotony of eating the same thing day after day."

"I'm constantly on the go and never know when I'll be at home to eat."

"I throw a lot of food out because it spoils. And it's hard to freeze anything—my freezer is hardly big enough to hold ice cubes."

"I don't want to spend a lot of time in the kitchen. I want to prepare meals that are fast and simple."

These are typical comments from single people.

Here are a few tips for the single cook:

When you go to the supermarket keep single servings in mind. Economy sizes are no bargain if you throw half the food out. In the long run it will pay to spend a few cents more for smaller cans of vegetables, juice or tuna.

Buy just enough food for the week—don't stockpile. It's important to bear in mind how long foods will keep and how they must be stored.

When buying meat, buy out that freeze and thaw easily. Chicken breasts and individually wrapped hamburger patties take little freezer space and thaw quickly. Canned meat and fish such as tuna or salmon are always handy and keep well.

Buy small containers of dairy products. Milk and cottage cheese must be used quickly. Cultured dairy products as sour cream and yogurt can be stored for longer periods of time. And hard cheeses as Cheddar keep even longer. Grated Cheddar cheese freezes well too.

Generally your best bet is to select fresh produce individually. You don't pay a premium for buying just one apple, orange or banana. Zucchini, butter lettuce and carrots are good buys for the single person.

Avocados are perfect for single people. They store well, are quick and easy to prepare and add a new taste and texture to leftovers.

Avocados can be served in a variety of ways. A favorite for the single person is this tuna burger with avocado topping. It's simple, quick and best of all—no leftovers.

Tuna Burger with Avocado Topping
1 3½-oz. can of tuna.
2 tablespoons fine bread crumbs or crushed potato chips.
2 teaspoons mayonnaise.
Salt, pepper and Worcestershire to taste.
2 teaspoons margarine.
1 slice yellow cheese.

Drain and rinse tuna. Combine tuna, bread crumbs, mayonnaise and seasoning ture to leftovers. And this year the price is right. Avocados are retailing for as low as four to five for $1.

Select firm avocados in the supermarket—these are the freshest. Ripen them at room temperature for three to five days. Ripe avocados will be soft and yield to gentle pressure. Once they ripen they can be refrigerated and kept for eight to ten days.

To prepare an avocado, cut it in half lengthwise, cutting around the seed. Twist the halves to separate them and remove the seed by whacking a knife into it and twisting to lift it out. Peel the halves by placing the cut surfaces down and stripping or peeling the skin away.

Dates Provide Natural Energy

Dates as a natural sweetener were used many centuries before the advent of commercial sugar. Not until around 1800 was commercial cane sugar in common use; for a century or two before it was available only to the rich or to apothecaries for medicinal purposes.

An allowance of two dates at one meal together with the natural sugars found also in other fruits, grains or vegetables at the same meal should be sufficiently energizing for most active adolescents and adults, making consumption of commercial sugar unnecessary.

We can buy dates ready to eat, whether in loose packs with the stones removed, compressed blocks of stoned dates, or loose packs still with stones. There is a difference in price and a difference in taste but no recorded difference in sugar content.

One warning: when using stoned dates, cut across each one with a knife to be sure the stone is out. Nearly every pack, whether loose or block, contains at least one stone. You cannot take a chance on breaking a precious tooth or swallowing the stone.

A couple of dates cut into small pieces add their quota of goodness and sweetness to a few spoons of homemade muesli or granola type breakfast food.

For a quick yet nutritious lunch when time is short, take a bowl of homemade yogurt with a couple of dates, a spoonful of muesli and you have something to chew on for five or six minutes that will last for several hours.

Cottage cheese and dates is another quick emergency meal. Enlarged with green lettuce, celery, chopped nuts and a whole wheat bun or slice of bread, any homemaker mother will be able to go through a busy afternoon at home without snacking.

Nutritionists are reaching the conclusion that the overweight of almost 60 per cent of us Canadians, teamed with malnutrition, is in part due to the reliance on sweet and starchy snack foods as a regular part of today's living—soft drinks, sodas, commercial cookies and the like. By using foods containing some of the natural sugars at each of our three meals, we soon find no need to rely on snacks to keep us going. We actually eat less; this in turn leads to less cost for living.

Dates are ideal to start with. Let us make first a Date Loaf, from which to cut slices for lunches at home or on trips, or to have in place of fruit sometimes at supper. It will also freeze for later use.

This recipe needs a low heat of 163 deg. C., so that a main dish of meat loaf or bean loaf can be cooked in the same oven heat. You can cut out even the 2 tablespoons of sugar too if you like, and the loaf will still be sweet enough for a healthy appetite.

DATE LOAF

- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 cup chopped dates
- 2 tbs soft margarine or soy oil
- 1 small egg
- 2 tbs demerara sugar (optional)
- 1½ cups mixed wholewheat flour, unbleached flour and wheat germ
- ¼ tsp salt
- ¼ tsp baking soda
- 1½ tsp baking powder
- ¼ cup chopped raw peanuts

In mixing bowl measure boiling water; add dates, sugar (if used) and margarine or oil. Let stand until cool, stirring and mixing a bit.

Add egg and beat with a fork. Measure dry ingredients into sifter. Combine with date mixture, gradually, stirring but not beating. Add nuts.

Spoon into a greased 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf pan.

Bake in warm oven at 163 deg. C. for about 1 hour or until loaf shrinks a little from pan.

Remove from pan and cool on wire rack.

Remember to keep baked goods containing wheat germ and whole wheat flour wrapped in waxed paper in the refrigerator after the first day. They soon spoil in a tin or cupboard; and are much too good eating to waste in such a way.

Now for a delicious dessert made with dates. This is lovely after a light salad supper. Keep the recipe in mind too for hot weather meals at home outdoors on sundeck or patio. No trouble to make, inexpensive when you make your own skim milk yogurt, and good.

1 envelope unflavored gelatin

DATE NUT GELATIN DESSERT

- 1 tbs cold water
- 2 cups homemade yogurt from skim milk powder
- ¾ cups finely chopped dates
- ½ cup finely chopped cashews and raw peanuts

Soak the gelatin in the cold water in a pan; place the pan in another pan of boiling water until gelatin dissolves.

Remove from the heat, stir in yogurt, then the dates and nuts.

Pour into 4 glass serving dishes; chill in refrigerator for several hours.

Next is a cake to serve in squares; a sort of old-fashioned marble cake, using dates and molasses for the dark part instead of the usual chocolate. The flavor of each part is distinctly different, so that you may like to have the cake as a checkerboard cake, keeping the squares separate instead of creating the marbling by partial mixing.

OLD FASHIONED MARBLE CAKE

- 1 cup soft margarine
- ¼ cup light brown sugar
- 3 small eggs
- 1 cup milk from skim powder
- 3 cups unbleached flour
- ½ cup mixed wholewheat flour and wheat germ
- 3 tsp baking powder
- ¼ tsp salt
- ½ cup finely chopped dates
- 2 tbs dark molasses
- 1 tbs decaffeinated instant coffee powder (optional)
- ½ tsp ginger or few chopped crystallized ginger pieces

Cream margarine with sugar in large bowl; beat in egg until smooth. Add milk alternately with the sifted flour, baking powder and salt. Take out half the batter into another bowl; add ginger pieces.

To first half add dates, molasses and coffee if used, and mix.

For a marbled effect: combine the two lots of batter in one bowl, just enough to have one streaked through the other. Then spoon the mixture into an 8x12-inch shallow pan or one of comparable capacity.

Drag a fork criss-cross the top to complete the marbling effect.

If the separate checkerboard effect is wanted: simply spoon the two batters into the pan alternately side-by-side, up and down the pan in about three rows, each lot touching the next.

Bake in moderate oven at 177 deg. C. for about 45 minutes or until a clean knife comes out clean. Don't over-bake.

Leave in pan and cut into squares when cooled. You'll like it.

Chewy, Chocolate Nut Cookies

By MARY MOORE

Since the number of letters from health food followers is increasing by the day, I made some lovely chewy cookies. Incidentally I was pleasantly surprised at your enthusiastic response to my 100 per cent whole wheat loaf. Thank you for your praise.

These cookies are chocolate and call for wheat germ, sunflower seeds, walnuts, and cocoa instead of cooking chocolate and are EASY.

CHOCOLATE HEALTH NUT DROPS

- 1 c. brown sugar
- 2 tbs. oil
- 2 eggs
- 1 tbs. vanilla
- 1-3 c. cocoa
- 1 c. fresh wheat germ
- ¼ tsp. salt
- ½ c. all-purpose flour
- ½ c. sunflower seeds
- ½ c. coarsely chopped walnuts

Into beater bowl measure the brown sugar, oil, eggs and vanilla and beat 2 minutes. With beaters on "low" setting as you measure them add the cocoa, wheat germ, salt, flour, sunflower seeds and walnuts and mix. Scrape down sides of bowl with rubber scraper and chill dough at least ½ hour.

Butter or grease three cookie sheets. Using a silver teaspoon heaped a little drop dough onto cookie sheets at least 2" apart. I had 3 dozen.

Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. I switched my pans in the oven after 5 minutes and one pan was baked in 6 minutes. The others required 8 minutes.

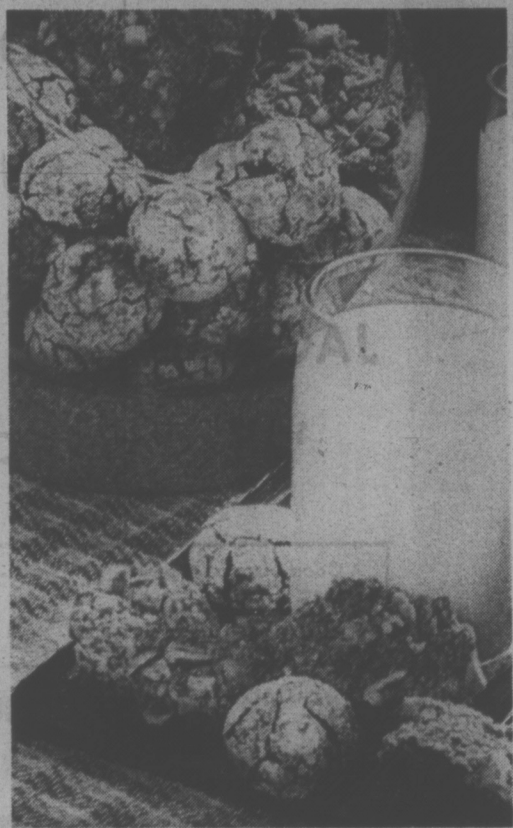

So watch these cookies for they might easily burn. Do not let that happen. They are too good for even one to be wasted.

Cool on cake racks. Store between sheets of wax paper in cookie tin. Great for lunch boxes.

NOTE: Write to Mary Moore, 32 Churchill Ave., Hamilton, Ont., enclosing stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents for each specified recipe.

BRAISED BEEF RIBS IN HAWAIIAN MARINADE

Marinate braising ribs in the following Hawaiian marinade, for at least 2 hours. Remove ribs from the marinade and place marinade in a saucepan.

Add 1 tbsp. cornstarch which has been blended with a small amount of cold water. Heat and stir until the sauce turns clear and becomes slightly thickened. Place the ribs on the barbecue grill and cook brushing frequently with the sauce.

Wrap the pineapple chunks and 1/4 cup green pepper strips in foil and place on the barbecue for the last 5-10 minutes. To serve place ribs on a platter, cover with rest of sauce and top with pineapple and green pepper. Serve with fluffy white rice.

HAWAIIAN MARINADE

Juice drained from a 19 oz. can pineapple chunks.

1/4 cup vinegar
1 tbsp. soya sauce
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup vinegar
1 tbsp. soya sauce
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 cup brown sugar.

HAWAIIAN KEBABS

For a great variation, use cubes of beef and after marinating, place cubes on skewers alternating with pineapple chunks and green pepper wedges. Brush with the Hawaiian barbecue sauce during barbecuing.

SPECIAL BARBECUED ROAST

5-6 lb. rolled rib roast
Seasonings — salt, pepper and garlic salt.

Season roast and place on barbecue spit making sure the spit is in the middle of the roast so that the roast rotates evenly. Place over barbecue fire and cook approximately 3 hours. Use a meat thermometer to determine doneness.

To build a good fire, place a double layer of briquets near the back of the barbecue and start fire 45 minutes to 1 hour before cooking. Drafts should be controlled by a wind break. To increase heat, knock the white ashes off the briquets and the heat will double for the next few minutes.

Soya Substitute for Minced Beef

Broiled meat patties, meat loaf and spaghetti sauce taste just as good when they are made with soyaburger as they do when made with all minced beef.

Patties made with soyaburger cost about five and one-half cents less per three ounce serving than ones made with minced beef and even greater savings can be made when extenders such as bread crumbs and milk are used.

Soyaburger is a mixture of 25 to 30 per cent textured soy protein and 70 to 75 per cent minced beef. Its flavor and cooking characteristics were compared with those of minced beef in dishes usually prepared with minced beef — broiled meat patties, spaghetti sauce and meatloaf. Consumer taste panelists liked both equally and did not feel that additional spices or flavorings were required in those made with the soya-burger. They did find however that the soyaburger patties were slightly less moist than those made with the minced beef, but this did not seem to affect their acceptability.

Because of the shorter cooking time required cooking losses were less for all products made from the soyaburger. Also the textured soy protein absorbs some of the juices normally lost when all minced beef is used.

Cost comparisons were based on soyaburger being 20 cents less per pound than minced beef. The differences in cooking losses were also taken into account.

Lemon, Lime Marmalade

(Makes about 11 half-pint jars.)

3 cups thinly sliced limes (6 to 7 medium limes)
2 lemons, sliced into half cartwheels (1 1/4 cups)
3 quarts water
Sugar

2 to 3 drops green food coloring

Combine sliced limes and lemons and water in a glass bowl, cover and let stand 24 hours. Place in large, heavy saucepan and bring to full boil. Boil rapidly uncovered for 25 minutes or until peel is tender. Measure fruit and liquid. Add an equal amount of sugar.

Return to heat, stirring until sugar dissolves. Boil rapidly until mixture sheets from spoon or reaches a temperature of 220 degree F., approximately 25 to 35 minutes. Skim, as necessary, during hot sterilized jars. Seal with paraffin.

Yields approximately 11 cups. cooking and gently stir occasionally to avoid sticking. Remove from heat and stir, skim.

Add food coloring. Stir to combine uniformly. Pour into

Almost Any Menu Fine for Brunch

By MARIAN BURROS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Those who like to get up early on Sunday mornings are natural hosts for a brunch. Brunches have distinct advantages: the host isn't expected to put on a full-course dinner, or serve as many drinks, and guests are unlikely to stay more than two or three hours. The only problem with giving a brunch is figuring out exactly what to serve. Should it be breakfast food, lunch food, or something in between?

Almost any kind of menu, from steak cooked on a grill to omelets made to order, can qualify as a brunch. So can everything from smoked salmon to fried fish, chicken livers to stuffed crepes, grits to cheese souffles or even steak and kidney pie.

For a group of more than six people, the best plan is to serve food that doesn't mind waiting, since it is sometimes difficult to get a large number of people in from their Bloody Marys and Screwdrivers.

Speaking of drinks before brunch, don't forget wine and beer drinkers, those who appreciate a cup of coffee or those who would simply like to begin with orange juice.

Brunches can start as early as 10 a.m. or as late as noon. They are almost always very informal since the word, of course, is a compendium of breakfast and lunch. That arbiter of etiquette, Emily Post, considered the word an abomination. But then she thought lunch was an abomination, too.

BUFFET LUNCH FOR 12

Cold Cucumber Soup
Kedgeree
Marinated Mushrooms
Hot Breads, Sweet Rolls
Cheeses, Butter, Fruit
Coffee

People probably will not want the curry-flavored Kedgeree with sweet rolls and butter. They may prefer to go back to the buffet for them as a finish to the meal.

CUCUMBER SOUP

Serves 12

6 Tablespoons butter
3/4 cup chopped green onion
4 1/2 cups chopped, unpeeled cucumbers
1 heaping cup diced potatoes
6 cups chicken broth
1 1/2 cups watercress leaves
Salt and pepper to taste
Hot pepper sauce to taste
3 cups sour cream
Minced chives for decoration

Saute green onion in hot butter in skillet until onion is wilted. Add cucumbers, potatoes and chicken broth; simmer for 15 minutes, add watercress. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Puree in blender or through food mill. Chill. When cooled, add hot pepper sauce and sour cream. Mix well and chill for at least two hours longer in a non-metallic container. Serve in cups, garnished with chives.

KEDGEREE

2 cups long grain rice cooked
2 pounds canned salmon
1/4 pound butter or margarine
2 tablespoons curry powder
1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper
8 hard-cooked eggs, sieved or finely minced
Salt
1/4 cup finely chopped parsley
Cook rice in salted water. Melt butter over moderate heat. Sprinkle in curry and

Father's Nose Best

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old unmarried woman. My father is Jewish, and my mother is Irish. I have always looked more like my father because I have the same little bump on my nose that he has. I never minded the bump because I love my father very much, and I never did get along with my mother.

Well, I got into an automobile accident, and they called in a plastic surgeon to sew up my face. Since my nose was in pretty bad shape, this doctor took the bump off, and I now look like my mother instead of my father.

Even though people remark on what an improvement it is, I became very depressed. I even went to a psychiatrist, and he said I should have the plastic surgeon restore my nose the way it was. That's what I want to do.

My problem is everybody I talk to, they tell me I should have my head examined. What do you say? — Loves Daddy

DEAR LOVES: You DID have your head examined and were advised to do what you want to do about your nose. So do it.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I weighed 400 pounds. My life was hardly worth living. In fact, I planned to commit suicide after reaching the age of 21. (I was going to take heroin.)

I am now 22 and weigh 200 pounds, and I haven't touched drugs of any kind — and that includes alcohol and cigarettes — for two years.

I owe it all to a wonderful doctor at the University Hospital in Iowa City, Iowa, who performed a gastric bypass on me. Now I can eat as much as I want (which isn't very much anymore) and never worry about putting on a pound.

I wish you would print this for others who have found that dieting didn't work for them. — One Happy Fellow

DEAR HAPPY: You make it sound so simple. After considerable research, I learned that gastric-bypass surgery, which proved so successful for you, is not for everyone. There are risks involved.

Workshops On Noise

The Canadian Scientific Pollution and Environmental Control Society is sponsoring a series of noise pollution workshops in Victoria schools.

The workshops, which will be given in 15 secondary schools in the area, will include taped presentations on noise levels in the community and an explanation of the effect of noise on human health.

The workshops, to be given by Hildegard Westerkamp and Trevor Tregellas, last about two hours, with the last 30 minutes left open for questions and discussion.

And yet another sale in good taste. From Sara Lee.

Sara Lee Blueberry Pie overflows with plump, ripe blueberries that are fresh-frozen without the gluey filling nobody likes.

When we make Sara Lee Apple Pie we don't use mushy pie filling, but full, choice slices of fresh apple.

Our Cherry Pie bulges with the pick of the cherry crop. And, like all Sara Lee pies, the crust is light and flaky.

Because all Sara Lee fruit-filled pies are fully baked, you can put it in the oven when you sit down to your first course and in about 30 minutes it'll be ready to serve in time for dessert.

After all, with pies this good, it wouldn't be in very good taste to keep you waiting one minute longer than you have to.

20¢ off any Sara Lee Pie.

3 Unions to Talk

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three unions involved in the B.C. forest industry have taken tentative steps to co-operate during the current round of contract negotiations.

The International Woodworkers of America, the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada and the Canadian Paperworkers Union have formed a liaison committee to exchange information.

The PPWC and the IWA already are involved in negotiations. The CPU is scheduled to start talks June 2.

A joint news release said the unions must work together to "the benefit of those that must make their living from the forest industry."

JOHN DEAN DISBARRED

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John W. Dean II, the former White House counsel who was President Richard Nixon's chief accuser in the watergate case, was formally disbarred Tuesday from practice before the supreme court.

Dean, who has been traveling in the lecture circuit since he was released from jail last January, was suspended by the supreme court Feb. 24 and given the 40 days to argue against disbarment.

Disbarment by the supreme court is a formality after a lawyer has been disbarred in a lower court.

Dean, who pleaded guilty to a charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice in connection with Watergate and served four months in jail, previously was disbarred in the District of Columbia.

Arsenic Threat Traced

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — A survey of arsenic levels in hair samples taken from residents of Yellowknife indicates that a health hazard may exist for workers in specific jobs in the city's mill and mine.

Findings of the survey were released Tuesday by Marc Lalonde, minister of national health and welfare. It was conducted as a follow-up to a previous study on arsenic in the environment in Yellowknife.

The survey found that individuals employed in specific mill occupations showed significantly higher levels than the population as a whole and required further examination and investigation. Underground miners did not show significant levels.

The study found that more than 90 per cent of other Yellowknife residents tested had arsenic levels of less than five parts per million in their hair and that there is no correlation between arsenic levels and drinking water sources in the northern city.

The survey program, carried out in February, took hair samples from 700 Yellowknife residents. Hair sampling is the most rapid method of initial screening for a large number of people and provides a measure of the degree of exposure to arsenic.

Persons who have no significant levels of arsenic in their hair will not have significant levels in their bodies.

In assessing the results of the survey, medical services branch official said there are differences of opinion among scientists as to what constitutes an elevated arsenic level in hair. Levels up to 10 parts per million have been found in populations with no known exposure to arsenic and this level is considered to be acceptable by some authorities. Others regard five parts per million as a level that can be accepted as occurring in non-exposed populations.

BEE REQUEST

"Consider the bee and make it a protected species" will be one of the requests made to government by the Provincial Council of Women, which held its annual meeting last week at the University of Victoria. The 86 delegates to the meeting discussed the theme Action for Ecological Survival.

Besides protecting the bee, they agreed to work for better noise control, better conservation of estuaries and continued preservation of agricultural land.

The provincial council will protest provincial government plans to allow beer sales in corner stores, and delegates stressed the need for better education on the danger of drug and alcohol.

Victoria women at the meeting voiced their concern about the excess of sex and violence in the mass media.

National Council of Women president Mrs. Gordon Armstrong of Brentwood Bay installed the new slate of officers. New provincial president is Mrs. J. R. Evans of Vancouver.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Judge Fred Green ordered a presentence report for a 34-year-old non-heroin user who pleaded guilty in Victoria provincial court Tuesday to possession of heroin for the purpose of trafficking.

William Garth Mathews, of Vancouver, was charged June 30, 1972, and following preliminary hearing Aug. 31, 1972, was committed for trial by judge and jury Oct. 10 of the same year.

But Mathews never appeared for trial.

Federal drug prosecutor Derek Finall said Mathews was arrested two weeks ago in Vancouver on another offence and a different name. He was identified by a fingerprint check.

Finall said police had Mathews and a known heroin user under observation at the Hillside Shopping Plaza June 30, 1972. He said they saw the addict hand Mathews a wad of money and pick up something from the ground.

Mathews then drove off, with police following. They saw him park the car at a grocery store on Cedar Hill, followed him and searched him.

A balloon was found in Mathews' mouth, containing 12 caps of heroin, and $1,200 was found on him.

"This is not a case of an addict supporting his own use by selling heroin but a man trafficking as a commercial enterprise . . . I suggest a lengthy jail sentence to impress upon him the gravity of the offence," Finall said.

Green remanded Mathews to June 25 for sentencing.

Bail was refused for Carl Bamforth and John Barrett while Ricky McIntyre was released on his own recognizance in the sum of $1,000 after the three 17-year-olds were charged with breaking and entering Pacific 66 Service Station, 1025 Hillside, with intent to commit theft.

Prosecutor Barry Mah Ming said Bamforth and Barrett, both of 959 Balmoral, were charged Saturday with attempting to break into Fairfield Shell Station, 1090 Fairfield, earlier that day. They were released Saturday on their own recognizance in the sum of $1,000.

Mah Ming opposed the release of Bamforth and Barrett.

"They have shown their disregard for bail by committing a similar offence within three days of their release," he said.

McIntyre, of 2517 Blanshard, was not involved in the Saturday break-in.

In addition to his bail, McIntyre was ordered to report daily to the probation office.

All three youths were remanded to May 3 for election.

Oguz Sapmaz, 21, of Port Hardy, was fined $75 after pleading guilty to possession of marijuana.

He pleaded not guilty to charges of theft and possession of stolen property which arose out of the marijuana arrest. Trial date for these charges been set for July 30.

Police said Sapmaz was arrested Sunday at Scott's Cafe, 950 Yates. A marijuana cigarette was found in his jacket pocket. An Island Coachways locker key was also found in his pocket.

Police went to the bus terminal, opened the locker and found a large green garbage bag containing a cash box with $13.74 inside, clothing, towels and surgical equipment. The items are the property of Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Parole was revoked for Joseph Regis Cahill, 27, charged with assault causing bodily harm.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said Cahill, a day parolee at the Pandora Community Correctional Centre, 921 Pandora, had a dispute over a trivial matter Sunday evening with another parolee at the centre. Cahill attacked the other man striking him over the head with a hammer.

Cahill was on parole on a six-year prison sentence for manslaughter in Prince Rupert in 1973.

"Before sentencing, I want a 1,000-word essay from you on the cost of shoplifting to the individual and society," Green told 17-year-old Debra Susan Wilson, of 265 Balfour, charged with stealing $5.40 worth of eye make-up from Shopper's Drug Mart, 1302 Douglas.

Wilson had pleaded guilty to the offence, committed April 7.

"I want to know what made you do such a thing," Green said.

"I guess I thought I could get away with it," Wilson replied.

Her essay is due June 12 and she was remanded to June 13 for sentencing.

Grant Charpentier, 21, of Edmonton, was ordered to stand trial following preliminary hearing for causing bodily harm to Rodney Trevor Johnson on Jan. 28 with intent to wound.

Green ordered a no publication ban on proceedings at defence lawyer Bob Johnson's request.

In the court section of Judge Harold Alder, Cleo Joseph Tambeau, 30, of 1414 Hillside, was sentenced to 30 days in jail and placed on one year probation after he pleaded guilty to shoplifting.

The charge concerned a 24-cent comb taken March 13 from Shoppers' Drug Mart, 1302 Douglas, and the reason for the jail term was a lengthy record for Tambeau which included several thefts.

WASHINGTON — A proposal to shift Alaska oil tankers away from the British Columbia coast, and send them to California involves even bigger quantities of oil than previously announced, it was disclosed here Tuesday.

The proposal is a preliminary agreement between the Standard Oil Company of Ohio and the El Paso Natural Gas Company.

It would provide for shipment of up to one million barrels of Alaskan oil per day, through the California system. El Paso Chairman Howard Boyd said Tuesday.

When the proposal was announced on May 8, SOHIO said the amount of oil involved was 500,000 barrels a day.

But Boyd elaborated during testimony before the Federal Power Commission.

The agreement is for SOHIO to use converted natural gas pipelines owned by El Paso to carry the oil to the U.S. Midwest.

The agreement contemplates possible conversion of two 30-inch lines," Boyd said. "Initially it contemplates using the newest of the two 30-inch lines which could carry 500,000 barrels."

"There is an option to convert another and that would permit movement of another 500,000 barrels a day."

Boyd was appearing at FPC hearings into applications for new natural gas pipelines in Alaska. But he was asked about the SOHIO agreement on oil by R. Clude Hargrove, counsel for the Arctic Gas consortium. Arctic Gas and El Paso have submitted rival applications for the gas pipelines.

Hargrove's point was that El Paso has other commitments which might make it harder to handle a new project in Alaska.

Hargrove asked if El Paso was itself involved in the Alyeska project. "We were offered participation in the oil line, but we did not accept,"

Boyd said. "There is just a certain amount on which you can say grace over."

The Alaskan oil will start flowing through the Alyeska pipeline, now under construction, in late 1977 or 1978.

Initial oil production is expected to be 4,200,000 barrels a day. By 1982, production is expected to reach two million barrels.

The Atlantic Richfield Company and some others involved in the Alyeska project planned to ship the oil by tanker through the Strait of Juan de Fuca and narrow waters off the Washington state-B.C. coast to existing refineries such as the Arco one at Cherry Point, Wash.

However, SOHIO has said it is interested in shipping its share of oil to Long Beach, Calif., where it would have to build or find a pipeline to the Arizona border where the two El Paso gas lines could continue to carry it eastward.

People who breed pure-bred horses have a dread of one of their mares producing twins. According to authorities, the odds are astronomical against this happening. The odds against the twins living are even greater.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Bayuk of Cobble Hill, who have pure-bred Arabian horses are the owners of twin foals born recently.

A colt and a filly both survived a fairly normal birth and are flourishing according to recent reports.

Sired by the well-known stallion Kelvin's Image, now owned in Montana, these twins are from very successful show stock and will be the centre of interest when they make their debut.

Broadmead Stables will be the venue of a schooling show next weekend after which the regular show season will start in earnest. Oak Meadows Stable, Prospect Lake Road, have arranged a show for June 15 offering classes for both ponies and horses.

The fair grounds at Duncan will be the site of the Vancouver Island All Arabian Horse Show on June 21 and at the same time the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society will operate a summer horse show on the fair grounds at Saanichton.

The following day, Sunday, June 22, the Chemainus Western Horsemen's Club will be hosts at their annual summer show. The club's show ring adjacent to the grounds of the Fuller's Lake ice arena is a popular place with horse show people and with the classes under English saddle being held in the morning and Western saddle events in the afternoon this show runs smoothly and fast.

So far no official word has come from the Cowichan and District Riding and Driving Club, but members of that organization admit there will not be a horse show this year on July 1 in Duncan.

This must break about a 40 year run of consecutive horse shows. Had this fact been known earlier it is a sure thing that one of the local organizations would have taken the date for a high calibre horse show in the Victoria area. Duncan on July 1 is a habit horse show people will not like to break.

In spite of the grey mare's efforts to prevent it, her three week old foals steals away from his mother as she crops the succulent spring grass in the Cherry orchard to visit through the fence with a retired race horse in the next pasture.

There is no doubt a conversation is carried on between the youngster and the older. It must be of interest to the youngster because it is he who takes every opportunity to visit the retired veteran by waiting at the fence for the veteran to spot him and then come over for a chat.

The generation gap is there and very considerable. Whether the stories start "Now when I was a boy . . ." or "When you go to the race track . . ." is of little consequence.

Mother does not want her young son to hear them. No doubt she formed an unfavorable opinion of the retired gentleman from her conversations with him before the birth of her son.

But, boys being boys, it is a sure thing the ex-race horse will be listened to on every occasion.

The fledgling Metchoshin Pony Club's first Play Day on Saturday attracted 19 entries for a full program of equitation and gymkhana events, held at Woodlands, William Head Road, by kind permission of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Davis.

For many of the young competitors it was their first real taste of competition, but their enthusiasm more than made up for any lack of experience. And in any case the organizers wanted more emphasis on having a good time than on earnest competition.

Rosettes for highest aggregate points totals were won by: 1. Isabel Springett; 2. Lillian Wilson; 3. Christine Kegel; 4. Susan Baker; 5. Tina Neff. Visiting judge was Mrs. Laura Beck of the Saanich Pony Club.

Formed last February, with membership including English and Western styles, the club is now in its probationary period and if it can meet the necessary standards it will be eligible in September for affiliation with the Canadian Pony Club which has 85 branches across the country.

Any young riders in the Metchoshin area interested in joining the club should contact district commissioner Percy Wilson at 4298 Happy Valley Road (478-7360).

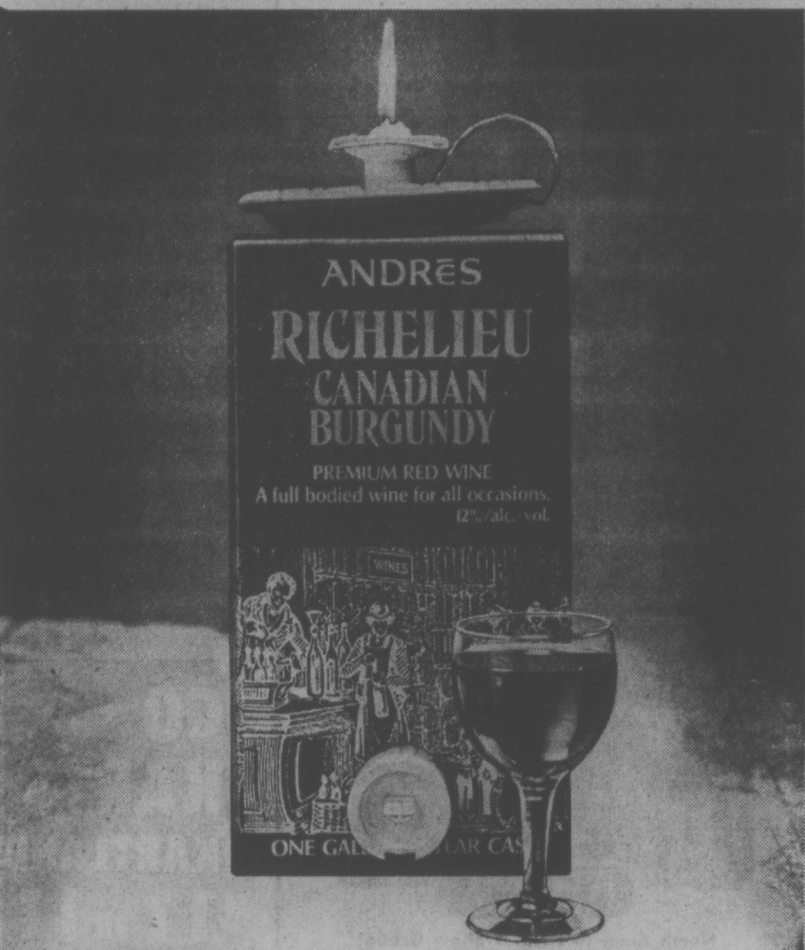

Results of the Sooke Saddle Club's third annual competition, trail ride are (with horse's name in brackets): Juniors:

April Irvin (Indian Princess), Julie Ruttan (Misty), Cheri Gauthier (Bay-bee Princess), Hope Irvin (Lady Gay).

Seniors: Jack Davis (Bob's Mistake), Dune Rimmer (Sugar's Buckshot), Cindy Clark (Prince), Linda Underwood (Lady).

Winners of door prizes were Mrs. M. Ruttan, Mrs. L. Zigay and April Irvin.

If you or your group has any news concerning your activities please write to Phil Merrick, Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria.)

Stripper 'Serious' On Mills

NEW YORK (AP) — Fanne Foxe, the stripper friend of Representative Wilbur Mills, said Tuesday she still is interested in the Arkansas Democrat romantically, but she would not say whether she wants to marry him.

Miss Foxe, at a news conference in connection with her forthcoming book — Fanne Foxe, the Real Story Behind the Headlines — described her relationship with Mills as "very warm and serious."

The 39-year-old stripper-dancer said she wrote the book, with Yvonne Dunleavy, partly "to tell the people what happened so there won't be any confusions."

people

SAN FRANCISCO — An infertile wife says she's not having much response to her classified ad seeking a woman to have her husband's baby by artificial insemination.

The woman, a 29-year-old Los Angeles-area housewife, placed her ad in The Chronicle early this month. She got the idea from reading a similar ad by a Sunday school teacher with an infertile wife who offered up to $10,000 for a woman willing to bear his child.

"We've gotten 10 or 12 letters but they all want a fat fee, and we don't have the kind of money the other couple was willing to pay," the latest advertiser said in an interview.

The Sunday school teacher recently reported getting more than 100 responses, including some from women who offered their incubating services free of charge. He said he expected to make his final choice in about a week.

The woman said her husband, a 29-year-old graphic arts designer, agreed to put the ad in the newspaper after attempts to adopt a baby failed. She said it would take three to five years to adopt a child and "I'd be an old woman by then."

LONDON — British Oscar-winning actress Glenda Jackson is separating from her husband after 17 years of marriage.

"We have decided to call it a day," her husband, Roy Hodges, said Tuesday.

Hodges, a theatre director, said at their London home: "She arrived from Toronto yesterday after being on her travels since January and is now starting to make arrangements for the separation."

The couple has a six-year-old son. Miss Jackson, 39, had been playing Hedda Gabler for the Royal Shakespeare Company in Toronto after a tour that also took her to the United States and Australia.

British newspapers reported Tuesday there is another man in her life, but he was not identified.

JUNEAU — Exiled Soviet author Alexander Solzhenitsyn has arrived in the United States for the first time, for a private tour of Alaska purchased from the Russians 108 years ago.

His arrival Tuesday in this state capital went almost unnoticed. Sources said Solzhenitsyn and his wife boarded the ferry Taku at Ketchikan early Tuesday following a month-long visit to Canada.

OTTAWA — I. W. Killam Memorial Scholarships, worth $36,000 each, have been awarded professors in Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver to continue their research work, the Canada Council announced Monday.

The winners are: —Donald O. Hebb, professor of psychology at McGill University, working in neurophysiology.

—John C. Polanyi, professor of chemistry at the University of Toronto, working in chemical reactions associated with different types of molecular movements.

—Herbert Gush, professor of physics at the University of British Columbia, working on the far infra-red spectrum of cosmic background radiation.

Profs. Gush and Polanyi also won Killam scholarships for their work in 1974.

In 1964, four college students played bridge in Chatham, England, in itself hardly remarkable. What is unusual is that they played nonstop for 114 hours — a world's record.

It is obvious that they were weary as the end approached. An example can be observed in today's deal, played at about the 105th hour. Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

LITTLE PEOPLE'S PUZZLE

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR

For Thursday, May 29

ARIES (March 21 — April 19): Make friends and influence people. Be more gregarious than in recent past. Socialize. People you encounter now might have constructive, important bearing on your future. Gemini, Sagittarius and Aquarius could be in picture.

TAURUS (April 20 — May 20): Accent is on career, williness to expand. Obtain valid hint from Aries message. If versatile, you are presented with valuable opportunity. Display sense of humor, too. What seems a setback could rebound on your court, in your favor.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Emphasis is on ability to overcome language, custom barriers. Be ready to accept changes. Concentrate on communication. Make meanings crystal clear. Another Gemini and a Virgo also is likely to be involved.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Talk of money involved in mutual effort, partnership could dominate. Consult with family member. Strive for greater understanding on home front. Be diplomatic. Accept gesture of conciliation.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): be more aware of public relations than in recent past. Be sure your intentions are clear. Some who oppose you merely need more time to understand your motivations. Accent is on written agreement. Check legal ramifications.

VIRGO Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): You may not get exactly what you want but you're going in the right direction! Emphasis is on employment, sharing of mutual interests. Diet and health also are in picture. You will be dealing with older person who is willing to give you more responsibility.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Emphasize creativity. Imprint your own style. Strive for wider appeal by being yourself. Aggressive associate has other ideas. Key is to stand your ground. You are on brink of new, progressive deal.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Get to heart of matters. Your approach now should include frankness, independence and creativity. You draw to you those born under Leo and Aquarius. Insist on solid structure, quality. Take cash and let credit go.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You have choice of two paths. Take the one which permits you the most flexibility. Some relatives may try to impart guilt feeling. Have none of it. Be mature enough to discern duty and wise enough not to be saddled with another person's obligations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Element of timing favors you. Windfall is possible. You make significant gains. Solid profit may be in picture. You get paid for doing what is fun for you. Relax — go with the tide. Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius individuals figure prominently.

AQUARIUS Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Lunar cycle moves up take initiative. Make fresh start. Shake off secret fears, doubts. Stand up and be counted. Popularity increases. Member of opposite sex pays meaningful compliment. You could fall madly in love!

PISCES (Feb. 19 — March 20): Ask questions. Don't be put off by aura of secrecy. You do have right to know. Assert yourself. Get hint from Aquarius message. Much that occurs could involve closed door meeting, hospital, special group or institution. Dig for information.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are intuitive, a natural teacher, digging in following pioneering effort last year. June should be your most productive period in 1975. Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. Next year you do more travelling and socializing. This year, you team up with individual who understands business and knows how to prepare excellent food.

Car Body Shops Claim $20.26, Not $18.50, Needed Hourly

Car body shops need $20.26 an hour effective July 1, not the $18.50 offered by the Insurance Corporation of B.C., the Automotive Retailers' Association of B.C. said today.

Denis Butner, Victoria auto body committee chairman for the ARA, said the $20.26 figure came from a study of car repair costs conducted by a New Westminster chartered accountant firm at the request of the ARA.

A copy of the report has been sent to Transport Minister Robert Strachan, who is ICBC chairman, and to opposition leaders in the legislature. Copies of the report were released to the press in Victoria by Butner.

The current rate paid to provincial body shops by the ICBC is $15.50 an hour. However, since May 15, some Victoria shops have been levying a surcharge of $4.50 an hour to bring the price to $20.

Other body shops in the province continue to charge the $15.50 rate.

The firm of Campbell, Sharp, Nash and Field of New Westminster said its calculations show that body shops should increase their prices to $20.26 an hour effective July 1 in order to maintain the profit level of previous years.

The rate would only have to go to $19.78 if implemented on June 1 and would have had to be only $19.39 if it had been put into effect on May 1, the company says.

The increased costs include increases in wages, municipal taxes and office costs.

The firm calculates an increase of 20.29 per cent. in wage rates, to $5.30 an hour from $6.90 per hour.

In its letter to Strachan, the association says: "Our association, which represents the majority of the body shops doing business in this province, has repeatedly requested that (ICBC) allow a rate comparable to the normal rate for mechanical repairs in the automotive industry."

"To this end, we have commissioned a responsible accounting firm to survey the operating data of representative body shops so that we could substantiate our requests for an adequate rate," the ARA letter says.

"However, we have been told by (ICBC) that they will determine the rate, regardless of what we in the industry consider to be our need. In fact, we have been told that we cannot even enter into any negotiations with the corporation regarding rates, and that no discussions of this matter can be held."

The letter says the ARA understands the ICBC has offered $18.50 an hour effective July 1 while the firm of chartered accountants, commissioned by the ARA, says the rate should be $20.26 an hour.

"Could you (Strachan) please give careful consideration to this report. The body shops are not trying to pressure the government into paying an exorbitant fee for their services but they do want to provide the quality of work to which a motorist is entitled."

The letter is signed by Weldon Pinchin, provincial president of the ARA.

The body shop rate had been $14 an hour in 1974 and some Victoria body shops levied a $2 surcharge. This surcharge was dropped when the rate went to $15.50 an hour at year's end.

However, the ARA warned at that time the rate would have to go up before July 1 because of projected wage increases and other costs.

The ARA said it was willing to accept the recommendations of the firm of chartered accountants on what the body shop rates should be.

Bunn Accused Of Hurting Morale

Despite a soothing letter from Greater Victoria school board chairman Bill Ross, Victoria teachers are still angry at trustee Peter Bunn for his comments about "near sabotage" by some teachers during this year's school strike.

"The majority of teachers were really hurt by the remarks of Peter," Greater Victoria Teachers' Association president Mavis De Goroamo said Tuesday.

"This kind of remark lowers the morale of teachers in this district," she said.

Bunn made his attack on "the hyper-union teacher" at a post-mortem Thursday on the six-week strike of district custodians and maintenance staff.

This minority of teachers made no effort to keep their classrooms clean during the strike, and some even discouraged students from doing any cleaning up, he said.

"I'm after the person who made a pigsty of a classroom," he said.

The next day Ross wrote all teachers and principals in the district saying the board appreciated the efforts most teachers made during the strike.

The letter said: "Trustee Bunn's criticism of some teachers was correctly reported (in the newspaper)."

"However, the emphasis of our post-strike meeting was not. That meeting was quite positive in spirit as evinced by numerous statements of trustees, principals and teachers present."

De Goroamo said that even though Bunn criticized only a few teachers, his remarks tar all teachers with the same brush.

Theft Trial Splits

The trial of two men accused of stealing a wallet and contents while armed with an "imitation of an offensive weapon, to wit, a starting pistol" was separated in county court Tuesday.

The decision was made by Judge H. L. Skipp after he was informed by Doug Christie, lawyer for Rodney Trevor Johnson, 1738 Ross, that he was tied up on a B.C. Supreme Court case and asked leave to be excused.

Trial started before Judge Skipp and a jury for Daniel Hugh McIsaac, 1166 Summitt, who is represented by Bruce McConnan.

Crown counsel are J. W. Anderson and Dwight Whitson.

The trial continued today.

S. Vietnamese Desert to Canada To Escape Army's 'American War'

MONTREAL (WP) — Long before their brother-in-arms fled by the thousands from this year's offensive that ended with the surrender of Saigon, more than 100 South Vietnamese military men quietly deserted from bases across the United States.

Line American deserters before them, most of these Vietnamese took up illegal residence in Canada.

With the aid of an underground network of sympathetic people and with their own ingenuity, these mostly middle-class and privileged Vietnamese bicycled, bused and walked across the border.

Just before the war ended, a group of Vietnamese deserters in Montreal agreed to break their self-imposed silence.

On April 2, the Canadian minister of manpower and immigration had assured all Vietnamese and Cambodian citizens that they would not be deported "as long as the situation in Vietnam is as it is."

In their crowded apartments, at their workplaces, at an antiwar movie presentation, and at a dinner gathering of the "Association of Ex-Militarymen of South Vietnam in Canada," a dozen deserters in Montreal discussed why they abandoned military training programs at American bases.

Despite the fact that some of the Vietnamese deserters provided reporters with their military cards, numbers and graduation certificates from American training programs, the Pentagon refused to confirm their identities or acknowledge that any Vietnamese deserted from U.S. bases.

The U.S. department of immigration provided a "rough number" of 105 Vietnamese deserters, most of whom are presumed to have gone to Canada rather than face military authorities in the U.S.

Tran Minh Chau, a deserter himself who founded the association of ex-military men, talked at a dinner he gave for deserters.

"We say ex-military men because deserter in Vietnamese is not proper," the 32-year-old former army feed plant manager explained. "It is translated to 'escape' the military. We use a Vietnamese word which means to 'refuse' the military."

Chau was particularly sensitive to any charge that he was a coward. He left, he said, because he "fundamentally disagreed with the Thieu government" of traitors and co-operations with foreigners. Chau was also quick to emphasize that each of the deserters had a markedly different story to tell.

Seated next to Chau was an ex-marine who had killed Vietnamese, Cambodians, and Laotians in combat and became a pacifist. Another guest was a young navy nurse who said he supported the Vietnamese communist movement.

In all the interviews with the deserters, two principal motives recurred. Each man said that at some point in his military career he decided he did not want to kill fellow Vietnamese.

And each separately came to believe that the U.S. had used Vietnamese to carry on an "American" war.

They also said they would return to Vietnam once they were assured it was "safe."

Older than most of the other deserters, who were between 19 and 26, Chau said he was one of the Vietnamese who used devious methods to buy his way to the U.S.

"In this program 150 applied and only four were chosen," explained Chau, the son of a former bureaucrat in the French colonial government. "I was one of them because I gave free chicks from the army feed plant to the officer who selected the people who go overseas."

Chau helped form the underground network. Two deserters who reached Montreal because of Chau's work are Truong Chi Hung and Bui Mong Lan, 1974 graduates of the pilot training program at Shepherd Air Force Base, Tex.

In separate interviews Hung and Lan said they were closely guarded from the moment they arrived for training in late 1973 and were forced to devise a complicated scheme to leave.

"They took our passports away from us at the beginning and in September, 1974, Saigon sent a cable saying there were 10 potential deserters in our class of 22. Our names were on the list."

Lan said his family paid a $300 bribe to enter him in the elite South Vietnam Air Force and another $300 bribe to send him to the U.S. for training.

Lan stole Air Force maps of the American-Canadian border to prepare for a secret meeting with the underground in October.

"We had to report to the liaison officer each morning. I feigned an illness, took an airplane, and returned to the base with enough time to report in . . .," Lan explained.

After vacillating for months — torn between final responsibilities to his elderly parents and a revolution against "doing the bombing job" — Hung finally decided to escape.

"I kept thinking in inflight training . . . how a whole family near my home in Dalat was killed by an American bomb in 1968," Hung explained.

Lan broke into his liaison officer's apartment and stole four Vietnamese passports when he couldn't find his own, broke into another office to grab his graduation certificate, and collected his pay.

That night the two shunned a beer bash thrown by their squadron leaders to celebrate graduation and the last night on base.

While their Vietnamese friends partied, Hung's girlfriend, a WAF at Shepherd, picked them up and drove them to the Greyhound bus terminal.

Now, four months later, the two are employed in Montreal factories without work permits — as are most of the deserters — and Lan is eager to return to Vietnam.

"I'm not a political person. My family, my cousins are in Hanoi. Before, we wrote to each other through Paris and they were fighting for North Vietnam. If I had fought, someday I might have killed them. . . I could not do this."

Another deserter is ex-marine Nguyen N. Hai. Just three years older than Lan but wearing the expression of a man long past youth, Hai said he had little choice when he fought and killed during four and a half years of campaigns in Laos, Cambodia, and Vietnam.

"If I didn't fight, I would go to jail. After all, what do we feel when we fight? We did not think we were fighting for our country, only for our safety. You see, I was everywhere, I know what the war is."

"I would return to the cities . . . where rich people were taking from the poor . . . and leaders, did not listen to the people," Hai continued.

Hai said that as his resentment with the South Vietnamese leadership grew, he had open conflicts with his commander. A final argument in 1972 triggered events that ended with his trip to Montreal.

His unit had captured a wounded prisoner whom Hai was instructed to interrogate. But, Hai said, the soldier had no information and Hai fed and nursed him. Two days later, the commander got drunk, had the prisoner brought before him, and killed him, Hai said.

"He picked up an AK-47," Hai said, "aimed it at the prisoner and said, 'You used this to shoot at me and I'm using it to shoot at you. He used the prisoner as a target.'"

Hai said he told a Saigon journalist about the incident and the story was published. To remove the troublemaker from his battalion, the commander sent Hai to the U.S. for training, three months after Hai's marriage.

Hai said his American training at Quantico, Va., encouraged his bitterness: "Every time the Americans gave examples of battles, or sacrifice, they used the Vietnamese. We were used as a game for the Americans to learn how to be better soldiers. By their openness in training I learned my country was just a toy."

Lam Phuoc, one of the first deserters, escaped in 1972 from San Diego Navy Base where he was trained as a nurse. He said he was helped through his first in Canada by American deserters.

Now 22, Phuoc had to cross the border in the days before the underground network.

After finding his way to the border between Washington state and B.C., Phuoc waited two days until he figured out a plan.

He had watched two Canadian teen-agers bicycle back and forth at the Blaine, Wash., border point and he befriended them. Phuoc said they agreed to help and one afternoon in the rush hour, he climbed on the back wheel of a bike "looking like a young boy" and was paddled past unsuspecting guards who did not bother to stop the cyclists.

For the next two years, Phuoc lived with the family of George Strong, an American deserter in Ottawa, who supported Phuoc until he received landed immigrant papers.

Phuoc now works the night shift in an operating room at the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal, completing training in plastic surgery, a skill he hopes to use to help war victims in Vietnam.

TORONTO (CP) — There should be less government and more business involvement in the settling of consumer complaints arising out of normal business transaction, the chairman of the Better Business Bureau of Canada said this week.

Leonard Woolsey told the bureau's annual meeting that this would free the bureau to become more actively involved with proposed consumer protection legislation.

Woolsey said: "We are concerned at the sheer weight of government involvement in the marketplace, particularly at a time when the country faces such pressing economic problems."

He said the thrust of recent legislation is "unsettling," citing the recently-introduced Trade Practices act.

The new act leaves the businessman with a large area of responsibility, he said, "and with little in the way of assurance that his relationships with customers, no matter how honestly arrived at, will not be subject to review and reversal, and indeed to the danger of severe penalties."

Woolsey, general manager of marketing for the Bank of Nova Scotia, said the bureau endorses any legislation which constrains fraudulent, dishonest or immoral practices.

But most consumer-business disputes arise from customer dissatisfaction, not from breaches of law. These can be settled without government intervention, he said.

'Thank You All for Everything' —Suicide Note of Deportee

"I simply cannot allow anyone to be hurt further because of me... all I want is to be buried nearby the people I love in the country that I love. Thank you all for everything."

John Brady Jenkins wrote this note to his fiancée early the morning of May 17 shortly before hanging himself in his cell in Wilkinson Road jail.

The note was one of several exhibits entered Tuesday night in an inquest into the 24-year-old American deportee's death.

The coroner's jury ruled Jenkins, of 1670 Stelly's Crossroad, died "by suicide as a result of hanging and/or strangulation while in a state of deep depression."

Jenkins had been ordered deported May 16 following an immigration hearing that ruled he was an illegal immigrant to Canada. He was to have been turned over to U.S. officials May 20 who were to have escorted him back to Lebanon, Indiana, where he was wanted in connection with an August, 1972, shoot-out that left one man dead and another paralyzed for life.

The jury found no negligence on the part of Wilkinson Road jail staff. Evidence showed Jenkins had been checked around midnight and then again at 3 a.m. when he was found hanging from a bed chain.

Corrections officer Roland Cyr, one of 13 witnesses who testified in the three-and-a-half hour hearing, told the jury three checks are normally made each shift but not at regular times.

Firemen Waiting On Pact

Victoria firefighters are sitting tight in their contract negotiations with the city of Victoria, waiting for the announcement of the Vancouver firefighters' contract, union president Ross Cameron said today.

Cameron said the 104-member firefighters' union local has reached tentative settlement with the city "in a number of major areas" but the final settlement still hinges on the wage increase to be given to Vancouver firemen.

Victoria firefighters are seeking to retain wage parity with their Vancouver counterparts.

The settlement could still take some time because the Vancouver firefighters' contract hinges on the settlement between the Vancouver policemen's union and the city of Vancouver. The Vancouver firemen have agreed to a contract that gives them whatever percentage increase the policemen get, plus three per cent.

The policemen are still negotiating.

Cameron said if the city considers the Vancouver settlement to be reasonable then Victoria negotiations can be terminated and a contract signed. If the Vancouver settlement is considered unreasonable, negotiations would resume.

"We are reasonably optimistic that we can settle without going to a board though," Cameron said, referring to an arbitration board which can impose a binding award under a section of the B.C. Labor Code which provides that alternative to strike action in essential services, at the option of the union or employees involved.

The firefighters have been negotiating with the city since last December.

Cadet Nurses Carry Off Trophies

A team from the cadet nursing division of St. John Ambulance in Victoria has won two competitions and finished second in another in four contests at Cumberland.

The teams, of five girls each aged 11 to 16, were judged on how they handled first aid problems they were presented with.

Tina Knowles was captain on the team finishing with the best record. Other members were Valerie Heal, Juanita Jones, Laura Doran and Karen Cooke.

A second team from Victoria won second place in one of the events. Captain was Marian Paalvast and members were Darlene Nelson, Susan Klie, Brenda Stephens and Sharon Cooke.

Senior corrections officer George Triplett said Jenkins, since his arrest May 7 on an immigration department warrant, had displayed no signs of erratic behavior.

"He was out-going, calm composed... and didn't convey to us in any way he was intending to kill himself."

"If he had we would have moved him to a protective custody area and kept a closer watch over him."

The jury, nonetheless recommended facilities for surveillance of inmates at the jail be improved.

Triplett said today the recommendation would be forwarded to the attorney-general.

He was pessimistic, however, that anything could be done to prevent suicides.

"If a man is intent upon killing himself... he'll do it... it's almost impossible to prevent."

Naturalists Here in June For Meeting

Four hundred delegates will attend the annual meeting of the Canadian Nature Federation at the University of Victoria June 14 and 15.

It will be the first time Canada's largest naturalist organization has held the meeting on the west coast.

Theme of the two-day event will be Wild Mountains, Fragile Seas.

Among the speakers will be Dr. Keith Wade of Capilano College in Vancouver, talking on the use of coastal river estuaries; and Dr. William Austin of Port Washington, talking about effects of oil spills.

Suite Blocks Rising

A minor boom in apartment units is under way in the Victoria area but most of the suites will be sold as condominiums.

A total of 610 apartment suites has been started in the first four months of this year — despite the municipal strike-lockout — up 58 per cent from 385 units at the same time last year.

Total number of starts in April was 310, the highest in several years, but officials of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation cautioned that some of these starts may actually have got under way in March. With no building permits being issued during the strike-lockout, the corporation is obtaining its figures by a spot check of building sites.

Despite the uncertainty of timing, apartment starts are well ahead of the same period last year.

Total number of apartment starts in March and April was 423, up from 257 in the same two months of 1974.

Of the 310 units credited to April, 274 suites are known to be ticketed as condominiums.

Highest number of apartment units started in any single month in 1974 was 280 in May.

While the construction industry is keeping fairly busy with condominium units, the slump continues in construction of single family homes. Only 33 of them were started in April, down from 142 in the same month last year.

Total number of single family homes started this year is 161 in four months, down from 441 in the same period of 1974.

Because of the downturn in the house construction sector, the total combined starts (apartments and houses) for the first four months is 783 units, down from 887 at the same time in 1974.

No row housing has been started in the first four months, compared to 39 units started last year at the same time.

Bike Race Draws 100

Another large entry is assured for the Tour du Lac bicycle race around Shawnigan Lake June 6.

Almost 100 entries have been received for the fourth annual 23-mile race, organized by Jan van der Have of Bonner Junior High.

Open to cyclists between Grades 8 and 10, the race follows the Mill Bay-Shawnigan Lake road, circles the lake and returns to Bonner by way of Cobble Hill. Teams consist of six riders but only the best four placings count in the final results.

Entries can be filed with van der Have at the school (743-2251).

Good Citizen Nominations Requested

The Native Sons of British Columbia are calling for nominations for their annual good citizen award.

This award was started by Post 1 of the Native Sons in 1926 and has been an annual event.

"We are looking for residents of this area who in the opinion of their neighbors are 'good citizens' and merit the award."

Those wishing to submit nominations should list the names and qualifications to J. Sullivan, 3104 Richmond Rd., secretary Post 1, Native Sons of British Columbia.

'Compassion' for Woman's Crime

BOMBAY (CP) — "I have no regrets at all; I'm going to live a full life," says 23-year-old Shamim Rehmani, India's most famous female convict.

Miss Rehmani was sentenced to life imprisonment seven years ago for killing her 36-year-old lover, Hart Gautam.

In a dramatic move, the governor of Uttar Pradesh has freed her on grounds of "compassion and humanitarianism." Shamim spent about three years in prison.

The beautiful Moslem girl's release through executive clemency is regarded by observers as part of the Indian government's interest in the welfare of convicted women during International Women's Year.

Several Indian states are planning to release a large number of women prisoners during this year. Others will receive generous remissions in their prison terms, enabling them to return home earlier than expected.

Shamim's case was front-page news for several years as her lawyers tried to prove her innocence. But successive courts, including the Federal Supreme Court in New Delhi, held her guilty of shooting Dr. Gautam, a married man with three children.

Dr. Gautam became friendly with Shamim when he was treating her father in the north Indian city of Lucknow. He promised to marry her after divorcing his wife.

But when Shamim found out that Dr. Gautam was not seriously in love with her and was in fact having a number of other illicit affairs, she decided to kill him.

While expressing pity for Shamim, the Federal Supreme court held that she was guilty of murder and confirmed the life sentence.

FAMILY PLAN FOR PRISONER

BOSTON (UPI) — Gov. Michael S. Dukakis says Mrs. Roberta Shaffer can bring along her two children Friday when she begins serving her jail sentence for manslaughter. But prison officials say they don't have facilities to handle children — and what about other women prisoners who want the same privilege?

Mrs. Shaffer, convicted in 1973 of the death of the man she intended to marry, has two children — Eva, 11, who has cystic fibrosis and requires more than two hours of special therapy daily, and Eric, 5, who is enrolled in a special state-sponsored tutorial class because of his mother's plight.

Last week Dukakis said he had found administrative means to insure the family would stay together, even if Mrs. Shaffer had to take "her children with her if she goes to prison."

However, the head of the Massachusetts Correctional Institution at Framingham says he doesn't know where they could be housed.

"We don't have any facilities for children here," said John E. Bates. "If the governor directs me, I will do my best to set something up, but we have no capacity to do that now."

Wallace Warns of Tack Justifying Euthanasia

Legalized abortion may soon be used as an argument to justify euthanasia of the elderly, Oak Bay MLA Scott Wallace warned in a recent speech to delegates at the International Toastmistress Clubs regional meeting.

"In our aging population, with energy and monetary crises, the economic and financial strain of providing for the elderly sick, the senile, the disabled and the bedridden is frequently quoted," Wallace said.

"It may not be too long before the precedent of legally killing the unborn child is used as an argument to justify the snuffing out of elderly lives."

Wallace, who is leader of the B.C. Progressive Conservative Party, spoke to toastmistresses from the Pacific Northwest region, who met Saturday at the University of Victoria.

The cry for abortion on demand is one of the saddest aspects of the feminist movement in recent years, he said.

There is a place for abortion under certain conditions and with certain controls, he said, but widespread abortion on demand will seriously degrade our respect for human life itself.

Wallace said the practice of abortion is extremely difficult to restrain once it is condoned by society to the degree that it is today.

"Besides, the gutlessness of federal politicians in the face of public controversy proves their unwillingness to tackle this hot political potato with restricting legislation."

Wallace said he expects to see increasing opportunities for women in all jobs and professions.

"I feel sure that one of the last bastions of bias and tradition, namely the churches, will all grant women equality and the full opportunity to hold the highest offices."

And contraceptive pills give women another kind of freedom, he said.

"The scope of sexual freedom available to women today includes reliable contraception, swingers clubs, communal living, wife swapping, homosexuality and readily available abortion."

The Widows and The Mine

For 25 years, fluorspar miners in St. Lawrence, Newfoundland, have been dying of cancer caused by radiation in the mines. And for 25 years, the miners and the widows of those who have died have been fighting for higher safety standards and adequate compensation. This Saturday in Weekend Magazine.

YOUTH GIVEN $7M IN MISHAP

WASHINGTON (WP) — A U.S. District Court jury Tuesday awarded $7 million in damages to the family of a Illinois youth whose neck was broken when he dived into a hotel swimming pool while here for an Explorer Scout convention four years ago. He is now a quadriplegic.

The award is the largest ever given here in a personal injury negligence case, and may be the largest such award to an individual in the country, according to several lawyers here.

Victim of the accident is Thomas Hooks, who was 18 at the time. The jury's award is subject to review by the judge, who can accept it, modify it or reject it, and can be appealed to higher courts by the defendants.

According to evidence presented at the trial and court records, the youth was injured when he dived off a nine-foot-high diving board into eight feet of water. The jury, after hearing detailed evidence by witnesses, including diving and swimming pool experts, found that the hotel had been negligent in using the type of diving board with the depth of water involved.

RUSSIAN WEAPONS TO LIBYA

Massive Mideast Arms Deal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Russia and Libya have secretly made the biggest weapons deal in the history of the Middle East, with the Soviet Union agreeing to supply $12 billion worth of "the most sophisticated arms one can imagine," according to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

The agreement could give the Russians a military presence on the southern shore of the Mediterranean for 50 years, Sadat told the Los Angeles Times.

In a lengthy interview published in the Times today, Sadat also complained that it is difficult to deal with the United States because the government does not speak with one voice, with the White House following one foreign policy and Congress another. But he called on the United States not to "go on sticking your head in the sand" in post-Vietnam isolationism, and to take a super power role in bringing peace to the Middle East by pressuring Israel.

The Libyan regime of Col. Moammar Khadafi and Moscow both denied earlier reports in Egyptian newspapers of a secret $4 billion arms deal, calling them exaggerated. Sadat, the Times said, stated that far from being exaggerated, the actual agreement was three times bigger than had been reported.

"The whole deal is for the most sophisticated arms one can imagine," the Times quoted Sadat as saying. It provides Libya with tanks and aircraft of the latest style," he said. "The Russians have never given me or Syria such sophisticated arms."

Russian advisers will have to remain in Libya for 20 to 50 years to show Libyans how to use the weapons, Sadat said. "You can draw your own conclusions as to the dominance of Moscow's military presence in Libya," he said, calling it "something that should upset the United States more than us."

Relations between Egypt and Libya have been deteriorating.

Quang Issue 'Regret' By Andras

Times News Services

TORONTO — Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Tuesday he regretted allowing former South Vietnamese general Dang Van Quang to enter Canada before investigating charges of corruption levelled against him.

In an interview on CBC radio's As It Happens, Andras said:

"In retrospect, I wish there had been a more thorough vetting of who he was and what he was involved in."

Andras said Quang had been accused of "pretty nefarious criminal activities and manipulation of people."

If the allegations were eventually proved, "I would want to get rid of him."

"I doubt if he will be sent back to Saigon. But it is not impossible to remove him from Canada."

Andras said the former general was allowed to enter Canada on a temporary basis so that he could be reunited in Montreal with his wife and children.

Andras has been under political fire since Monday when Derek Blackburn, NDP MP for Brant asked why the former general was allowed to enter Canada on a special ministerial permit.

Blackburn referred to Quang as "the epitome of everything that went wrong in Vietnam."

Meanwhile, a United States Drug Enforcement Agency official said in Montreal the Canadian government has as yet not requested any information on the drug trafficking activities of Quang.

A DEA liaison officer at the Consulate General of the United States said "any request for information from the Canadian government on this man would be referred to us because he is living here in Montreal and we have heard nothing yet from Ottawa."

Allegations about his role in the drug trade are made in The Politics of Heroin in Southeast Asia by Alfred W. McCoy and The Fire in the Lake by Francis Fitzgerald.

Gunman Runs Amok In High School

UIC PAYMENTS JUMP BY 50%

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment insurance payments for the first four months of 1975 totalled $1,233 billion, up nearly 50 per cent over the $830 million total for the first four months of 1974, government officials told the Commons manpower committee Tuesday.

If projected for the rest of the year at present jobless rates, the total benefit cost of the program this year would be about $3.5 billion — far more than the 1974 total of $2.116 billion.

Increased unemployment this year with a resultant larger number of claims for benefits and a higher level of payments due to increased earnings are among that factor that will push the total up.

Munro 'Debunks' High Wage Myth

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro appeared out of step with the government Tuesday, delivering a hard-hitting speech which denied that high wage settlements are the major cause of inflation.

Both Prime Minister Trudeau and Finance Minister John Turner have cited wage settlements as a main inflationary factor.

Munro criticized in the Commons "the prevailing myth that excessive wage settlements are the main cause of inflation, that they are running double the average rise of wages in the United States and that they threaten our competitive advantage over the Americans."

Munro quoted from recent news reports "which go far to debunk this myth about allegedly excessive wage increases."

"Canadian wages have been rising faster than those in the U.S., but so has our productivity."

Munro also criticized suggestions that all pay raises should be held at the same general percentage increase.

"It is all very well for us to sit in the House and express horror at certain percentage increases without examining the base rate," he said. "We might have different ideas of what our percentage increase should be if we were handling bed pans in hospitals or clearing garbage in the streets."

BRAMPTON (UPI) — A young man, armed with two rifles walked into a local high school near the noon hour recess today and began shooting at students and teachers in classroom.

Police said two persons were killed and 15 wounded before the gunman killed himself with one of his weapons.

The dead included a woman art teacher and one student.

A daughter of Ontario Premier William Davis, a student at the school, escaped unharm.

The gunman ran along a hallway, opening classroom doors and shooting at everything in sight," a student said.

"Panic erupted throughout the whole place."

The gunman was tentatively identified as Mike Slobodian, a student at the school.

The shooting occurred at the Brampton Centennial Secondary School in a new subdivision in an outer suburb of northwest Toronto.

A fleet of ambulances shuttled the wounded to the Peel Memorial hospital.

Scores of parents, disregarding police appeals to keep away, rushed to the school to see if their children were among the victims.

Later, as the body of the gunman still lay inside, Premier Davis, who lives in Brampton, drove to the school to confer with police officers.

Allan Andrychuk, a mathematics teacher, said he was in the men's room of the school when he heard shooting.

"I looked out the door and saw a guy with a rifle at eye level. I ducked back into the washroom and then heard another volley of shots."

WORDPLAY

BRANDON — A new wordplay game, "ST. NE", is being marketed by a local company. The game is designed to help children learn to spell and use words correctly. It includes a list of words and their meanings, and a series of puzzles and games to play with the words.

Pot Legal At Home In Alaska

JUNEAU (AP) — The Alaska Supreme Court has legalized possession of marijuana for private use in the home.

In a 5-to-0 ruling handed down Tuesday, the court became the first in the United States to legalize some aspect of marijuana use, saying that "mere scientific doubts" about the medical effects of marijuana do not justify government intrusions into the home.

Left intact by the court are penalties for public possession and use for sales, offences which the justices said relate to a "compelling interest" of the state.

"There's no question about the decision," said R. Collin Middleton, an Anchorage lawyer who helped argue the case. "You can now ring your yard with marijuana plants, if you want to."

(In Canada a Senate Committee Tuesday stopped just short of declaring the use of marijuana a non-criminal act. See story Page 25.)

An independent commission with wide jurisdiction over legal services in B.C. will be set up under legislation introduced in the house Tuesday.

The Legal Services Commission Act sets up a five-member body, appointed by the government and the Law Society of B.C., with power to "plan the development of legal services in the province."

Legal services are described in the bill as "education, advice and information in or about law and any legal service that may be provided by a barrister and solicitor or a notary public."

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald described the bill as an important move "to take legal services out of politics completely."

The commission will work independently to improve the provision of legal services and to try to ensure equal accessibility and equality before the law, he said.

It will hopefully mean the end of "cash register justice" in B.C., said Macdonald.

The legislation describes the object and purpose of the commission as ensuring that: "... legal services are effectively provided to, and readily obtainable by, the people of B.C., with special emphasis on those people to whom those services are not presently available for financial or other reasons."

The new body will have jurisdiction over all legal aid in the province and will be assigned the $4.2 million budget for legal aid included in the attorney-general's estimates.

Macdonald said the commission will decide how best to spend the money on legal aid, and might decide on different rules for granting that aid.

Two members of the commission will be appointed by cabinet; two will be chosen by the benchers of the B.C. Law Society; and one will be appointed by the attorney-general in consultation with the federal minister of justice.

They will be appointed for two-year terms and no person will be able to serve for more than six consecutive years.

Macdonald said he hopes to see the commission operating this summer.

A long list of functions for the commission is included in the legislation and gives the body power to:

— promote, finance, establish and supervise research on legal services and to provide programs for continuing evaluation of legal services.

— develop and co-operate in experimental programs and projects on the provision of services.

— provide information to the public and consult with the public and other interested groups.

An executive director will be hired to run the commission and departmental spokesmen indicated lawyers may be hired by the organization.

Tel Takeover Not Needed?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial government might not have to take over British Columbia Telephone Co. to regulate it, Bob Strachan, transport and communications minister, said Tuesday.

He predicted the government will gain the control it wants over the company by a transfer of regulatory authority from the federal communications ministry to his department.

Strachan said such regulatory authority would give the B.C. government a say on telephone rate increase applications.

The minister said in an interview that he predicts the B.C. government will be granted such authority as a result of meetings now going on in Ottawa between federal and provincial officials.

Strachan said he could give no date for the transfer of authority, but said, "I fully expect it to happen."

However, Gerard Pelletier, federal communications minister, said in Ottawa that the B.C. minister is "being a bit hasty in saying the thing is settled."

"There are many difficulties that have yet to be discussed. I think he (Strachan) realizes this. He has told me he is ready to wait two years if necessary for it to be done properly."

Staples New Surgery Tool

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

The stapler has arrived in the operating rooms of Victoria General Hospital.

Not quite the same handy little device found on your office desk, but used for the same purpose — to attach things quickly and firmly together.

Stapling tissue together rather than traditional suturing with gut or thread may cut as much as an hour from a 2½-hour operation, Dr. D. R. Carlow, assistant executive director (medical), said Tuesday.

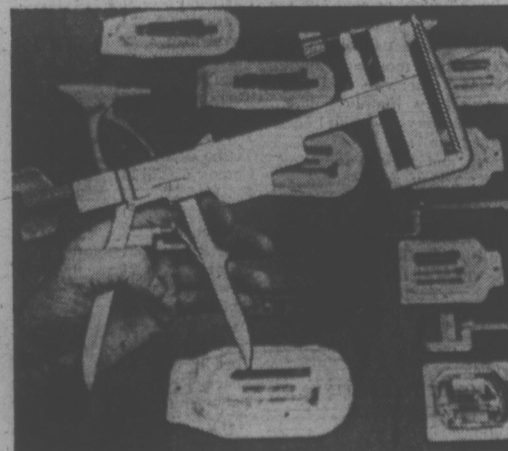

Six or eight surgeons at Victoria General have been assessing the effectiveness of surgical stapling instruments over the past three months. The hospital board has now been asked to purchase the equipment, at a cost of about $3,200 for the half-dozen stapling guns and another $800 for a supply of the tiny stainless steel wire staples.

The staples, which come in sterile cartridges to fit into the guns, are far smaller and finer than those found in an office stapler. They present no problems being left in the body when used internally, Carlow said. When used to close the skin, they are later removed like traditional stitches.

Some of the instruments deliver a double row of staples, to close off each side of a hollow organ like stomach or bowel while a blade in the instrument severs tissue between them. Others are designed to attach sheaths of tissue such as ligaments.

Carlow said the stapling technique, which is new to the local hospital community, offers the advantage of speed, reducing the time a patient is under anesthesia. It produces good closures and is an advantage when a surgeon is working, for example, deep in the pelvis, where it is difficult to do more customary suturing.

Massive pile of dirt and garbage ruins homecoming for Mrs. Mary Larre

13 Years' Struggle for This

By FAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Mrs. Mary Larre worked the graveyard shift at B.C. Forest Products for 13 years to buy her home at $33,000. Today it's menaced by a towering pile of dirt, dumped by Saanich in what was once her backyard.

Centre for the Handicapped. It is unfenced, children have hurled rocks through the window, using the handy rock pile for ammunition, and written foul words on the garden shed.

Since then those brambles have been cleared by Farmer Construction Ltd. employed through a $50,000 grant given the centre. But rocks still roll down on her lawn from that side.

When it rains her basement fills and the backyard that's left becomes a lake, water running down from the 20-foot mound. She's been told by the engineering department the necessary drainage can't be installed until the mound is removed.

UVic Signs Agreement With CUPE

The University of Victoria has signed two-year contracts with its 480 Canadian Union of Public Employees members, union business agent Alex Markides said today.

CUPE has two separate contracts at the university — one covering about 130 outside workers and another covering 350 inside clerical staff.

Neither the university nor the union would release wage gains provided in the new contracts, but Markides said the contracts control a feature which leaves wage increases during the second year of the contracts, open to negotiation.

The previous two-year contract at the university expired March 31.

Meanwhile, CUPE is continuing negotiations for 40 employees of the Greater Victoria Water Board, which is owned by Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich municipalities, and for inside and outside staff of the Saanich school district.

No Intent to Curb Newsmen At Police Station—Gregory

Victoria Police Chief Jack Gregory sharply denied a report which appeared in today's Victoria Star that he wants to ban newsmen from the ground floor of the Fisgard street police station.

In an interview this morning, Gregory said the report was "twisted" — a misstatement of facts that has been blown out of all proportion.

Hydro Vote Next Week

B.C. Hydro's 2,800 electrical workers, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, vote next week on a tentative contract proposal.

The results of the province-wide vote area expected about June 18.

Union business agent Doug Cronk said the negotiating committee has recommended acceptance of the proposal.

men "cruising through the police building trying to dig up information from officers who are otherwise busy."

The suggestion, he said, was made "in the spirit of complete co-operation and regard for the media."

"I thought it might aid and assist newsmen in gathering the news."

He said he and his staff have not discussed the proposal on a formal basis and he could not see any imminent change in the current policy of newsmen approaching the inspectors in charge of each division.

At a meeting of the Victoria Police Board this morning Gregory reiterated his denial.

"There was no word or intent to ban newsmen ... rather to provide news off an equitable basis for all newsmen," he told board members.

Acting Mayor Ald. Alf Hood, deputizing for the vacationing board chairman Mayor Peter Pollen, said in certain circumstances information must be considered confidential, whether or not it relates to investigations.

"There is no intention to hold normal things in secrecy," he said.

Commissioner Jack Cowan said Gregory's proposal sounded a good one.

Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen has renewed his attack on "this astronomical, undisciplined, uncoordinated and irresponsible growth of demands being placed upon the taxpayer."

The attack comes in a letter Pollen has written to Camosun College chairman Dr. Hal Knight, copies of which were sent to newspapers, municipal mayors, local school board chairmen, college councillors, and Education Minister Eileen Dailly.

The mayor said he is concerned about the uncoordinated and even competitive growth of costs of educational and cultural services in the community.

143 Jobs Hanging On Pact

Jobs for 52 young people have been arranged in the Victoria area by the provincial department of labor and an additional 143 more will be offered if the municipalities and their unions can come to an agreement.

Jobs for 52 young people have been arranged in the Victoria area by the provincial department of labor and an additional 143 more will be offered if the municipalities and their unions can come to an agreement.

The municipalities of Oak Bay, North Saanich and Central Saanich are proceeding with the program which will provide jobs for students in parks re-creation programs, child education work and maintenance of homes of senior citizens.

The funds are provided by the provincial government but this program, called SWIM (for students working in municipalities) must be administered by a municipality. In addition, the union affected, usually the Canadian Union of Public Employees, must consent to the program.

Oak Bay has agreed and has obtained union approval. Victoria has agreed but has not yet obtained approval from CUPE.

Saanich and Esquimalt are both awaiting a reply from CUPE.

If approved, 80 students would be hired by Victoria, 53 by Saanich and 10 by Esquimalt.

Last year all the jobs were aimed at improving the environment but this year the program was broadened to provide a greater variety of jobs for the community.

Students are hired through Canada Manpower Centres for Students or through the personnel officer in each municipality where the program is being held.

Total budget for this area is $177,192, including $50,400 earmarked for Victoria, $53,000 for Saanich and $10,500 for Esquimalt.

Jobs are open to students from grade 11 to university students taking post-graduate courses.

The monthly pay rate is grade 11 — $450, grade 12 — $500, first year university — $550, second year — $575, third year — $600, fourth year — $650, post-graduate — $750.

Jobs are for the summer only. A similar program, Student Temporary Education Program, with a budget of $187,000 was cancelled this year by the regional district as an aftermath of the strike-lockout.

The STEP program had to be administered by a regional district only and the Capital Regional District decided it had too much of a backlog of work to handle the extra load this year.

Ratepayers Appointed

The new executive of the recently-revived Central Saanich Ratepayers' Association plans a door-to-door membership drive and an early public meeting.

Appointed to the executive at a meeting Tuesday at the municipal hall were Fred Clarke, president; Claudette de la Chevrotiere, vice-president; Dick Sharpe, secretary; and Campbell Thomson, treasurer.

Clarke said today he hopes to sign up 1,000 members.

... co-ordinator

Job Help For Young Travellers

Cool-Aid Youth Hostel has launched a job-seeking program for young travellers.

"Part of the idea is to keep young people off the local welfare rolls," says Jerry Adams, 25, who has been appointed co-ordinator of the program.

"Sometimes young people come to Victoria and run out of money. If they could find work they would be able to pay their own way home and not have to rely on social welfare."

The program is co-ordinated with the student Canada Manpower office.

However, while Canada Manpower is finding permanent or semi-permanent jobs for young people, the Cool-Aid program is looking for shorter jobs of less than a week.

"We will provide casual labor for small businesses and for house projects."

Although the program is designed to assist travellers, local young people are also eligible for jobs under the program.

The only limit to the number of young people placed will be the number of jobs available.

Adams, who has completed two years of child care and social welfare programs at University of Victoria, says the main need at the moment is to locate homeowners and small businesses who can provide jobs.

Adams can be reached at 383-1951 or 384-3634 at the Cool-Aid Youth Hostel, 1900 Fernwood Road.

'Undisciplined, Irresponsible'

citizens of this province to generate funds to fulfill the rising and largely unattainable expectations of many in the community for more and more public services," he said.

"This naivety, if not eliminated in the near future, will surely bankrupt the province ..."

Pollen pointed to the Greater Victoria Public Library board, which wants to provide not only library services, picture gallery services, music and record services, but most aggressively and vigorously 'educational and recreational services'.

This library effort has never been co-ordinated with aspirations of community resource boards, Camosun College, the University of Victoria, community recreation centres, public schools, and various societies in the Victoria area, he said.

The Michaux Melody Will Linger a While Yet

Most dads would be quite happy if at least one son followed in their footsteps.

But Emile Michaux is doubly proud, with a boy stepping in the prints of both feet.

Emile leaves the band instruction business at the end of this school term. But right behind him, striding in his shadows, is his 28-year-old son Leonard.

He has worked all this year with his father and will take over from him instruction of 136 Grade 8, 9 and 10 students who make up two band and Arbutus Junior High School and the 75-member band at Mt. Douglas High School.

And Emile's other son — 33-year-old Robert — is a member of the Canadian Forces Band at Naden, following the other foot of his musical father.

Emile Michaux is a man who is retiring for the second time. In 1959, he ended his military career when as Chief Petty Officer Michaux he retired after serving 30 years bandmaster of the Naden Band. Then in 1960, he began a new 15-year career as a band instructor in the Victoria school system.

When I popped in for a chat about a life of music, I found Emile at home recuperating after a double hernia operation and "still shaking all over."

Emile Michaux

But he wasn't feeling too bad to reminisce and he told of how it all began in Belgium.

That's where grandfather Michaux (Emile's grandfather, that is) came from. And he was a clarinet player and a professor of music in Brussels.

He never met granddad, but Emile always had a love of music and started playing the cornet when he was nine with the Naval Brigade Band in Victoria.

"I went through all the band instruments, though," says Emile, "trombone, euphonium and tuba."

Naturally, his wife Mary is keen on music. She plays the piano and has done a lot of accompanying of students during the Victoria Festival of Music.

"We started our boys playing when they were nine," Emile says and now both can play several instruments like the trombone, bass guitar and piano.

Emile was born in Dawson City after his father came to North America at the age of 14. The family moved to Victoria when he was two and he has been here ever since. He attended the former St. Louis College, which once stood on the corner of Pandora and Vancouver.

"I heard on a recent CBC television special on cycling that the inventor of the bicycle was a man named Michaux from Belgium," he says.

And the funny thing is that Emile's first job was as an apprentice bicycle mechanic for the late Jake Aaronson in Victoria.

Next came jobs doing roofing work with several different city companies.

"I did all types of roofing and they were hard times," says Emile. "I got 40 cents an hour — up seven stories for 40 cents an hour."

After that, he worked as a window dresser for David Spencer and Co. (now Eaton's) and all this time music, says Emile, was just a hobby.

From 1927 to 1940, he was a member of the First Battalion, Canadian Scottish Band.

"The bandmaster then was James Miller," says Emile, "he still lives here today, must be close to 90 now."

And in 1937, he started playing in a group with Billy Tickle and Len Acres (both of whom died recently) at dinner dances in the Empress.

Then came the war. Emile entered the Navy as a bandsman and played euphonium and string bass in the Naden Band. After the war, he was bandmaster aboard HMCS Discovery for some time.

Then, in 1946, it was decided that bands should become a permanent part of the Royal Canadian Navy and Michaux was instrumental in the formation of the navy bands in existence today.

Leonard Michaux with Arbutus band

years. Highlights for the navy band during those years were taking part in a spectacular display of bands in the 1955 British Empire Games in Vancouver and in a half-time show during the first Grey Cup game played in the west.

When it comes to Navy bands, Emile Michaux wrote the handbook — literally. He compiled the Band Manual, giving the drills for service bands in the Navy.

Emile loves "every kind of music," played bass viol for several years with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra and believes parents should encourage any child who wants to learn music.

"I don't know what I would have done if I hadn't had music," says Emile. "I guess

I would have just hung around the street corners."

"It's never been better than it is now for a child to learn music in the school system," he adds. "And the talent is fantastic — you wouldn't believe what these kids can produce."

Thousands of children have learned music with Emile Michaux.

"I couldn't count them — one year alone I had 450 students," he says.

Big moments? Sure, there have been plenty of them.

Like the time in 1967 when his Colquitz Junior High Band won a national title. And in 1971 when Arbutus took the B.C. band championship in Vancouver and the Queen presented the trophy to the school. And the 10 times he took bands from either Colquitz, Arbutus, Gordon Head or Mt. Doug to compete with slick American bands at the annual Abbotsford International Band Festival, and came back with first prizes on all 10 occasions.

And it could be another big moment this Friday night at 8 when a special reception honoring Emile is held in the Mt. Doug gym.

It should be, too, if he can just stop "shaking all over" in time.

Let's hope he feels up to it.

Massive Mideast Arms Deal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Russia and Libya have secretly made the biggest weapons deal in the history of the Middle East, with the Soviet Union agreeing to supply $12 billion worth of "the most sophisticated arms one can imagine," according to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

The agreement could give the Russians a military presence on the southern shore of the Mediterranean for 50 years, Sadat told the Los Angeles Times.

In a lengthy interview published in the Times today, Sadat also complained that it is difficult to deal with the United States, because the government does not speak with one voice, with the White House following one foreign policy and Congress another. But he called on the United States not to "go on sticking your head in the sand" in post-Vietnam isolationism, and to take a super power role in bringing peace to the Middle East by pressuring Israel.

The Libyan regime of Col. Muammar Khadafi and Moscow both denied earlier reports in Egyptian newspapers of a secret $4 billion arms deal, calling them exaggerated. Sadat, the Times said, stated that far from being exaggerated, the actual agreement was three times bigger than had been reported.

"The whole deal is for the most sophisticated arms one can imagine," the Times quoted Sadat as saying. It provides Libya with tanks and aircraft of the latest style," he said. "The Russians have never given me or Syria such sophisticated arms."

Russian advisers will have to remain in Libya for 20 to 50 years to show Libyans how to use the weapons, Sadat said. "You can draw your own conclusions as to the dominance of Moscow's military presence in Libya," he said, calling it "something that should upset the United States more than us."

Quang Issue 'Regret' By Andras

TORONTO — Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Tuesday he regretted allowing former South Vietnamese general Dang Van Quang to enter Canada before investigating charges of corruption levelled against him.

In an interview on CBC radio's As It Happens, Andras said:

"In retrospect, I wish there had been a more thorough vetting of who he was and what he was involved in."

Andras said Quang had been accused of "pretty nefarious criminal activities and manipulation of people."

If the allegations were eventually proved, "I would want to get rid of him."

"I doubt if he will be sent back to Saigon. But it is not impossible to remove him from Canada."

Andras said the former general was allowed to enter Canada on a temporary basis so that he could be reunited in Montreal with his wife and children.

Andras has been under political fire since Monday when Derek Blackburn, NDP MP for Brant asked why the former general was allowed to enter Canada on a special ministerial permit.

Blackburn referred to Quang as "the epitome of everything that went wrong in Vietnam."

Meanwhile, a United States Drug Enforcement Agency official said in Montreal the Canadian government has as yet not requested any information on the drug trafficking activities of Quang.

A DEA liaison officer at the Consulate General of the United States said "any request for information from the Canadian government on this man would be referred to us because he is living here in Montreal and we have heard nothing yet from Ottawa."

Allegations about his role in the drug trade are made in The Politics of Heroin in Southeast Asia by Alfred W. McCoy and The Fire in the Lake by Francis Fitzgerald.

Gunman Runs Amok In High School

UIC PAYMENTS JUMP BY 50%

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment insurance payments for the first four months of 1975 totalled $1.233 billion, up nearly 50 per cent over the $830 million total for the first four months of 1974, government officials told the Commons manpower committee Tuesday.

If projected for the rest of the year at present jobless rates, the total benefit cost of the program this year would be $3.5 billion — far more than the 1974 total of $2.116 billion.

Increased unemployment this year with a resultant larger number of claims for benefits and a higher level of payments due to increased earnings are among that factor that will push the total up.

BRAMPTON (UPI) — A young man armed with two rifles walked into a local high school near the noon hour recess today and began shooting at students and teachers in classroom.

Police said two persons were killed and 13 wounded before the gunman killed himself with one of his weapons. The dead included a woman art teacher and one student.

A daughter of Ontario Premier William Davis, a student at the school, escaped unharmed.

The gunman ran along a hallway, opening classroom doors and shooting at everything in sight, a student said.

"Panic erupted throughout the whole place."

The gunman was tentatively identified as Mike Slobodian, 17, a student at the school.

The shooting occurred at the Brampton Centennial Secondary School in a new division in an outer suburb of northwest Toronto.

A fleet of ambulances rushed the wounded to the Peel Memorial hospital.

Scores of parents, discharging police appeals to keep away, rushed to the school to see if their children were among the victims.

Later, as the body of the gunman still lay inside, Premier Davis, who lives in Brampton, drove to the school to confer with police officers.

Allan Andrychuk, a mathematics teacher, said he was in the men's room of the school when he heard shooting.

"I looked out the door and saw a guy with a rifle at eye level. I ducked back into the washroom and then heard another volley of shots."

Pot Legal At Home In Alaska

JUNEAU (AP) — The Alaska Supreme Court has legalized possession of marijuana for private use in the home.

In a 5-to-0 ruling handed down Tuesday, the court became the first in the United States to legalize some aspect of marijuana use, saying that "mere scientific doubts about the medical effects of marijuana do not justify government intrusions into the home."

Left intact by the court are penalties for public possession and use for sales, offences which the justices said relate to a "compelling interest" of the state.

"There's no question about the decision," said R. Collin Middleton, an Anchorage lawyer who helped argue the case. "You can now ring your yard with marijuana plants, if you want to."

(In Canada a Senate Committee Tuesday stopped just short of declaring the use of marijuana a non-criminal act. See story Page 25.)

An independent commission with wide jurisdiction over legal services in B.C. will be set up under legislation introduced in the house Tuesday.

The Legal Services Commission Act sets up a five-member body, appointed by the government and the Law Society of B.C., with power to "plan the development of legal services in the province."

Legal services are described in the bill as "education, advice and information in or about law and any legal service that may be provided by a barrister and solicitor or a notary public."

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald described the bill as an important move "to take legal services out of politics completely."

The commission will work independently to improve the provision of legal services and to try to ensure equal accessibility and equality before the law, he said.

It will hopefully mean the end of "cash register justice" in B.C., said Macdonald.

The legislation describes the object and purpose of the commission as ensuring that "... legal services are effectively provided to, and readily obtainable by, the people of B.C., with special emphasis on those people to whom those services are not presently available for financial or other reasons."

The new body will have jurisdiction over all legal aid in the province and will be assigned the $4.2 million budget for legal aid included in the attorney-general's estimates.

Macdonald said the commission will decide how best to spend the money on legal aid and might decide on different rules for granting that aid.

Two members of the commission will be appointed by cabinet; two will be chosen by the benchers of the B.C. Law Society; and one will be appointed by the attorney-general.

Munro 'Debunks' High Wage Myth

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro appeared out of step with the government Tuesday, delivering a hard-hitting speech which denied that high wage settlements are the major cause of inflation.

Both Prime Minister Trudeau and Finance Minister John Turner have cited wage settlements as a main inflationary factor.

Munro criticized in the Commons "the prevailing myth that excessive wage settlements are the main cause of inflation, that they are running double the average rate of wages in the United States and that they threaten our competitive advantage over the Americans."

Munro quoted from recent news reports "which go far to debunk this myth about allegedly excessive wage increases."

"Canadian wages have been rising faster than those in the U.S., but so has our productivity."

Munro also criticized suggestions that all pay raises should be held at the same general percentage increase.

"It is all very well for us to sit in the House and express horror at certain percentage increases without examining the base rate," he said. "We might have different ideas of what our percentage increase should be if we were handling bed pans in hospitals or clearing garbage in the streets."

Tel Takeover Not Needed?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial government might not have to take over British Columbia Telephone Co. to regulate it, Bob Strachan, transport and communications minister, said Tuesday.

He predicted the government will gain the control it wants over the company by a transfer of regulatory authority from the federal communications ministry to his department.

Strachan said such regulatory authority would give the B.C. government a say on telephone rate increase applications.

The minister said in an interview that he predicts the B.C. government will be granted such authority as a result of meetings now going on in Ottawa between federal and provincial officials.

Strachan said he could give no date for the transfer of authority, but said, "I fully expect it to happen."

However, Gerard Pelletier, federal communications minister, said in Ottawa that the B.C. minister is "being a bit hasty in saying the task is settled."

"There are many difficulties that have yet to be discussed. I think he (Strachan) realizes this. He has told me he is ready to wait two years if necessary for it to be done properly."

Staples New Surgery Tool

By DON VIFOND
Times Staff

The stapler has arrived in the operating rooms of Victoria General Hospital.

Not quite the same handy little device found on your office desk, but used for the same purpose — to attach things quickly and firmly together.

Stapling tissue together rather than traditional suturing with gut or thread may cut as much as an hour from a 2½-hour operation, Dr. D. R. Carlow, assistant executive director (medical), said Tuesday.

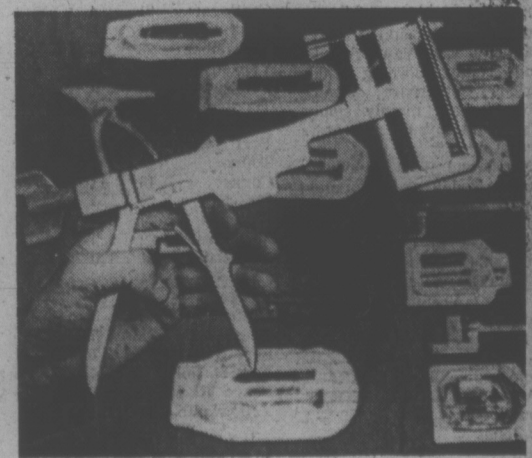

Six or eight surgeons at Victoria General have been assessing the effectiveness of surgical stapling instruments over the past three months. The hospital board has now been asked to purchase the equipment, at a cost of about $3,200 for the half-dozen stapling guns and another $800 for a supply of the tiny stainless steel wire staples.

The staples, which come in sterile cartridges to fit into the guns, are far smaller and finer than those found in an office stapler. They present no problems being left in the body when used internally, Carlow said. When used to close the skin, they are later removed like traditional stitches.

Some of the instruments deliver a double row of staples, to close off each side of a hollow organ like stomach or bowel while a blade in the instrument severs tissue between them. Others are designed to attach sheaths of tissue such as ligaments.

Carlow said the stapling technique, which is new to the local hospital community, offers the advantage of speed, reducing the time a patient is under anesthesia. It produces good closures and is an advantage when a surgeon is working, for example, deep in the pelvis, where it is difficult to do more customary suturing.
